137th of the General Assembly.

Vol. 30.

HARRISBURG, PA., MONDAY, JUNE 2, 1947.

No. 67.

SENATE

MONDAY, JUNE 2, 1947

The Senate met at 3:00 o'clock, p. m., Eastern Standard Time.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (M. Harvey Taylor) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. W. MURRAY YOUNG, offered the following prayer:

Almighty God, our Father, make us deeply aware of Thy presence in these the opening moments of another legislative week. May we bow with expectancy and hopefulness before Thee. Enable us during this brief period of devotion to dismiss our cares and worries, and to pour out our souls in supplication and praise to Thee. For the blessings that are so evident to each of us, we give Thee hearty thanks, and for those provisions of Thy hand that we do not commonly acknowledge, we lift our hearts in thanksgiving.

We bow in contrition before Thee and make bold to acknowledge our own evil nature. Misfortune, disaster and pain have caused our hearts to grow cold, rigid and arrogant. May the influence of Thy Spirit restrain all hatred, dislodge all unworthy motive and make us humble to do Thy Holy Will. Through Christ our Lord, we pray. Amen!

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. TALLMAN and Mr. WADE, further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. At this time the Chair calls to the rostrum the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, to preside.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (John M. Walker)
in the Chair.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. JASPAN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. JASPAN. Mr. President and gentlemen of the Senate, once again the Philadelphia Inquirer, speaking editorially as of May 31, 1947, warns us of the grave danger that will result from our failure to enact rent control legislation.

"RENT-PAYERS LOOK TO THE STATE FOR PROTECTION

"Senate acceptance of the House-approved provision permitting a 15 percent increase in rents where landlords and tenants agree on a two-year lease paves the way to speedy action on a rent control bill to replace the one expiring June 30.

"This feature of the proposed new law will make possible a widespread rise in rents, to the extent of 15 percent. More important, and more ominous, to rent-payers, however, are the indications that the bill will abolish all Federal rent controls at a date no later than next March 31.

"After that there will be no ceilings on rents whatsoever. Landlords, except where the leases provide specific amounts, can make the sky the limit.

"It may be that the members of Congress in their wisdom can be sure that by the early months of 1948 the housing crisis will be a thing of the past and that homes and apartments for rent will be so abundant and so moderately priced that there will exist no reason for rent controls and rent ceilings.

"Without benefit of crystal ball, however, the outlook is for no improvement in the housing situation to warrant such opinion. Demand for rental dwellings is so large that it is highly unlikely that the supply will be able to come within a reasonable distance of it by the end of next winter.

"If rent-payers and prospective rent-payers are left unprotected by a control law they will be wide open to large-scale gouging.

"There is a way to prevent that, even if Congress insists on cutting off controls: establishment of a State rent control law.

"New York has such a measure on the books waiting to go into effect whenever made necessary by expiration of Federal controls. There is no reason why the citizens of Pennsylvania should not be afforded similar protection.

"The members of the Legislature cannot say that they have not been given ample warning of forthcoming abolishment of Federal rent ceilings. It is clearly their duty, while assembled at this time, to set up authority for the establishment, if and when needed, of State rent controls."

The bill now before Congress, and about to be passed, is a black-jack measure, and affords no protection to the tenant. It therefore devolves upon us, as indicated by the Philadelphia Inquirer, to set up authority for the establishment, if and when needed, of state rent controls.

By the time we adjourn, and probably for years thereafter, there is little likelihood that the housing situation will substantially improve. Are we, realizing the discomfort, chaos and violence that will attend the lifting of the rent controls or the weakening of federal controls, to stand idly by and trust to Providence that a miracle will happen and things will adjust themselves?

I say to you with all the emphasis at my command it is our duty to act now. Otherwise you will be called into special session at a cost of three to four hundred thousands dollars to enact emergency legislation for the benefit of the tenant as against the unscrupulous landlord and real estate broker.

You may generally be opposed to price fixing by the government, but it is rendered necessary by the unsavory conduct displayed by the profiteer during the past few months. O. P. A. control was lifted on many items, and notwithstanding the promises made by capital that prices will go down, what has happened. Prices have soared beyond the capacity of the common man to pay. This is a very unwholesome situation, and it will be aggravated to very serious proportions, unless we prepare ourselves to meet the onslaught of avaricious and greedy landlords.

Our people can live on less and cheaper grades of food, and it is equally true of clothing, but without a home or shelter, man can hardly exist, and especially so when he has to rear his family. Loss of homes to the common man means a complete breakdown of civilization. And this is exactly what we face in event of the removal of rent controls, especially at a time when there is a lack of housing accommodations.

New York has already passed a law to take effect when and if federal control of rents breaks down or is weakened. Why can't we do likewise? You have before you Senate Bill No. 25, introduced by me on January 29, 1947, and patterned after the New York law which was enacted by a Republican legislature and Republican Governor. May I ask: Why are we withholding action? Is the real estate lobby too strong? I do not know. Lobbies or no lobbies, our people need protection, and we, who were elected by them, owe our first allegiance to them.

You may discard my bill if you will. Have the Attorney-General prepare another.

In closing, I appeal to the Governor and the Legislature to pass emergency rent-control legislation.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. WADE, from the Committee on State Government, reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 608, entitled:

An Act to further amend section four hundred nine of the act, approved the ninth day of April, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 177), entitled "An act providing for and reorganizing the conduct of the executive and administrative work of the Commonwealth by the Executive Department thereof and the administrative departments, boards, commissions, and officers thereof, including the boards of trustees of State Normal Schools, or Teachers Colleges; abolishing, creating, reorganizing or authorizing the reorganization of certain administrative departments, boards, and commissions; defining the powers and duties of the Governor and other executive and administrative officers, and of the several administrative departments, boards, commissions, and officers; fixing the salaries of the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, and certain other executive and administrative officers; providing for the appointment of certain administrative officers, and of all deputies and other assistants and employees in certain departments, boards, and commissions; and prescribing the manner in which the number and compensation of the deputies and all other assistants and employees of certain departments, boards and commissions shall be determined," increasing the salary of the chairman of the Pennsylvania State Board of Censors.

BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

Mr. WAGNER read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 823, entitled:

An Act to amend clause one of section three of the act, approved the sixteenth day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 1784), entitled "An act concerning newspapers; creating uniformity in the publication of legal notices and advertisements; defining the newspapers in which official and legal advertising shall be published; prescribing methods for computing the charges therefor, and providing that the expenses for publishing legal advertising or notices shall be taxable and collectible as court costs are now taxed and collected in all matters and proceedings" by providing that involuntary suspension of publication shall not disqualify a newspaper to publish legal and official advertising.

Which was committed to the Committee on Judiciary General.

Mr. DONLAN read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 824, entitled:

An Act to amend the title of chapter nine and to add section two hundred fifteen to said chapter of the act, approved the second day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-five (P. L. 448), entitled "An act relating to fish; and amending, revising, consolidating, and changing the law relating to fish in the inland waters and the boundary lakes and boundary rivers of the Commonwealth," making it illegal to transport game-fish with their heads removed; and providing penalties.

Which was committed to the Committee on Forest and Waters, Game and Fish.

Mr. HOMSHER read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 825, entitled:

An Act to further amend the first paragraph of section twelve of the act, approved the nineteenth day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-one (P. L. 589), entitled "An act to promote the public health and safety, by providing for the examination and licensure of those who desire to engage in the occupation of barbering; regulating barber shops and barber schools, and apprentices and students therein; regulating compensation for service rendered; conferring certain powers and duties on the Department of Public Instruction; and providing penalties," further providing for the registration of owners of barber shops.

Which was committed to the Committee on Education.

He also read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 826, entitled:

An Act to further amend subsection (d) of section three hundred twelve of the act approved the fifth day of December, one thousand nine hundred thirty-six, (1937 P. L. 2897) entitled "An act establishing a system of unemployment compensation to be administered by the Department of Labor and Industry and its existing and newly created agencies with personnel (with certain exceptions) selected on a civil service basis, requiring employers to keep records and make reports and certain employers to pay contributions based on payrolls, to provide moneys for the payment of compensation to certain unemployed persons, providing procedure and administrative details for the determination, payment and collection of such contributions and the payment of such compensation, providing for cooperation with the Federal Government and its agencies creating certain special funds in the custody of the State Treasurer and prescribing penalties," by extending the basis on which the Department of Labor and Industry is authorized to enter into reciprocal arrangements with other state agencies and the Federal Government.

Which was committed to the Committee on Labor and Industry.

Mr. FRAZIER. Mr. President, that which I am about to do is a source of great joy to me. I am very happy indeed that I am permitted to be the instrumentality to present two bills which I shall offer, one today and one tomorrow.

I feel that I stand close enough to the Republican leadership in Philadelphia to be cognizant of their thoughts and feelings, and never during the entire discussion of the raise in teachers' salaries have either Mr. Harris or the City Fathers been anything but entirely sympathetic with the desire for an increase.

They were, however, vitally and highly concerned as to the methods of producing the necessary funds. They not only must have in their minds the interests of the school teachers, but must also be preeminently concerned for the owners of over five hundred thousand pieces of real estate in Philadelphia. They felt, and I think correctly, that it was economically unsound to burden Philadelphia property owners with any additional real estate taxes at the present time. It has been axiomatic that whenever more money was needed, "let us put it on real estate." Therefore, when it was suggested that the necessary money, probably aggregating $6,000,000, should be raised by a tax of one and one-half mills on real estate, Mr. Harris expressed himself as definitely opposed to any such taxation. This statement was made advisedly and with no thought of running out on the city's obligation to take care of the teachers, because there was a dual obligation.

Mr. President, I am most happy to say to all Philadelphians that in a conference with the Governor last week, a means of raising the money was determined upon, which was satisfactory to the Governor, satisfactory to the Republican Senators of Philadelphia, who were always most anxious to help the teachers and always favorably inclined to them, and finally, I think the proposed program will meet with the approval of all the citizens of Philadelphia, because it is remarkable the number of letters, telephone calls and personal talks which I have had with the citizens of Philadelphia who, regardless of the added financial obligation, definitely and forcefully expressed themselves as to the necessity of adequately aiding the teachers. The method of raising the money has been publicly discussed and these bills will supply the machinery. Briefly, to repeat, first, the Board of Education is to be permitted to obtain part of the money from the personal property tax, not to exceed four mills, and, second, a mercantile tax of one mill on retail sales and one-half mill on wholesale sales. I know that, generally nobody approves of added taxation, but in this most worthy cause, I believe that the method now adopted will meet with the approval of every citizen of the great city of Philadelphia.

Therefore, Mr. President, it is with great pleasure that I offer the following bill.

Mr. FRAZER read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 827, entitled:

An Act to provide revenue for school districts of the first class by imposing a merchantile license tax on persons engaging in certain occupations and businesses therein and providing for its collection; providing for the issuance of mercantile licenses upon the payment of fees therefor; imposing powers and duties on Board of Public Education, Receiver of School Taxes; School Treasurer, and School Controller in such districts; and providing penalties.

Which was committed to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. FARRELL read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 828, entitled:

An Act to authorize and empower the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission to combine the Turnpike, the Eastern Extension and the Western Extension, or any two thereof, for financing purposes under the provisions of this Act; authorizing the issuance of Turnpike revenue bonds of the Commonwealth payable solely from tolls, to pay the cost of the Eastern Extension and the Western Extension; paying the cost of the Eastern Extension, or the cost of the Western Extension, or the cost of both, and refunding any Turnpike revenue bonds or Turnpike refunding bonds which have heretofore been issued by the Commission under the provisions of any Act heretofore approved, or under the provisions of this Act, and which shall then be outstanding, including the payment of any redemption premiums thereon; refunding any revenue bonds, or revenue refunding bonds, heretofore issued under the provisions of this Act, including the payment of and redemption premiums thereon; authorizing the Commission to fix tolls from time to time for use of the projects so combined; providing for the use of a facsimile of the signature of the Governor and of the Chairman of the Commission in lieu of their manual signatures, and facsimile of the official seal of the Commission, upon any bonds issued under the provisions of this Act, or any other Act authorizing the issuance of bonds for the payment of the construction of any Turnpike; and giving certain definitions.

Which was committed to the Committee on Highways.

Mr. LETZLER read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 829, entitled:

An Act making an appropriation to the Land-Grant College of Pennsylvania for the purpose of matching certain moneys appropriated by the Congress of the United States

Which was committed to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. WAGNER read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 830, entitled:

An Act to further amend section seven of article two of the act, approved the second day of June, one thousand eight hundred ninety-one (P. L. 176), entitled "An act to provide for the health and safety of persons employed in and about the anthracite coal mines of Pennsylvania, and for the protection and preservation of property connected therewith," authorizing the Secretary of Mines, where the need demands, to reduce or increase the number of inspectors assigned to a particular inspection district and to assign duties to an inspector in an inspection district other than the district in which he resides; and in general, making provisions thereof conform to existing law.

Which was committed to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, before introducing a bill, because of the importance of it, I would like to call to the attention of the Senate a matter which all of us realize is of the greatest importance, and that is the prevention of accidents in the Commonwealth.

This bill will create a Pennsylvania Public Safety Commission which shall be an independent administrative commission, and shall have all the powers conferred upon and perform all the duties vested in such commissions generally by the Administrative Code of 1929.

The Pennsylvania Public Safety Commission shall be composed of the Secretary of Revenue, the Secretary of Highways, the Superintendent of Public Instruction, the Secretary of Labor and Industry, the Secretary of Mines, the Chairman of the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission, the Commissioner of the Pennsylvania State Police, or such representative from his department as he may designate in his stead, and the Director of Public Safety, hereinafter provided for. The Governor shall appoint a resident of this Commonwealth who shall be designated as the Director of Public Safety and who shall be qualified by experience in safety work and by experience in public relations technique. He shall receive such salary as the Governor may determine, not to exceed $10,000 annually.

The duties of the Commission shall be to formulate and develop plans and methods for increased safety on the public highways, in industry and mines, on farms, in hotels, commercial establishments and other places of public assemblage, and in the home, and for preventing accidents at such places, and shall supervise the execution of such plans and methods.

I want to call particularly to the attention of the Senate that it is the express purpose and intent of this bill to supplement existing governmental safety agencies with a clearing-house of information, education and recommendations, in order that they may better carry out the functions, enforcement and improvement of safety conditions delegated to them by the laws of this Commonwealth.

Nothing in this bill shall be construed to limit the powers of any existing department, board, commission, or agency having to do with matters of safety.

I also want to call to the attention of the Senate that the most safety-minded people in the Commonwealth today are our school children, because they have been made safety-conscious. Next I would say that industry has done a splendid job in promoting safety, but in the home and on the farm is where the most work and the most good can be done by such a Commission.

Mr. President, I have before me a speech made by Albert S. Goss, Master of the National Grange, before the American Medical Association, from which I would like to read a short paragraph, which is as follow:

"Now let us look at the accident rate among the farmers and those employed in industry. The accident death rate per one hundred thousand workers on farms during 1945 was 53 as compared with 19 in manufacturing industries. When it comes to less serious accidents, but those still requiring medical care, farm experience will show that most farm workers have one or more such accidents every year. Even the farm children are exposed to innumerable hazards. In considering farm accidents we must not forget that the farmer who suffers an accident is usually far from a doctor or a hospital while most industrial plants have medical service and hospitalization facilities on the premises."

This is a matter which, you will recall, was touched upon by the Governor in his inaugural address. I do hope that every member of the Senate will read the bill and aid in its passage through the Senate.

Mr. MALLERY read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 831, entitled:

An Act creating the Pennsylvania Public Safety Commission as an Independent Administrative Commission of the Commonwealth and defining its powers and duties; providing for a Director of Public Safety and defining his powers and duties; defining the scope of existing safety agencies and making an appropriation.

Which was committed to the Committee on State Government.

Mr. ROSENFELD read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 832, entitled:

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to article nine, sections twelve and thirteen of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, allowing accumulation of State moneys for the purpose of meeting any future expenses of the State government and removing the limitation on the amount of moneys held as necessary reserve.

Which was committed to the Committee on Constitutional Changes and Federal Relations.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

TIME OF NEXT MEETING

Mr. BLASS, offered the following resolution, which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the Senate, June 2, 1947.

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur) That when the Senate adjourns this week it reconvene on Monday, June 9, 1947, at three o'clock, p. m., Eastern Standard Time; and when the House of Representatives adjourns this week it reconvenes on Monday, June 9, 1947 at three-thirty o'clock, p. m., Eastern Standard Time.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. BARR asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I just heard the speech by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Frazier, as he presented his mercantile tax bill for first class school districts, and I notice that his bill provides for a levy of a one-half mill tax on the wholesale mercantiler. I do not know whether he realizes what he is doing but he is playing into the hands of the wholesalers in Camden, New Jersey, and Dover, Delaware, the same as in Pittsburgh, where we will be playing into the hands of the wholesalers of Wheeling, West Virginia, and Steubenville, Ohio.

I would be glad to support this bill if I could be sure that this mercantile tax would apply only to retailers, but we will not stand for any mercantile tax on the wholesaler because that is a tax against the local wholesaler in the districts where we reside.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE ON EXECUTIVE NOMINATIONS

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. KEPHART, from the Committee on Executive Nominations reported with a favorable recommendation the following nominations, made by His Excellency, the Governor:

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to call up out of order, on page 12 of today's Calendar, House Bill No. 787, for consideration at this time.

BILL ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 787, as follows:

An Act to further amend sections four and ten of the act approved the twenty-first day of May one thousand nine hundred thirty-one (P. L. 149) entitled "An act imposing a State tax payable by those herein defined as distributors on liquid fuels used or sold and delivered within the Commonwealth which are ordinarily practically and commercially usable in internal combustion engines for the generation of power providing for the collection and lien of the tax and the distribution and use of the proceeds thereof requiring such distributors to secure permits to file corporate surety bonds and reports and to retain certain records imposing duties on retail dealers common carriers county commissioners and such distributors providing for rewards imposing certain costs on counties conferring powers and imposing duties on certain State officers and departments providing for refunds imposing penalties and making an appropriation" by extending the provisions of the additional tax for a limited time and further providing for the distribution of the additional tax to certain political subdivisions of this Commonwealth with certain conditions

Section 1 Section four of the act approved the twenty-first day of May one thousand nine hundred thirty-one (P. L. 149) entitled "An act imposing a State tax payable by those herein defined as distributors on liquid fuels used or sold and delivered within the Commonwealth which are ordinarily practically and commercially usable in internal combustion engines for the generation of power providing for the collection and lien of the tax and the distribution and use of the proceeds thereof requiring such distributors to secure permits to file corporate surety bonds and reports and to retain certain records imposing duties on retail dealers common carriers county commissioners and such distributors providing for rewards imposing certain costs on counties conferring powers and imposing duties on certain State officers and departments providing for refunds imposing penalties and making an appropriation" as last amended by the act approved the twenty-ninth day of May one thousand nine hundred forty-five (P. L. 1102) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 4 Imposition of Tax Exemptions and Deductions A permanent State tax of three cents a gallon or fractional part thereof is hereby imposed and assessed upon all liquid fuels used or sold and delivered by distributors within this Commonwealth excepting liquid fuels delivered to the United States Government on presentation of a duly authorized United States Government exemption certificate or other evidence satisfactory to the department and such liquid fuels used or sold and delivered as are not within the taxing power of this Commonwealth under the Commerce Clause of the Constitution of the United States Providing That the tax herein imposed and assessed shall be collected by and paid to the Commonwealth but once in respect to any liquid fuels

In addition to such tax an additional State tax of one cent a gallon or fractional part thereof is hereby imposed and assessed upon all liquid fuels used or sold and delivered by distributors within this Commonwealth for the period beginning on the day this act becomes effective and ending on the thirty-first day of May one thousand nine hundred [and forty-seven] forty-nine

Distributors shall be liable to the Commonwealth for the collection and payment of the tax imposed by this act The tax imposed by this act shall be collected by the distributor at the time the liquid fuels are used or sold and delivered by the distributor and shall be borne by the consumer

The tax shall be payable upon liquid fuels sold and delivered to or used by the Commonwealth and every political subdivision thereof

The department shall allow such handling and storage losses of liquid fuels as are substantiated to its satisfaction

The Department of Highways shall annually issue to the corporate authorities of the said political subdivisions copies of the laws with special reference to the pertinent provisions thereof and regulations relating to the receipt and expenditure of any funds authorized herein to be apportioned allocated or expended.

Section 3 The provisions of this act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President and members of the Senate, this bill comes before us at a very bad time. There are some serious amendments that should have been made to this bill. However, because of the fact that the person responsible for the introduction of this legislation evidently slipped up on the date for the introduction, or for the calling from committee of this particular piece of legislation, we are now confronted with the choice of either voting against this bill or allowing a piece of legislation to go through that we believe needs some correction.

This provides for the return of a portion of the so-called one cent emergency gasoline tax to the local municipalities, for expenditures on street maintenance, repairs and construction.

One of the things that ought to have been corrected at this session of the Legislature is the feature in the bill that provides for the return to the townships of $10,000,000, and to the cities and other localities of $10,000,000.

Under the terms of the Act passed in 1945 the townships receive $93 per mile as against $335 per mile for the cities and boroughs. Those of us who have townships in our districts can not understand the discrepancy.

However, when the amendments were presented the argument was given that this bill had to be passed or we would lose approximately $50,000 a day in revenue.

Incidentally, Mr. President, we are losing over $100,000 because of the negligence of the sponsor of the bill, a certain Mr. Fiss—I hope I pronounced his name right, I think I can read the spelling—I think that we ought to recognize that particular fact at this time. We are losing $100,000 and I, for one, do not want to be responsible for losing any more revenue to the Commonwealth, and I therefore intend to ask by colleagues to vote for this piece of legislation.

However, Mr. President, I want to say at this time that early in this session of the Legislature I called attention to the fact that if we spent the entire $250,000,000 advocated by Governor Duff in his budget message for highway construction in the next biennium, we would still have a surplus of approximately $67,000,000 in the Highway Fund.

I can not believe that this Senate or this Legislature wants to have a surplus in the Highway Fund while our local municipalities are starved for the need of new revenue and finances.

This one cent tax will raise approximately $35,000,000 in the next biennium. There is no logical reason that I know of for not giving the entire returns to the local communities.

We talk about raising the pay of school teachers and say that the local communities ought to contribute more towards the pay of school teachers, and yet we at every turn take from the local municipalities every cent that we can squeeze from the municipalities and make just as niggardly a return as we possibly can. We are now giving $20,000,000 out of $35,000,000 and yet if we gave the entire $35,000,000, the local municipalities would be in a position to have $15,000,000 they could easily shift to school purposes, by a reduction of taxes for the one purpose and an increase for the other. Real estate can not carry any greater burden of taxes than it now carries in the local municipalities and therefore the only method by which the local municipalities can raise money to give additional pay to school teachers in this Commonwealth is for the state to kick back to the various municipalities a greater share of the money they take from them.

We are going to have at the end of this biennium $67,000,000, as I have already stated, surplus moneys in the Highway fund, if the Governor's budget director knows anything at all about figures. If that is true then the $15,000,000 additional that is being raised by this one cent tax that has been made permanent by the General Assembly of Pennsylvania certainly ought to be sent back to the municipalities.

I say to you that if this would have been put in in time, it would have reached the Senate in time and we would have fought against this return going back to the municipalities on the same percentage. The Democratic party believes that the entire cent ought to be returned to the local communities in order that they may reduce their real estate tax in this particular field, in order to have more money for local uses.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, when aid to the teachers was discussed, the Governor issued a statement stating that we were appropriating more to the teachers than any other state. However, he did not take into consideration that when local communities have to raise more taxes, those taxes, regardless of what they are intended to be used for, must come out of the same pocketbook.

In Pennsylvania today we are thirty-eighth in standing with the other forty-eight states in money returned to the local communities to defray expenses of services originating out of money collected by the state.

For instance, in Ohio one-third of the gasoline fund is returned to the local communities, twenty-five per cent of the drivers' license fees are returned to the local communities and twenty-five per cent of the owners' license fees are returned to the communities from which those taxes are collected, with the result that they are able to maintain the streets at a much lower cost to the real estate owner than in any community in the state of Pennsylvania.

For instance, Mr. President, in Pittsburgh we have 1,350 miles of streets. The amount of money returned from the gasoline fund will not pay our bill for one mile of street in the city of Pittsburgh, because we are in a hilly district and it costs considerable money to build streets in a hilly district. Therefore, the return to the city of Pittsburgh is far out of proportion to the expense the real estate taxpayer has to meet.

In addition to that, Mr. President, the Senate passed, in a war spirit, for the people to vote on a so-called innocent amendment to the Constitution, under which the gasoline tax money, or any money in the Motor Vehicle fund, can only be used for the building, maintenance of roads, bridges, and streets. We in Pittsburgh spend $1,400,000 odd for the handling of traffic, which is becoming greater and greater. Throughout the state, local communities today are spending close to $9,000,000 for the handling of traffic. In other words, the $10,000,000 which you are cutting up does not begin to pay for the handling of traffic, not saying anything about the building of streets and bridges.

I say it is very unfair, and I am looking at it in a different light than my colleague from Westmoreland, Senator Dent. I believe this bill was being held back so that proper consideration, and the public was not given an opportunity to hear it debated in both the House and Senate at length but as it is it was held back too long and, I might add, we just came through a holiday period in which I was told by an Esso distributor on the highway that yesterday they sold more gasoline than they have sold for the last six weeks, in one day. In the city of Pittsburgh alone, and along the route, people were filling up their gasoline tanks, people who did not even intend to run their machines, were rushing to fill up their tanks to save the one cent, and I say that we lost thousand and thousands of dollars by this neglect.

I do not think it is fair, gentlemen, for us to go back and say to the people that we are helping to relieve the local taxpayers, when in reality what we are doing is putting more expense on them.

We are considering now another truck bill, and another truck bill means one thing, it means more trucks on the highways and more trucks on the city streets, and again I say to you that if we continue to handle the motor vehicle fund as we are handling it, we are going to continue to impose additional burdens upon the people we like to talk about around election time, the little American that buys a home of his own. We punished him during the depression and now that the depression is over, we are still punishing him by adding more taxes to his already heavily overburdened local expenses, while at the same time we are not sharing the motor vehicle fund as they are doing in forty-seven other states. West Virginia, Maryland, New York and New Jersey return a fair share of the gasoline money, without strings, to the local community in which it is collected—they return a fair share of the drivers' licenses, they return a fair share of the owners' licenses, and we do not.

This $10,000,000 is simply a sop to try and make the people back home believe that this administration is trying to relieve the now heavily-burdened real estate owner.

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, I just want to make a few brief remarks concerning this matter.

First of all may I say that the necessity for haste did not originate in this chamber.

Secondly, Mr. President, I should like to say that the statement made by the gentleman from Westmoreland, concerning the fact that there may be a surplus in the highway fund, deserves more than just passing notice, for this reason, that instead of there being a surplus in the fund which might be made available for the purposes which he suggests, it is anticipated from every fair source, and has been so stated, that all of the moneys available in the highway fund at this time will be essential and necessary for carrying out the state highway program, and it is anticipated by the Secretary of Revenue that by January 1, 1949, six months before the end of the biennium, there will be no funds available for the carrying out of the highway program, if it continues according to the program that has been set up at this time.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

BILL ON CONCURRENCE IN HOUSE AMENDMENTS,
RECALLED FROM THE GOVERNOR

OVER IN ORDER

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that House Bill No. 438, on concurrence in House amendments, recalled from the Governor, entitled:

An Act to further amend section three of, and add section four to the act, approved the twenty-fourth day of May, one thousand eight hundred ninety-three (P. L. 129), entitled "An act to empower boroughs and cities to establish a police pension fund, to take property in trust therefor, and regulating and providing for the regulation of the same," deleting provisions relating to termination of right to participate in the fund and regulation thereof; and providing that compensation or pension is not to be subject to attachment, execution, assignment or transfer and payable only to the beneficiary designated go over in its order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

BILL ON CONCURRENCE IN HOUSE AMENDMENTS

Agreeably to order,

The Senate resumed the consideration of Senate Bill No. 78, as follows:

An Act to further amend clauses (k) (s) and (y) of section four and to reenact and further amend section three hundred one of the act approved the fifth day of December one thousand nine hundred thirty-six 1937 (P. L. 2897) entitled "An act establishing a system of unemployment compensation to be administered by the Department of Labor and Industry and its existing and newly created agencies with personnel (with certain exceptions) selected on a civil service basis requiring employers to keep records and make reports and certain employers to pay contributions based on payrolls to provide moneys for the payment of compensation to certain unemployed persons providing procedure and administrative details for the determination payment and collection of such contributions and the payments of such compensation providing for cooperation with the Federal Government and its agencies creating certain special funds in the custody of the State Treasurer and prescribing penalties" providing for modification of the manner in which employer contribution rates are determined and for a lag between the period on which contribution rates are based and the rate period and placing experience rating on a permanent basis

Section 1 Clauses (k) (s) and (y) of section four of the act approved the fifth day of December one thousand nine hundred thirty-six 1937 P. L. 2897) entitled "An act establishing a system of unemployment compensation to be administered by the Department of Labor and Industry and its existing and newly created agencies with personnel (with certain exceptions) selected on a civil service basis requiring employers to keep records and make reports and certain employers to pay contributions based on payrolls to provide moneys for the payment of compensation to certain unemployed persons providing procedure and administrative details for the determination payment and collection of such contributions and the payment of such compensation providing for cooperation with the Federal Government and its agencies creating certain special funds in the custody of the State Treasurer and prescribing penalties" as last amended by the act approved the twenty-ninth day of May one thousand nine hundred forty-five (P. L. 1145) are hereby further amended to read as follows

as used in this act shall have the following meanings unless the context clearly requires otherwise

(k) "Employer's Experience" means a percentage obtained by dividing the "Wages of a Compensated Employee" as defined in subsection (y) of this section paid by an employer to all of his compensated employees during the [last three calendar years] first twelve (12) of the last fourteen (14) completed calendar quarters immediately preceding the calendar year which includes the calendar quarter to which the contributing rate is applicable less any credit for reemployment with respect to benefit years ending prior to the first day of June one thousand nine hundred and forty-five which was credited to the employer during such [three calendar years] twelve (12) calendar quarters by the total wages paid by the employer to all his employees during such [three calendar years] twelve (12) calendar quarters Credit for reemployment previously allocated to a calendar year shall be deemed to have been allocated as of the last two calendar quarters of such calendar year

* * * * *

(s) "State Experience" means a percentage obtained by dividing the total amount of compensation paid from the Unemployment Compensation Fund less any refunds (including the repayment and recovery of compensation erroneously paid) made to such fund during the [last three completed calendar years] first twelve (12) of the last fourteen (14) completed calendar quarters immediately preceding the calendar year which includes the calendar quarter to which the contribution rate is applicable by the total wages of all compensated employees as defined in subsection (y) of this section for such [three calendar years] twelve (12) calendar quarters such percentage to be adjusted to the nearest multiple of one per centum

* * * * *

(y) "Wages of a Compensated Employee" with respect to each benefit year which begins prior to the first day of June one thousand nine hundred and forty-five means wages which were paid to the compensated employee by an employer of such employee in the base year immediately preceding the employee's benefit year and which wages shall be treated as though they had been paid in the calendar [year] quarter in which the first compensation of the employee's benefit year was paid and with respect to each benefit year which begins subsequent to the thirty-first day of May one thousand nine hundred and forty-five means the first one thousand three hundred and sixty-six dollars ($1,366) in wages which were paid to the compensated employee by any employer of such employee in the base year immediately preceding the employee's benefit year and which wages shall be treated as though they had been paid in the calendar [year] quarter in which that amount of compensation was paid which together with any amounts of compensation previously paid with respect to such benefit year equals at least three times the employee's weekly benefit rate

Section 2 Section three hundred one of said act as last amended by the act approved the twentieth day of May one thousand nine hundred forty-five (P. L. 1145) is hereby reenacted and further amended to read as follows

Section 301 Contributions by Employers Experience Rating.

[(a) Each employer shall pay contributions equal to the following percentages of wages paid or payable by him or it with respect to employment occurring prior to the first day of January one thousand nine hundred and forty-two

(1) Nine-tenths per centum with respect to employment occurring during the calendar year 1936

(2) One and eight-tenths per centum with respect to employment occurring during the calendar year 1937

(3) Two and seven-tenths per centum with respect to employment occurring during the calendar years 1938 1939 1940 and 1941

(b) Each employer shall pay contributions equal to two and seven-tenths per centum of wages paid by him or it with respect to employment occurring subsequent to the thirty-first day of December one thousand nine hundred and forty-one. Provided That notwithstanding the provisions of this section prior to the effective date of this amendment with respect to wages paid during the calendar year one thousand nine hundred and forty-four for employment occurring subsequent to the thirty-first day of December one thousand nine hundred and forty-one and with respect to wages paid during the calendar year one thousand nine hundred and forty-five for employment occurring subsequent to the thirty-first day of December one thousand nine hundred and forty-one such percentage may be adjusted according to the provisions of this act prior to the effective date of this amendment and Provided further That with respect to wages paid during the calendar year one thousand nine hundred and forty-six for employment occurring subsequent to the thirty-first day of December one thousand nine hundred and forty-one and with respect to wages paid during each calendar year thereafter for employment occurring subsequent to the thirty-first day of December one thousand nine hundred and forty-one such percentage may be adjusted between a minimum rate of one per centum and a maximum rate of two and seven-tenths per centum in accordance with the following provisions of this section if the employer had paid contributions under this act for one or more quarters in each of the five calendar years immediately preceding the year for which the rate is applicable. Notwithstanding the provisions of section three hundred eleven any employer who prior to the enactment of this amendment may have paid contributions on wages paid during the calendar year one thousand nine hundred forty-four or one thousand nine hundred forty-five for employment occurring prior to the first day of January one thousand nine hundred forty-four at a rate of two and seven-tenths per centum such employer shall not be entitled to a refund of any portion of such contributions paid on the basis that this amendment reduces the amount of contributions required to be paid with respect to such wages but such employer may make application for adjustment in connection with subsequent contribution payments as provided in section three hundred eleven of any amount which he has paid with respect to such wages which is in excess of the amount of contributions required to be paid with respect to such wages under the provisions of this act as amended. Except as specifically provided under section four hundred and four wages paid with respect to employment performed under Shipping Articles shall for the purposes of this act be considered as having been paid as of a date determined under rules and regulations of the department irrespective of when actual payment was made to the employee.

(a) Each employer shall pay contributions with respect to the calendar year one thousand nine hundred forty-eight and each calendar year thereafter at a rate equal to two and seven-tenths per centum of wages paid by him for employment provided however that such rate shall be adjusted in accordance with the following provisions of this section if the employer has paid contributions under this act for one or more quarters in each of the five calendar years immediately preceding the year for which the rate is applicable.

(a.1) Except as specifically provided under section four hundred four wages paid with respect to employment performed under shipping articles shall for the purposes of this act be considered as having been paid as of a date determined under rules and regulations of the department irrespective of when actual payment was made to the employee.

(b) Each employer with respect to any period prior to the first day of January one thousand nine hundred forty-eight shall be liable for contributions in accordance with the provisions of this act applicable to each period in effect prior to the effective date of this amendment and for these purposes such provisions shall remain in force and effect.

(c) The rate of contribution payable by an employer entitled to an adjustment between the minimum rate of one per centum and the maximum rate of two and seven-tenths per centum for each calendar year [commencing with the year one thousand nine hundred and forty-four] shall be determined prior to the due date of his first contribution for the year in accordance with the following table

(d) An employer's rate of contribution for each calendar year [commencing with the calendar year one thousand nine hundred and forty-four] shall be subject to adjustment as provided in clause (f) hereof be that specified at the end of the column in which on the line opposite the State Experience there [first] appears [a] the percentage [equal to or in excess of] nearest to the Employer's Experience. Provided That the rate of contribution of any employer whose Employer's Experience is in excess of the percentage appearing in column four on the line opposite the State Experience shall be two and seven-tenths per centum and Provided further That if the Employer's Experience of any employer computed to an infinite number of decimal places is exactly equally removed from two percentage figures which appear on the line opposite the State Experience the rate of contribution of such employer shall be the rate specified at the end of the column in which appears the higher of such two percentage figures. [If no percentage equal to or in excess of the Employer's Experience appears on such line his rate of contribution shall be two and seven-tenth per centum].

(e) No employer's rate of contribution for any calendar year [commencing with the calendar year one thousand nine hundred and forty-four] shall be less than two and seven-tenth per centum unless all his contributions due on wages paid to the end of the [third] second calendar quarter of the preceding calendar year together with interest and penalties due thereon have been paid by the thirty-first day of December of such preceding calendar year [and all his contributions on wages paid during the fourth calendar quarter of the preceding calendar year have been paid when due].

(f) Safety Factor To assure an adequate balance in the fund to meet the benefit payments which may be expected the employer's rate of contribution determined in accordance with paragraph (d) of this section shall be adjusted in accordance with the following table if at the end of any calendar quarter [commencing with the calendar quarter ending the thirty-first day of March one thousand nine hundred and forty-four] the balance in the Unemployment Trust Fund to the credit of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is less than eight and one tenth per centum of the total wages of all employees paid during the first four of the last five computed calendar quarters as reported to the department by the end of the last completed calendar quarter immediately preceding the calendar quarter at the end of which such adjustment is to be made

(g) Successor-in-interest (1) Pursuant to rules adopted by the department an employer who prior to the first day of January one thousand nine hundred and forty-six acquires an organization trade or business in whole or in part from another employer shall immediately notify the department and for the purpose of ascertaining the rate of contribution of the succeeding employer his "Employer's Experience" shall include that of the prior employer as related to the whole or part of the organization trade or business acquired. Such a succeeding employer shall receive full credit for the years during which the former employer made contributions as to the organization trade or business acquired.

(2) An employer who subsequent to the thirty-first day of December one thousand nine hundred and forty-five transfers his or its organization trade or business in whole or in part to a successor-in-interest may jointly make application with such successor-in-interest for transfer of the "Employer's Experience" of the preceding employer to the successor-in-interest including credit for the years during which contributions were paid by the preceding employer. The department may allow such transfer of "Employer's Experience" pursuant to rules and regulations adopted by the department only if it finds that the "Employer's Experience" of the preceding employer with respect to the organization trade or business or part thereof as the case may be which has been transferred may be considered indicative of the future "Employer's Experience" of the successor-in-interest. In the event of a part transfer of an employer's organization trade or business only that portion of the "Employer's Experience" relating to the portion of the organization trade or business transferred shall be transferred and credit shall be given to the successor-in-interest only for the years during which contributions were paid by the preceding employer with respect to that part of the organization trade or business transferred. A transfer of "Employer's Experience" in whole or in part having been applied for and approved by the department the preceding employer thereafter shall not be entitled to consideration for an adjusted rate based upon his experience or part thereof as the case may be which has been thus transferred.

(h) The department shall promptly notify each employer of his rate of contributions for the calendar year determined as provided in this section and for each calendar quarter when modifications in rates are made in accordance with paragraph (f). The department shall furnish each employer with a statement showing the base year wages from such employer of each of his compensated employees and the benefit year to which such wages relate. The determination of the department shall become conclusive and binding upon the employer unless within thirty days after the mailing of notice thereof to the employer's last known post office address the employer files an application for review and redetermination setting forth his reasons therefor. The department may if it deems the reasons set forth by the employer insufficient to change the rate of contribution deny the application otherwise it shall grant the employer a fair hearing. The employer shall be promptly notified of the denial of his application or of the department's redetermination both of which shall become final and conclusive within thirty days after the mailing of notice thereof to the employer's last known post office address unless the employer shall appeal by petition from the action of the department to the Court of Common Pleas of Dauphin County within such time.

(i) The petition filed in the Court of Common Pleas of Dauphin County shall set forth the reasons why the employer deems the rate of contribution determined by the department is incorrect. No questions shall be raised in any such petition except such as were set forth in the application for review and redetermination by the department. A copy of the petition shall be served on the secretary or his deputy. The court shall fix a time for hearing the petition and after hearing shall enter such order affirming or changing the rate of contribution determined by the department as to it appears just and proper. From the decision of the court an appeal may be taken by the department or the employer to the Supreme or Superior Court as in other cases.

(j) Pending the determination of the correct rate of contribution payable by an employer where an appeal to court has been taken the employer shall be liable to the payment of the contributions at the rate as determined by the department. But if the rate of contribution is changed by order of court then the department shall without application by the employer make an adjustment thereof in connection with subsequent contribution payments as provided in section three hundred eleven of this act or the employer may apply for a refund in accordance with said section.

(k) Each employer shall be given notice of the filing of applications for benefits by his former employees as provided in section five hundred one. Notice having been properly given as provided in such section no employer shall have standing in any proceeding involving his rate of contributions to contest the chargeability to his account of any wages of a compensated employee on the grounds that he was not given sufficient or adequate notice or opportunity to be heard.

(1) The provisions of this section shall be effective only for the duration of the present war and thereafter until the end of the calendar year in which occurs the beginning of the first regular session of the Legislature which meets after the President of the United States declares that the present state of war no longer exists.

(i) For purposes of determining whether or not an employer has paid contributions in each of the five calendar years immediately preceding the year for which a rate is applicable as provided in subsection (b) of this section in order to be eligible for consideration for an adjusted rate an employer who shall have served in the active military or naval service of the United States at any time after the sixteenth day of September one thousand nine hundred and forty and prior to the termination of the present war and who shall have been discharged or released from active service under conditions other than dishonorable shall be deemed to have paid contributions under this act during any calendar year any part of which is included in such period of military or naval service provided that he has actually paid contributions under this act for one or more quarters in either the calendar year in which he entered such military service or in the immediately preceding calendar year.

Section 3 The provisions of this act shall become effective the first day of January one thousand nine hundred forty-eight

BILL ON CONCURRENCE IN HOUSE AMENDMENTS

Agreeably to order,

The Senate resumed the consideration of Senate Bill No. 318, entitled:

An Act validating and confirming titles to real estate conveyed by cities of the third class unless proceedings to attack such sales are instituted within six years after the effective date of this act which was returned from the House of Representatives with amendments.

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do concur in the amendments made by the House to Senate Bill No. 318.

Mr. STEVENSON. Mr. President, I second the motion
On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. WOODRING. Mr. President, this is a bill sponsored by the gentleman from Clinton, Senator Stevenson, and myself, and I am afraid that the amendment which has been written into the bill by the House makes the bill rather ineffective.

Therefore, Mr. President, I would suggest that we hold its concurrence over for one day, if that meets with the approval of the gentlemen on the other side.

Will the gentleman from Lehigh withdraw his motion?

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 500, as follows:

An Act to add sections ninety-eight and ninety-nine to the act approved the second day of May one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 1278) entitled "An act relating to counties of the second third fourth fifth sixth seventh and eighth classes and revising amending and consolidating the laws relating thereto" authorizing and regulating the formation of a state association by prothonotaries and clerks of the court of quarter sessions and providing that certain expenses are to be paid by the counties

Section 1 Article three of the act approved the second day of May one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 1278) entitled "An act relating to counties of the second third fourth fifth sixth seventh and eighth classes and revising amending and consolidating the laws relating thereto" is hereby amended by adding thereto section ninety-eight and ninety-nine as follows

7 Prothonotaries and Clerks of the Court

Section 98 Formation of State Association Authorized The prothonotaries and clerks of courts of quarter sessions of the several counties of this Commonwealth are hereby authorized to organize themselves into a state association with the power to hold annual meetings at such time and place within the State as they may designate for the purpose of securing more uniformity and cooperation in the conduct of their offices and improving their services to the public

Section 99 Expenses Time Limit The actual expenses of the prothonotaries and clerks of the court attending the meetings of the state association including traveling expenses at five cents (5c) per mile and hotels bills not exceeding ten dollars ($10) per day actually paid by them going to attending and returning from annual meetings of the association shall be paid by the county of which he or she is an officer drawn on the treasurer thereof. The time spent in attending such meetings shall not be more than three days exclusive of the time employed in traveling thereto and therefrom. The expenses of the annual meeting of the association including printing committee expenses and stenographers shall be paid by the respective counties but shall not exceed twenty-five dollars per annum for each county in addition to the traveling expenses hereinbefore provided.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, just expressing a personal opinion in matters of this kind, House Bill 500 authorizes the creation of a new state-wide organization for prothonotaries and clerks of courts. I believe, after the few years I have spent here in Harrisburg, that I have made up my mind, anyway, regarding the creation of these organizations of elected officials that are elected for four-year terms, that there is no continuity of organization whatsoever, and in the main they are used to come to Harrisburg to lobby State Senate and House of Representatives into passing legislation for the benefit, not of the offices they hold but of the individuals who hold office. I think I can speak very plainly in this matter, since both offices in my county are held by members of my party, and therefore there is no method to my approach to the thing that might be considered political.

I believe it is time that we eliminate, instead of create this type of set-up of state-financed organizations that come to Harrisburg to confuse the members of the Legislature.

I promised myself that I would never vote for the creation of another lobby of elected officials and pay them out of our own funds and therefore I am going to keep that promise. I have made another promise, that if ever the opportunity comes to eliminate the existing county lobbies that come down here, I will vote for that too.

BILLS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE DEFEATED

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 690, entitled:

An Act relating to costs in desertion and non-support cases placing said costs upon defendants and imposing duties upon courts and certain county officers

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President and members of the Senate, the remarks I am about to make apply equally to Senate Bill 690 and the next bill on the calendar, Senate Bill 691.

I would like to start out by reading from a throw-out by the Public Charities Association of Pennsylvania which, I think, explains the objections to the bill as well as anything I have seen.

"These bills provide that the defendant shall pay an additional sum in the amount of five per cent of the support order, to be paid to the county to help defray the expenses of collection and disbursement of funds collected in the order for support. It should be pointed out that this feature of the bills is an innovation. The purpose evidently is to provide additional revenue by making a charge for the collection of support orders.

"By law support orders are now collected without fee through probation officers whose services are a legitimate charge upon the county. In the process of collecting the court orders the probation officers at the same time help the family by making adjustments of family difficulties and, in the case of unmarried mothers, by assisting in the solution of the problem.

"We fear that the proposed statute would make this process of family and child welfare adjustment more difficult by setting up a fee system for collections. It seems unjust to charge a fee to the man who pays his court order promptly and regularly. It is a question, moreover, whether the bill would not defeat the purpose of existing legislation, which is primarily to render a service to the families of unmarried mothers for whose benefit the court makes its court orders."

I would like to add, Mr. President and members of the Senate, that this will create a problem in the city of Philadelphia. I am not familiar with how these things operate in the other counties, but I do know that the officials of the Municipal Court in the county of Philadelphia, and the judges, have indicated to me that there will be a tremendous problem here, first, in assessing the support order, which primarily is for the benefit of wives and children, and children of unwed mothers, that the courts will of necessity have to take into account, in making assessments against the defendant, the fact that he will also have to pay the additional five per cent. This means that in the final analysis the five per cent will come out of the moneys that the wives and the unwed mothers and the children may eventually get from the defendant.

Secondly, Mr. President, the bill provides for an assessment which, however, can not be collected unless and until the support order is paid in full. This will encourage delinquencies because each defendant soon will come to learn that in the event he stays just a little bit behind in his support order the county will not be able to collect the five per cent from him.

In the third place, Mr. President, there is no provision in the bill for collection of the five per cent in the event that the defendant does not pay the five per cent.

In the final analysis, Mr. President, I repeat, that the five per cent, or so much of it as is collected, will come from the mothers and the children and the Department of Public Assistance, which in many instances supplements the orders that the Court imposes, at least in the city of Philadelphia, and for that reason I ask my colleagues on both sides of the Senate to vote this proposal down.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, on these two bills—and what I say will apply to the next bill on the calendar as well as this one—statistics of the courts show, so I have been advised by the judges that handle these types of cases, that about ninety-nine out of a hundred defendants can not afford to pay this five per cent and that merely means that their wives and children will be deprived of that money, in favor of the county.

I think the courts should be open and free to all, and especially to those people who can not afford to pay this five per cent.

When a sheriff goes out and collects a judgment, no five per cent is taken from that, and I see no reason why these people, even if they are willing to pay voluntarily, should have to pay five per cent to the county, which should be done by the public to take care of them.

Mr. RAHAUSER. Mr. President, these bills were designed to aid the county in bringing those people who are delinquent up to date; it was designed to cut off delinquency; it was designed to remedy the very situation that the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Rosenfeld, and the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, have spoken about. I believe they have an arroneous conception of the meaning of the bill, and, while I realize that they have taken this matter into full consideration, I believe the import of the bill will do quite the opposite.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I would just like to say a word in answer to the statement of the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Rahauser, who stated that these bills were designed to keep those people who were in arrears up to date, to bring their delinquencies up to date. If that is the purpose of the bills, they should so state, because the way the bills are now written, even though the people that are defendants pay on time, they still have to pay the five per cent.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

Section 1 Section one thousand one hundred one of the act approved the ninth day of April one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 343) entitled "An act relating to the finances of the State government providing for the settlement assessment collection and lien of taxes bonus and all other accounts due the Commonwealth the collection and recovery of fees and other money or property due or belonging to the Commonwealth or any agency thereof including escheated property and the proceeds of its sale the custody and disbursement or other disposition of funds and securities belonging to or in the possession of the Commonwealth and the settlement of claims against the Commonwealth the resettlement of accounts and appeals to the courts refunds of moneys erroneously paid to the Commonwealth auditing the accounts of the Commonwealth and all agencies thereof of all public officers collecting moneys payable to the Commonwealth or any agency thereof and all receipts of appropriations from the Commonwealth and imposing penalties affecting every department board commission and officer of the State government every political subdivision of the State and certain officers of such subdivisions every person association and corporation required to pay assess or collect taxes or to make returns of reports under the laws imposing taxes for State purposes or to pay license fees or other moneys to the Commonwealth or any agency thereof every State depository and every debtor or creditor of the Commonwealth" is hereby amended to read as follows

Section 1101 Notice of Settlement (a) Promptly after the date of any settlement the Department of Revenue shall send by mail or otherwise a copy thereof to the party with whom or with which the settlement was made

(b) Promptly after the date of any settlement which the Department of the Auditor General and the Treasury Department are by this act authorized to make the Department of the Auditor General shall send by mail or otherwise a copy thereof to the party with whom or with which the settlement was made

(c) Where the Secretary of the Commonwealth claims that bonus is due from any domestic corporation under any act of Assembly and such claim is disputed the Secretary of the Commonwealth shall make a settlement for the amount of bonus claimed to be due and shall send by mail or otherwise a copy thereof to the party with which the settlement is made

Section 2 Section one thousand one hundred two of said act as last amended by the act approved the nineteenth day of April one thousand nine hundred forty-five (P. L. 259) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 1102 Petition for Resettlement Within ninety

(90) days after the date upon which the copy of any settlement was mailed to the party with whom or with which the settlement was made such party or the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania may file with the department which made it a petition for resettlement

Every petition for resettlement shall fully state the reasons which the petitioner believes entitle him or it to such resettlement

It shall be the duty of the department with which the petition was filed within six (6) months after the date of any settlement to dispose of any petition for resettlement

In the case of petitions for resettlement filed with the Department of Revenue the disposition of the petition shall be subject to the approval of the Department of the Auditor General as in the case of original settlements and if the two departments shall be unable to agree the case shall be submitted to the Board of Finance and Revenue by the Department of Revenue. The Board of Finance and Revenue shall decide every such case within three (3) months from the date of the submission thereof and in case of its failure to reach a decision within such period the disposition of the Department of Revenue shall automatically become valid and the Board of Finance and Revenue shall immediately return to the Department of Revenue all of the papers appertaining to the case

In the case of petitions for resettlement filed with the Department of the Auditor General the petition shall be disposed of by the joint action of that department and of the Treasury Department as in the case of original settlements

In the case of petitions for resettlements filed with the Department of State the petition shall be disposed of solely by that department

Notice of the action taken upon any petition for a resettlement shall be given to the petitioner promptly after the date of resettlement by the department with which the petition was filed

Section 3 Section one thousand one hundred three of said act as last amended by the act approved the seventh day of May one thousand nine hundred forty-five (P. L. 259) and the act approved the fifteenth day of May one thousand nine hundred forty-five (P. L. 528) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 1103 Petition to Board of Finance and Revenue for Review Within sixty days after the date of mailing of notice by the Department of Revenue or of the Auditor General or of the Department of State of the action taken on any petition for a resettlement filed with it the party with whom the settlement was made or the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania may by petition request the Board of Finance and Revenue to review such action

Every petition for review filed hereunder either shall state specifically therein the reasons upon which the petitioner relies or shall incorporate by reference the petition for resettlement in which such reasons shall have been stated. The petition shall be supported by affidavit that it is not made for the purpose of delay and that the facts therein set forth are true. If the petitioner be a corporation joint-stock association or limited partnership the affidavit must be made by one of the principal officers thereof. A petition for review may be amended by the petitioner at any time prior to the hearing thereon as hereinafter provided

The Board of Finance and Revenue shall list and hear such petitions within three months after they have been received and shall act finally in disposition of such petitions within six months after they have been received and in the event of the failure of the Board of Finance and Revenue to dispose of any such petition within six months the action taken upon the petition for resettlement shall be deemed sustained

The Board of Finance and Revenue may sustain the action taken on the petition for resettlement or it may resettle the account upon such basis as it shall deem according to law and equity

Notice of the action of the Board of Finance and Revenue shall be given by mail or otherwise to all departments involved and to the petitioner

Section 4 Section one thousand one hundred eight of said act as amended by the act approved the fifteenth day of May one thousand nine hundred forty-five (P. L. 528) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 1108 Payment of Accounts Without Prejudice to Right of Resettlement Review and Appeal

Any person association corporation public officer or other debtor who or which is required to make to the Department of Revenue a report upon the basis of which any bonus tax or other charge is to be settled or assessed shall have the right at any time to pay to the Department of Revenue the amount of any bonus tax or other charge due or deemed by him or them to be due with interest if any as is then due and payable thereon without prejudice to his or their right to present and prosecute a petition for resettlement or redetermination to the Department of Revenue a petition for review to the Board of Finance and Revenue or an appeal to the court of common pleas of Dauphin County in the manner and within the times provided by law

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 784, as follows:

An Act making an appropriation to the Board of Finance and Revenue from the State Stores Fund for refund of distillers' licenses

Section 1 The sum of one thousand dollars ($1000) or as much thereof as may be necessary is hereby specifically appropriated from the State Stores Fund during the two fiscal years beginning June first one thousand nine hundred forty-seven to the Board of Finance and Revenue for the payment of approved claims for refund of distillers' licenses for any year following one thousand nine hundred forty-four

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Cumberland permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WADE. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I have to compliment the gentleman from Cumberland, Mr. Wade, that this bill is not an insurance bill, but I just want to know how the gentleman from Cumberland got into the lawyer's racket.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair rules the comment of the gentleman from Allegheny out of order.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Cumberland explain what this bill does?

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, this bill refers to distillers' excess license fees already paid in error.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, why was this not paid without a special bill? I understand that is regular routine when anyone pays in excess.

Mr. WADE. I understand differently, Mr. President; it can not be refunded without a special act of the Legislature.

Mr. HOLLAND. Did the gentleman from Cumberland say it could be refunded without a special act of Legislature?

Mr. WADE. It can not be, Mr. President.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, are there not refunds being made every day without an act of the Legislature?

Mr. WADE. Not to my knowledge.

Mr. HOLLAND. Through error, within six months?

Mr. WADE. I do not so understand it.

Mr. HOLLAND. Is this just one distiller? Where is that distiller located?

Mr. WADE. I am not so informed, but this bill comes from the Liquor Control Board.

Mr. HOLLAND. It is a legalized distiller, not a boot-legger then, is it not?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I raise a point of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Cumberland will state his point of order.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I understand that interrogations of members should be addressed to the Chair; is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair rules the point of order of the gentleman from Cumberland is well taken.

Mr. HOLLAND. I agree it is well taken, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Allegheny will direct his inquiries to the Chair.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, what I would like to get from Senator Wade is why is it necessary to introduce this bill for a refund on one distiller's license? In the thirteen years I have been here I have never yet seen a bill on any calendar in which any distiller was given a refund by the state.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, the gentleman is entirely incorrect. On Page 2, Line 1, it is plural, not singular; the word "distillers" is plural, not singular.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, will Senator Wade tell me what is the license fee for one distiller? I would say he must be an expert on distillers from the way he explains this bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Allegheny will confine his remarks to the bill.

Mr. HOLLAND. Will the gentleman from Cumberland tell the Senate what is the fee for a distiller's license.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, that is determined by the amount that the distiller proposes to distill.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I will accept the answer.

I still do not quite understand why we have the bill here, as I have been told that they have the power now to refund this money, and I really do not see the necessity of a Senate bill making that provision.

Mr. WADE. In order that this matter will be a little more clearly defined, Mr. President, let me read as follows:

"Under the law of Pennsylvania, a distillery pays an initial fee of $2500.00 per annum for a distillery license, which permits an annual production of 500,000 gallons or less. After the original license is issued, it is the practice for a distillery to apply for an amended license when the annual production will exceed 500,000 gallons. There is no limit on the number of amended licenses which any distillery may apply for and receive in any one year. The Act provides for an additional fee of $100 for each 100,000 proof gallons or fraction thereof in excess of 500,000 proof gallons.

"It is not demanded that these amended licenses be applied for until the excess gallonage is actually produced. The Liquor Control Board makes an annual audit of each distillery, and if it is found that any distillery has produced a greater gallonage than the license, or amended license permits, then an amended license is applied for to cover this additional production.

"The purpose of this bill is to refund to three distilleries the excess license fees paid by said distilleries over and above the amount actually produced in the year 1945. For example, one distillery by its last amended license had an authorized production of 8,000 proof gallons, and it actually produced, according to the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board audit, 7,406,308.77 proof gallons, which left a balance of 593,691.23 proof gallons. In this case we are asking for a refund of $500. The company will lose its right to produce 93,691.23 proof gallons, as it produced a fraction of the 100,000 proof gallons of which this sum would be a part.

"We feel that these distilleries are entitled to this refund inasmuch as none of the liquor was actually produced, and it was not necessary to obtain amended licenses to permit this production until it had been actually produced. This was an error, or overzealousness on the part of the companies."

I hope, Mr. President, that this satisfactorily explains the bill before us.

Mr. HOLLAND: I wish to thank the gentleman from Cumberland for his explanation of the bill.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

be recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary General, for the purpose of further study.

Mr. BECKER. Mr. President, I second the motion. The motion was agreed to.

BILL ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with.

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 106, entitled:

An Act to amend the title of and the act approved the twenty-fourth day of May one thousand nine hundred forty-five (P. L. 967) entitled "An act making it unlawful for any individual or individuals to carry on any business under an assumed or fictitious name style or designation unless upon advertisement and the filing of an application to that effect in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth and of the prothonotary requiring nonresident applicants to have a resident agent prescribing the effect of failure to file such application providing that certificates of the Secretary of the Commonwealth shall be admitted in evidence requiring county commissioners at the expense of the county to provide books or other means of reproduction for the entry of such applications requiring the cancellation of such application or the withdrawal from the business providing methods therefor fixing the fees of the Secretary of the Commonwealth and prothonotary and providing penalties" including corporations within the provisions thereof

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

BILL ON SECOND READING, AMENDMENTS OFFERED

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with.

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 195, entitled:

An Act prohibiting discrimination in rate of pay because of sex conferring powers and imposing duties on the Department of Labor and Industry and prescribing penalties

And said bill having been read at length the second time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on second reading?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I desire to offer two sets of amendments to House Bill 195. I would like to separate the amendments so that a vote can be taken on each set.

The first set of amendments puts the employer in the position where he must pay damages totaling unpaid wages when found guilty of violation of the Act.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Section 4, page 4, line 1, by inserting after the word "wages" the following: "and damages equal to the unpaid wages;" Amend Section 4, page 4, line 7, by inserting after the word "wages" the following: "and damages."

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I would like to have the amendments read again because, as I listened to them, I understood that after the word "wages", Line 1, Page 4 there was to be an insertion and, Mr. President, there is no such word as "wages" on Line 1, Page 4.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, the gentleman from Delaware has the wrong copy. The copy I sent to the desk is in conformity with the bill. Line 1, Section 4, on Page 4, is what is amended.

(The Senate was at ease)

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, my question has not yet been answered. I have here a copy of the amendment which says "amend Line 1, Page 4 by inserting after the word 'wages' the following," and there is no word "wages" on Line 1, Page 4.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, the gentleman's question is a technical one. The first line of Section 4 contains the word "wages". If it has to be changed so as to say, Line 4, Page 4, Section 4, I can easily do that. If that is the only drawback to acceptance of the amendment I will be glad to change that wording.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. HEYBURN, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—16

So the question was determined in the negative.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on second reading?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I offer the following amendments and ask for their immediate adoption.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Section 2, page 2, lines 16 to 20 inclusive by striking out all of said lines; Amend Section 2, page 3, lines 1 to 10 inclusive by striking out all of said lines; Amend Section 4, page 4, line 5, by striking out the words, "willfully and knowingly"; Amend Section 4, page 5, lines 6 to 16 inclusive, by striking out all of said lines; Amend Section 7, page 6, line 10 by striking out the words, "willfully and"; Amend Section 7, page 6, line 11, by striking out the word "knowingly"; Amend Section 7, page 7, lines 3 to 12, inclusive by striking out all of said lines.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I rise on a parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Westmoreland will proceed.

Mr. DENT. Is it the intention of the Chair to have all the amendments read and then voted on at one time?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is the intention, if the gentleman from Westmoreland so desires.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, these amendments put the bill back into the identical form that it was in when it was introduced by the sponsor of the bill. The amendments that I am trying to strike from the bill at this time are weakening amendments. This is the only bill that has come before the Senate during this session of the Legislature that may be termed as beneficial to one segment of labor in the Commonwealth.

This bill is supposed to guarantee equal wages for equal work when women perform the same work as men. At the time House Bill 35, which removed the restrictions from the hours of work of women, was up before the Senate, I said at that time that if there were any excuse at all for passage of that bill, it would have to be coupled with a bill that would provide equal wages for equal work. The Senate voted down my proposal at that time to hold that bill upon the calendar until this bill arrived in the Senate.

However, the Governor of the Commonwealth, when he received House Bill 35, took the identical position that I presented upon the floor, and sent the bill back to the House with the statement that he would not sign House Bill 35 until House Bill 195 had been presented to him. He felt too, that if women were going to work all hours of the day and night, that young men who compete with them for jobs should not be put at a disadvantage because of the differential in wages paid to women.

When House Bill 195 was introduced it would have guaranteed that very thing, but if the members of the Senate will read this present bill with the amendments put in, with an open mind, they will see that the real meat of the thing is that this bill shall not be applicable where there is an existing contract and women have a lower wage scale than men. Well, the existing contracts were contracted for and were agreed to when the law of the Commonwealth was as it now is.

But if we are going to correct a situation in the Commonwealth, we must make it applicable to all employes who come within the meaning of the bill, and I therefore take the position, Mr. President, that the bill ought to be restored to its original form in that instance.

On Page 4 and Page 7 the words "wilfully and knowingly" are introduced into the bill as an excuse for an employer who violates the act. Every amendment that has been added to this bill makes it easier for the employer to circumvent the features of the bill and deny equal pay for equal work to women in industry.

On Pages 4 and 5, Lines 6 to 16 inclusive, you will find that you are reincorporating into this bill the old-time yellow dog labor contract—you are doing it by different language, but just as sure as we are members of this Senate this evening, that is exactly what it does, because it compels an employee who has been aggrieved by an employer who does not live up to the Act of Legislature, by refusing to pay equal pay for equal work, it puts that employee in the position of being hammered into line by the employer, by the threat of losing her job, by allowing her to sign an agreement terminating any claim that she may have against that employer for any loss of wages.

There is no excuse whatsoever for the introduction of these amendments to this bill. If we are going to give equal pay, then let us give equal pay. We are in the peculiar position that it will in effect give some measure of assistance to some of the employes of the Commonwealth, and in all probability we will be forced to vote for the bill because it is a step forward.

However, that does not take away from it the onus of being a very badly drawn piece of legislation, and one designed to give the employers in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania a double-edged sword over their employes, where there are females employes.

I say to you, Mr. President and members of this Senate, this is not good legislation as it is now printed. It is not good legislation, but if the Republican members of the Senate intend to vote for it, we on the Democratic side will be forced by circumstances to vote for the bill, because, as I have stated, it is a step forward, but if you want to do a decent thing and an honorable thing in the matter of female employes in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, then accept the amendments I have just offered, taking from the bill the obnoxious amendments that have been introduced into it.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, for the sake of the record I believe it should be brought to the attention of the Senate and the press who are the sponsors of these amendments.

These amendments were sponsored by the Bell Telephone Company, and anyone knows that just quite recently the Bell Telephone Company had quite an industrial dispute, and one of the reasons why they had that industrial dispute was that some years ago when the Bell Telephone Company was in the stage of organization, the company fostered, as much as possible, a company union and in fostering a company union they also saw to it that employees were divided into many unions within the Bell Telephone Company so that at no time could there be any unified action by the employees.

This bill, as amended, would protect the Bell Telephone Company. Anyone knows they are large employers of women, and this bill would permit women employed by the Bell Telephone Company to receive less money than men for doing the same type of work.

I believe these amendments should be taken out of the bill, if we are sincere in saying that women doing the same type of work as men should receive the same pay, and I ask the members of the Senate to show their sincerity by voting for the amendments offered by the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Dent, which will take out these amendments, about which, by the way, Mrs. Myers, who was one of the sponsors of the bill, phoned me and said the amendments will make this bill an illegitimate bill instead of legitimate bill.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. DENT and were as follows, viz:

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 932, entitled:

An Act authorizing the Department of Property and Supplies with the approval of the Governor and the Board of Trustees of the Harrisburg State Hospital to acquire by purchase or condemnation proceedings certain tracts of land for the use of said hospital and making an appropriation therefor

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. TALLMAN offered the following amendment:

Amend Sec. 1, page 2, line 4, by striking out the words "Middle Paxton" and inserting in lieu thereof "Susquehanna".

It was agreed to.

The section was agreed to as amended.

The second, third, fourth and fifth sections and title were read and agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length and agreed to, as amended.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order.

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 952, entitled:

An Act to further amend the act approved the fifth day of December one thousand nine hundred thirty-six (Pamphlet Laws 1937 page 2897) entitled "An act establishing a system of unemployment compensation to be administered by the Department of Labor and Industry and its existing and newly created agencies with personnel (with certain exceptions) selected on a civil service basis requiring employers to keep records and make reports and certain employers to pay contributions based on payrolls to provide moneys for the payment of compensation to certain unemployed persons providing procedure and administrative details for the determination payment and collection of such contributions and the payment of such compensation providing for cooperation with the Federal Government and its agencies creating certain special funds in the custody of the State Treasurer and prescribing penalties" by further defining employees eligible to compensation by providing for increases in the duration of benefits by changing the manner in which compromises are to be made and by providing a prison sentence for individuals fraudulently claiming benefits.

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. BERGER offered the following amendments:

Amend Section 2, page 7, line 12, by inserting a bracket before the part-word "sus-"; Amend Section 2, page 7, line 13, by inserting after the part-word "pension" the following: "[stoppage"; Amend Section 2, page 7, line 13, by striking out "resulting from an industrial" and inserting in lieu thereof "which exists because of a labor"; Amend Section 2, page 7, line 15, by inserting a bracket before the word "as"; Amend Section 2, page 7, by inserting at the end of line 16 the following: "I Provided, That this subsection shall not apply if it is shown that (1) he is not participating in or directly interested in the labor dispute which caused the stoppage of work and (2) he does not belong to a grade or class of workers of which immediately before the commencement of the stoppage there were members employed at the premises at which the stoppage occurs, any of whom are participating in or directly interested in the dispute provided that if in any case separate branches of work which are commonly conducted as separate businesses in separate premises are conducted in separate departments of the same premises each such department shall for the purpose of this subsection be deemed to be a separate factory establishing or other premises".

They were agreed to.

The section was agreed to as amended.

The third and fourth sections and title were read and agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length the second time, and agreed to, as amended.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I agreed to those amendments and I hope I get the same consideration for mine. I offer the following amendments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. House Bill No. 952 has passed.

Mr. DENT. I am sorry but the Chair put the bill through with so much speed I could not get my amendments introduced.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the gentleman from Westmoreland desire to offer amendments to House Bill No. 952?

Mr. DENT. Yes, Mr. President.

RECONSIDERATION OF HOUSE BILL No. 952

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, in order that the gentleman from Westmoreland may have opportunity to offer his amendments, I move that the Senate do now reconsider the vote by which House Bill No. 952, passed second reading.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, I voted with the majority.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I voted with the majority.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on second reading, as amended?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I desire to offer amendments at this time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Amend Section 2, page 5, line 16, by striking out the bracket before the word "Provided"; Amend Section 2, page 5, line 18, by striking out the bracket after the word "member"; Amend Section 2, page 6, line 1, by striking out the bracket before the word "of"; Amend

Section 2, page 6, line 5, by striking out the bracket after the word "conditions".

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I request that my colleagues vote down the amendments.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, these amendments are very serious amendments. They deal with the vital question of unemployment compensation. The answer that you give on your vote on these amendments determines your position on unemployment compensation and the philosophy behind the application of the Unemployment Compensation Law.

Unemployment compensation was never designed, in any instance, as anything but a measure to keep up the purchasing power in a given community when adverse conditions set in, so that the ball of depression would not get started rolling down hill at such a speed we could never stop it.

Those of us who were in on the original introduction and sponsorship of the unemployment compensation laws in Pennsylvania, introduced that legislation with a clear-cut mandate before us. The people of this great nation and of this Commonwealth of ours were in very dire straits due to a depression over which they had no control whatsoever.

The amendments that I have just introduced would strike out of this bill, House Bill 952, the provision that takes away from men and women in industrial disputes their compensation benefits. Some person or group of persons, some organization or group of organizations, have misled the people of this Commonwealth into the belief that strike benefits, unemployment compensation benefits, paid to strikers is the determining factor in the prolongation of an industrial dispute. I challenge that statement, Mr. President, because in the experience that we have had in this Commonwealth, no person has been able to point out to me, or to anybody else, where in any single instance the question of unemployment compensation benefits was the determining factor in the termination of an industrial dispute. On the other hand, I know of a case in which I was personally connected, where an industrial dispute ended the very week that the men who were unemployed because of a strike were to receive their initial unemployment compensation check. When a strike goes into the sixth week there is something more fundamental, there is something of a graver situation at stake than the mere payment of an unemployment compensation check. Any person in this room who has ever had any dealings whatsoever in a labor dispute knows that when a strike has transpired and has gone on for a period of six weeks, the question of unemployment compensation payment does not enter into the settlement at all.

Strikes are not called in order that men and women may receive compensation checks. Strikes are called because something has happened in the labor relationship between employer and employe that has gone beyond the mere settlement of that particular dispute.

Therefore, Mr. President, I have introduced this first set of amendments to reinstate that part of the law that they are trying to strike out, which deprives men and women, who are unemployed because of a labor dispute for a period of six weeks, of their unemployment compensation.

I might say in passing, Mr. President, that what you are doing with this particular amendment is again catering to that scavenger type of industry whose entire welfare depends upon the health and the welfare of the basic industries in this Commonwealth and which are very seldom, if ever, in conflict with a strike dispute, and therefore, Mr. President, I say to you that the basic industries and the people of Pennsylvania will pay for this type of legislation, because those persons who are deprived of unemployment compensation will only be put upon the relief rolls of the Commonwealth, to be paid out of the common till. There is no other method by which their families can be taken care of. You are again catering to that group of industries that enjoy, because of the nature of their employment, a static employment schedule, but those of us who are interested in the heavy basic and durable goods industries which have fluctuating employes, know they have labor disputes, and so long as one man works for another, so long as one man works with his hands and another with his financial backing, there are going to be labor disputes, whether we pass one or a thousand laws, and the only thing that we can do, I believe, is to make it possible for everybody to exist on somewhere near an even keel when such disruptions come into our labor relations picture and I am requesting that the members of this Senate consider seriously this legislation and these amendments at this time.

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, I merely want to say to the gentleman from Westmoreland that every one of the amendments he has just offered have already been adopted in the amendments introduced by the gentleman from Potter, Senator Berger.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, my amendments include that portion of his amendments which deal with a strike-bound plant, where the employe is locked out of his particular job position, because there is a labor dispute involving another section of the same plant and that has been adopted, that is true.

However, Mr. President, the other features of the bill would put under the Unemployment Compensation Act those individuals who are directly connected with and participating in the labor dispute. The amendments of the gentleman from Potter, which he was kind enough to show me and which I readily agreed to on behalf of the Democratic caucus, would pay unemployment compensation benefits to persons who are not directly connected or participating in a labor dispute. That is true and has been amended and corrected.

However, the main primary question that we are now concerned with is the question of whether or not we are going to substitute direct relief out of the pockets of innocent bystanders in a labor dispute, or whether we are going to assess against both the employes and the employers in a strike-bound plant the cost of maintaining the families of the individuals who are on strike at any time.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. DENT, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—16

Barr,	Holland,	Leader,	Ruth,
Dent,	Jaspan,	Margie,	Stiefel,
DiSilvestro,	Klein,	Rahausen,	Tarr,
Haluska,	Lane,	Rosenfeld,	Woodring,

NAYS—34

Becker,	Farrell,	Mahany,	Wade,
Berger,	Frazier,	Mallery,	Wagner,
Blass,	Geltz,	Scarlett,	Watson,
Carr,	Hare,	Snowden,	Wilson,
Chapman,	Heyburn,	Stevenson,	Wolfe,
Crider,	Homsher,	Tallman,	Wood, L. H.,
Crowe,	Kephart,	Taylor,	Wood, T. N.,
Doehla,	Letzler,	Tyler,	Walker,
Donlan,	Lord,		Presiding Officer

So the question was determined in the negative.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on second reading, as amended?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I offer the following amendments to House Bill 952. By way of explanation, before the Senate gets confused on the issue, I would like to call their attention to the fact that these amendments deal with the payment schedule. This payment schedule is contained in a Senate Bill that I introduced early in this session of the Legislature.

House Bill 952 is sort of—in the vernacular in the game of boxing they would call it a Sunday punch bill—because it contains a Sunday punch aimed to knock out certain benefits that labor is receiving and then, on the other hand, it gives them certain additional benefits. It increases the weekly pay benefit period from twenty to twenty-four weeks.

However, in the bill, if you will read it carefully, you will find that when the fund reaches a certain level or floor, this increase is automatically taken away and reverts back to the twenty-week payment period.

Along with that there is another little feature there that might astonish some of the members of the Senate, in that the benefit payment today is $20 a week; however, under the terms of this bill, when the fund reaches a certain level, automatically that drops back to $18 a week. I do not know whether every member of the Senate wants to participate in a piece of legislation that is designed, as I understand it, to do one thing and yet contains in the Act itself some very dangerous features. Someone said to me "You know that the fund will never reach that level." I said to that person, Mr. President, that there are upon the calendar now certain other bills dealing with unemployment compensation which, as I understand it, are going to be passed by this Senate—if they pass a merit rating bill, if they pass the Senator Wood bill that gives a further reduction when the fund reaches a certain high point, and if the drain upon the fund reaches the level as predicted by the Governor when he predicted a depression of untold proportions, you can easily see that these two features are well designed and well planned to deprive labor of certain benefits that they now enjoy.

The members of the Senate have made their minds up, as I understand it. However, it would be unfair on the part of someone who has read the Act, and knows what is in it, not to at least inform the members of the Senate at least what the bill contains. I said it was a Sunday punch bill, and I am afraid it is both a left and right-handed Sunday punch bill, because it is supposed to give something and yet it sets up a proviso to take away even that which they hold now. Coupling that with the elimination of benefits to strikers, you have before you one of the worst pieces of anti-labor legislation that has ever been introduced in the Senate of Pennsylvania.

Mr. President, after the clerk reads the amendment I desire that the roll be called on the question of the adoption of the amendment.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend title, page 2, fifth line from last line of title on said page, by inserting after the word "the" "amounts and"; Amend Section 2 (Section 404, page 11, line 17, by placing a bracket before the word "multiplied"; Amend Section 2 (Section 404), page 12, line 5, by placing a bracket after the word "year" and inserting immediately thereafter "for a period not to exceed twenty-six (26) weeks"; Amend Section 2 (Section 404), page 18, lines 1 to 21 inclusive, by striking out all of said lines; Amend Section 2 (Section 404), page 19, lines 1 to 21 inclusive, by striking out all of said lines; Amend Section 2 (Section 404), page 20, lines 1 to 21 inclusive, by striking out all of said lines; Amend Section 2 (Section 404), page 21, lines 1 to 21 inclusive, by striking out all of said lines; Amend Section 2 (Section 404), page 21, by adding after line 21, the following:

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection,

Senate Bill No. 580, Printer's No. 426 was passed over at the request of the SPEAKER.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 633, entitled:

An Act to further amend subsection (c) of section two of the act approved the first day of May one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 1216) entitled "An act to define real estate brokers and real estate salesmen and providing for the licensing regulation and supervision of resident and nonresident real estate brokers and real estate salesmen and their business" excluding certain officers and employers of cemetery companies engaged in selling cemetery plots from the provisions of the act

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

BILLS PASSED OVER

There being no objection,

Senate Bill No. 680, Printer's No. 305 and

Senate Bill No. 736, Printer's No. 370

were passed over at the request of the SPEAKER.

Agreeably to order,

The bill having been called up from the postponed calendar, by Mr. ANDREWS,

The House resumed the consideration on second reading of House Bill No. 417, entitled:

An Act to further amend the act approved the eighteenth day of May one thousand nine hundred eleven (P. L. 309) entitled "An Act to establish a public school system in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania together with the provisions by which it shall be administered and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof providing revenue to establish and maintain the same and the method of collecting such revenue and repealing all laws general special or local or any parts thereof that are or may be inconsistent therewith" by further providing for the minimum compensation and increments of members of the teaching and supervisory staffs of school districts and vocational school districts county superintendents assistant county superintendents and district superintendents and providing for reimbursement by the Commonwealth and repealing certain provisions of said act

The first and second sections were separately read and agreed to.

The third section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

out the words "nine hundred" and inserting in lieu thereof: "one thousand four hundred".

Amend sec. 3 (Sec. 1241), page 15, by striking out all of line 9 and inserting in lieu thereof "every school year thereafter".

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. CLARENCE C. SMITH. Mr. Speaker, we of the first class school districts, do not feel that under House Bill 417 we would be able to give our teachers a substantial increase, that is, with the minimum subsidy of nine hundred dollars. Under the bill under which we are presently working, House Bill 403, we have a minimum subsidy of six hundred dollars and a maximum of eighteen hundred dollars. We also have under House Bill 417 a minimum of nine hundred dollars and a maximum of twenty-six hundred dollars. It seems to be a rule of thumb that the maximum should be three times the amount of the minimum. That may be all right, but under House Bill 403 that gives us a twelve hundred dollar differential between the minimum and the maximum subsidy. Under House Bill 417 that gives us a seventeen hundred dollar differential.

We have no objection in the first class school districts if the smaller districts feel that they want to have a maximum subsidy of twenty-six hundred dollars. We are perfectly willing to give it to them, but we feel that in our first class school districts we should have a higher subsidy than nine hundred dollars. There is five hundred dollars difference between twelve hundred dollars and seventeen hundred dollars.

According to the Governor's own statement, which I see in the papers, he claims that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania pays 40 percent of the educational costs.

If that be true Philadelphia and Pittsburgh receive 13 percent, which makes some of the smaller districts receive 70 or 80 percent.

Again we in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh realize that we have more taxable objects to tax and we feel that we are willing to carry some of the smaller districts, but we certainly feel that we want to have a higher subsidy than nine hundred dollars. That nine hundred dollars subsidy would not alone apply to the first class school districts, but would also bring in the second, third and fourth class districts from the nine hundred subsidy, they would be increased to fourteen hundred dollars.

We feel that we are justified in asking for it and we feel it is the only means to give the teachers in those districts what they desire, that is the reason I offer these amendments.

Mr. SORG. Mr. Speaker, little did I realize when House Bill 417 was placed on the calendar, in view of the statements that were made at that time, and in view of the budgetary problems that were discussed on occasions, that I would be here to defend House Bill 417 in its original form. But, Mr. Speaker, I do seriously oppose these amendments for the sake of House Bill 417 in its original form, because if at any time it was outside the realm of possibility with the funds available that were raised by this session of Legislature, it is absolutely hopeless should we adopt these particular amendments that apply solely and exclusively to first class districts. And so that even the possibility might be retained I ask the Members representing predominately the second, third and fourth class districts to vote against these amendments.

Mr. CHARLES C. SMITH. Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that these amendments do not apply only to first class districts, but apply to any districts that are working on a minimum subsidy. That takes in most of the second class and a good bit of the third class.

Mr. SORG. Again, Mr. Speaker, it just cannot be done.

Mr. CHUDOFF. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Elk, Mr. Sorg.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Elk permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SORG. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CHUDOFF. Is it true, Mr. Sorg, that House Bill 417 if passed in its original form the teachers in Philadelphia would not get very much of an increase?

Mr. SORG. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CHUDOFF. As a matter of fact, Mr. Speaker, did I understand Mr. Sorg that this bill in its original form might result in a cut in salaries to some of the teachers of Philadelphia?

Mr. SORG. I have no knowledge, Mr. Speaker, of that particular situation. If the gentleman would make that representation on the floor of this House I would accept it.

Mr. CHUDOFF. I thank the gentleman, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, ever since I have been coming to the Legislature and a Member of this House, teachers' salary increase has always been at stake, and after thinking about it all session the bill is usually passed in the wee small hours of the morning on the day before adjournment sine die. Each time the teachers of Philadelphia get less and less, and it seems we are going to have a repetition at this session unless the amendments of the gentleman from Philadelphia are adopted.

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. Speaker, I would rise in defense of these amendments. I was somewhat amazed when the bill was called up, but I did go along with the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Smith, in offering these amendments. I find myself in the position of having to disagree with the Majority Leader, Mr. Sorg, in the fact that they did not apply only to first class districts. We have thirty-seven school districts in the County of Allegheny which can only be benefitted by virtue of raising the minimum subsidy, and in view of that fact and in view of the fact that House Bill 417 may pass this House, and to do all that can be done for the school districts of Allegheny County and many other districts throughout the State, I would urge the Members to vote favorably on these amendments.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

The SPEAKER. The Chair is unable to decide.

Whereupon, A division was had, 65 Members voting in the affirmative and 98 in the negative, the question was determined in the negative, and the amendments were not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The fourth section was read.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Fleming, and the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Charles C. Smith, withdraw the amendments to section 4?

Mr. CHARLES C. SMITH. Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The fourth section was read and agreed to.

The fifth to eleventh sections inclusive and title were separately read and agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to as amended.

Ordered, To be transcribed for third reading.

Mr. SORG. Mr. Speaker, I should like to introduce a motion at this time that is not debatable. I would, therefore, think it advisable for the House to give its unanimous consent to make brief statements in connection with it.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. ANDREWS asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that there has been no one more sincerely interested in securing the enactment of an adequate teacher's salary bill than I. It has come about, however, that some of the spokesmen for the PSTA, whether responsible or irresponsible, I do not know, have nevertheless circulated a report widely in this Commonwealth that it was because of moves that I have made, the stand that I took for a period of conference that action upon House Bill 417 was not taken, and so one of the reasons why I made the move today was in response to that accusation, because frankly, gentlemen, I think that someone somewhere in the ranks of the PSTA is playing mighty small politics when they say that if it had not been for certain attitudes taken by the Minority Leader there would have been decisive action on House Bill No. 417.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. SORG asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I feel that every Member of this House is most conscious of the problem which is dealt with in House Bill 417. I feel that every Member of this House recognizes the need for legislation that does deal with that problem. I feel also as the gentleman from Cambria does, however, that there has arisen a misunderstanding as to the motives of the Members of this House in dealing with that problem.

I recall specifically several weeks ago that suggestions were made on the floor of this House that we move cautiously and deliberately with the subject matter of the bill, and it is in just that manner that we have been moving. I have been given to understand that other legislation before this Assembly, that also deals with the problems, has been the subject of serious discussion. I understand that the sponsors of various measures dealing with the problem have been conferring with each other, that the pros and cons of the various measures have been discussed and that the financial situation of the Commonwealth has been discussed.

It has come to my attention this morning that legislation embodying certain mutual suggestions will be brought before this body for its serious consideration.

It is my understanding also that there is considerable merit in the measures that will be brought before us for consideration, and so that there will not be any hasty move I am asking that until the Members are given full and complete opportunity to consider alternatives and so that we do not get into an unnecessary jam, and not for the purpose of eliminating any possibility of consideration for House Bill No. 417, but only that we shall have an opportunity to consider alternative measures, I would move that House Bill No. 417 be laid on the table.

HOUSE BILL No. 417 LAID ON TABLE

Mr. SORG. Mr. Speaker, I move that House Bill No. 417 be laid on the table.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. Lovett and Mr. Weiss and were as follows:

BILLS ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 246, as follows:

An Act making an appropriation to the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission for the commission's share of the cost of paving a certain street on which abuts certain historical sites owned by the Commonwealth

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows:

Section 1 The sum of three thousand five hundred dollars ($3500) or so much thereof as may be necessary is hereby specifically appropriated to the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission for the purpose of paying the commission's share of the cost of paying that section of Church Street in the Borough of Ambridge Beaver County Pennsylvania on which abuts the Harmony Society Cemetery and to pay for the commission's share of the cost of proposed paving of an additional section of said street on which abuts the Harmony Society Music Hall and Great House.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

An Act to further amend clause III of section seven hundred two of the act approved the first day of May one thousand nine hundred thirty-three (P. L. 103) entitled "An act concerning townships of the second class and amending revising consolidating and changing the law relating thereto" providing alternative methods for annual assessment of cost and expense for the acquisition of a water system and for the maintenance of fire hydrants and the purchase of hose

Section 1 Clause III of section seven hundred two of the act approved the first day of May one thousand nine hundred thirty-three (P. L. 103) entitled "An act concerning townships of the second class and amending revising consolidating and changing the law relating thereto" as amended by the act approved the twelfth day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine (P. L. 341) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 702 Supervisors to Exercise Powers The corporate powers of townships of the second class shall be exercised by the township supervisors They shall have power

* * * * *

III Contracts and Tax Levy for Fire Purposes On the petition of the surface property owners of a majority of the lineal feet frontage along any highways streets roads and alleys or portion thereof in any village within the township to enter into contract with water companies for the placing of fire hydrants to water mains maintaining pressures approved by the fire insurance underwriters along said highways streets roads and alleys or to provide for or acquire a water supply system equipped to supply sufficient water for the protection of property from fire

The moneys necessary for acquiring any such water system may be obtained by proceeding in accordance with either of the methods set forth in paragraphs A and B as follows

A The supervisors shall levy for the acquisition of a water system for the maintenance of such fire hydrants and for the purchase of hose et cetera an annual tax upon the property abutting upon said highways streets roads and alleys and upon property within five hundred feet of any fire hydrant in the district benefited thereby based upon the assessment for county purposes No such tax shall be levied against any farm land or land used as an aviation field or against other property in the district not benefited thereby Such tax shall be collected in the same manner as other taxes The collector shall receive the same commission as on the road tax The township treasurer shall receive all such taxes collected for fire protection and keep the same in a separate account and pay the same out only upon orders signed by the chairman of the board of supervisors attested by the secretary The treasurer shall make a report to the auditors of the township annually cause to be assessed the cost and expense for the acquisition of a water system for the maintenance of such fire hydrants and for the purchase of hose et cetera by an equal assessment on all property abutting upon said highways streets roads and alleys within five hundred (500) feet of any fire hydrant in the district benefited thereby in proportion to the number of feet the said property fronts on any street highway road or alley upon which a water main is laid or within five hundred (500) feet of any fire hydrant on such street highway road or alley. The supervisors may provide for an equitable reduction from the frontage of lots it intersects or where from the peculiar or pointed shape of lots an assessment of the full frontage would be inequitable. No such assessment shall be made against any farm land but vacant lots between built-up sections either tilled or untilled shall not be deemed to be farm lands. All such assessments for fire protection shall be filed with the township tax collector who shall give thirty (30) days written or printed notice that the assessments are due and payable stating the due date to each party assessed either by service on the owner of the property or by mailing such notice to the owner at his last known post office address. The tax collector shall be entitled to the same commission for the collection of such assessments as he is entitled to by law for the collection of the township road tax. If the assessments or any of them remain unpaid at the expiration of not exceeding ninety (30) days the exact time to be fixed by the township supervisors they shall be placed in the hands of the township solicitor for collection. The solicitor shall collect the same together with five percent as attorney's commission and interest from the date such assessments were due by a municipal claim filed against the property of the delinquent owner in like manner as municipal claims are by law filed and collected. Where an owner has two or more lots against which there is an assessment for the same year all such lots may be embraced in one claim. All assessments when collected shall be paid over to the township treasurer who shall receive and shall keep the same in a separate account and pay the same only upon orders signed by the chairman of the township supervisors attested by the secretary. The tax collector and the treasurer shall make a report to the auditors of the township annually.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

BILLS PASSED OVER

There being no objection,

House Bill No. 786, Printer's No. 738 and

House Bill No. 800, Printer's No. 761

were passed over at the request of the SPEAKER.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 933, as follows:

An Act to further amend the act approved the twenty-third day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-one (P. L. 932) entitled "An act relating to cities of the third class and amending revising and consolidating the law relating thereto" by changing the provisions relating to the giving of notice of assessments. The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows:

Section 1 Section two thousand five hundred eighteen of the act approved the twenty-third day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-one (P. L. 932) entitled "An act relating to cities of the third class and amending revising and consolidating the law relating thereto" is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 2518 Notice to Taxables of Assessments. Appeals. When the time or time and place for the meeting or meetings of the board of revision and appeals shall have been fixed the assessor shall give or cause to be given at least five days' printed or written notice to each taxable of the city whose last previous assessment has been increased or diminished of the amount or sum for which such taxable stands rated in any assessment also of any sum or amount for which said persons stand rated by reason of any change in his her or their assessment in any year for any cause whatsoever together with the time and place of hearing appeals. Such notice may be served personally or by posting on the premises or by mailing the same to the last known address of the taxable. Any person dissatisfied or aggrieved by the assessment or any change thereof made by the assessor may appeal to the said board of revision and appeal and be heard at the time and place fixed in the notice.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 958, as follows:

An Act to amend the act approved the twenty-sixth day of April one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 823) entitled "An act permitting boroughs to provide a method of assessment for borough taxes" changing the method of compensation designating the borough council as the board of revision making assessments made hereunder the basis for determining borrowing power and tax levies for borough purposes prohibiting use of assessments made under this act for county purposes and providing for appeals from such assessments

Section 1 The act approved the twenty-sixth day of April one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 823) entitled "An act permitting boroughs to provide a method of assessment for borough taxes" is hereby amended to read as follows

Section 1 Be it enacted &c That in counties having no county board of assessors the borough authorities may by ordinance declare its desire that assessments upon which borough taxes are based may be fixed by one or more appointees of the council Council shall thereupon appoint and reasonably compensate the assessors and the borough shall pay compensation to them no greater than that received by the elective borough assessors The assessors thus appointed shall have all the powers and duties and be subject to the same laws as elected assessors in so far as the assessment for borough taxes is concerned The assessments made shall be subject to revision and equalization by the borough council The council shall be the board of revision designated in section one hundred two clause (h) of the Municipal Borrowing Law Whenever any borough elects to come under the provisions of this act the assessments made shall determine and constitute the basis for the borrowing power of such borough All borough taxes levied under any act for any purpose shall be based on the assessments made hereunder and not on the assessments made for county purposes the assessments made hereunder for borough purposes shall not be applied to or used for county purposes any person aggrieved by any assessment made for borough purposes under the provisions of this act may appeal to the board of revision provided for hereby and from the determination of the board of revision to the court of common pleas of the county and to the supreme or superior court in the manner within the times and under the same procedure and with like effect as provided in sections seven hundred two seven hundred four and seven hundred five of the act approved the twenty-first day of May one thousand nine hundred forty-three (P. L. 571) known as "the fourth to eighth class county assessment law" The elected borough assessors shall perform all other duties required by law By repealing the ordinance all powers given hereunder shall cease

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the sponsor of the bill, the gentleman from Bucks, Mr. Stockham.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. STOCKHAM. I would positively "love it," Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LOVETT. I thank the gentleman. Would the gentleman mind telling me then what the intentions of the amendments to this bill were when we amended it about a week or two ago?

Mr. STOCKHAM. Mr. Speaker, I would say that in order to have it amended it was sent back to committee with the amendments for the committee's reconsideration and study in order to further clarify the bill.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, may I ask the gentleman what did the amendments do.

Mr. STOCKHAM. Well, Mr. Speaker, that is the very thing they did.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I am getting more confused all the time. Would the gentleman read the amendments?

Mr. STOCKHAM. On page three, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. LOVETT. I do not have the bill. Will the gentleman go ahead.

Mr. STOCKHAM. "The assessment made hereunder for borough purposes shall not be applied to or used for county purposes. Any person aggrieved by any assessment made for borough purposes under the provisions of this act may appeal to the board of revision provided for hereby"—that is the Borough Council—"and from the determination of the board of revision to the Court of Common Pleas of the county, and to the Supreme or Superior court in the manner, within the times and under the same procedure and with like effect as provided in section 702, 704 and 705 of the Act approved the twenty-first day of May nineteen forty-three, Pamphlet Laws 571, known as the 'fourth to eighth class county assessment law.'"

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker that will be all; I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, the only difference in the bill now and the original bill is that it gives the right to appeal to the court from the board of revision, which is your council in this case.

As I stated before, the only reason for this bill is to allow additional tax on real estate, and I think ever since I have been a Member of the Legislature, and possibly long before that we have been trying to take tax off real estate. We all agree that real estate is over-taxed.

Now at this late stage of the game we find that my good friend, Mr. Stockham, has introduced this bill by request—and I don't blame him for introducing it "by request," because I do not feel that he is very much in sympathy with this kind of legislation himself. That is the reason he introduced it "by request."

So, my friends, in fairness to the real estate people of Pennsylvania, who have been kicked all around, even by rent control and everything else I certainly feel that this is not a good time to pass this kind of legislation, and I would ask the membership of this House to defeat this bill.

Mr. STOCKHAM. Mr. Speaker, there is one point that I would clarify in the statement of Mr. Lovett. No one is more interested than I in seeing relief from real estate taxes. There is a difference between a tax and an assessment, and the purposes of the assessments relate themselves constantly to the tax rate. The design always is to raise the necessary money to operate the borough government. Where there may be a difference or a differential on the basis upon which assessments are made and what should be the true relation of one assessment to another, when this gives to a borough council the right to appoint an assessor. On that point I would like to clarify our thinking.

Mr. O'CONNOR. Mr. Speaker, I think this bill should properly be classified as a bill of confusion. The bill as originally written would not merit the approval of the request sponsor. Now we should take an interest in this bill and defeat it. We know at the present time we elect our borough assessors, and our appeal, if we are dissatisfied, is from the Board of Assessors to the County Commissioners as a Board of County Tax Revision.

Under this bill after the people have elected by majority vote the assessors of the borough, the borough council would be empowered to appoint another assessor to make a complete and independent assessment, and this assessment naturally would not agree with that of the regularly chosen borough assessor. If it did not suit the people, you would appeal then to your borough council, and if you were dissatisfied with the decision of the borough council then you would appeal to your Court of Common Pleas in the county.

Now, I have seen those boroughs that have decided to have two assessors and, that ultimately the court of common pleas, your county judges would make the borough assessments, and I feel, Members of the House, that we who live in the boroughs do not want this bill passed and I hope you will vote it down.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

L. 596) entitled "An act requiring cities of the second class to establish a pension fund for employes of said cities and regulating the administration and the payment of such pensions" as last amended by the act approved the seventeenth day of May one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine (P. L. 163) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 4 During the lifetime of the said person he or she shall be entitled to receive a pension from the fund set aside for the purpose fifty per centum of the amount which would constitute the average rate of pay at which he or she was employed during the last five years of his or her employment by the said city Said pension shall be paid in monthly payments Provided That if any pension be granted to a person who has not been a contributor to the pension fund as herein provided during a period of twenty years such person shall be required to pay unto the board of pensions monthly an amount equal to not less than two nor more than four per centum of his or her pension until such time as his or her contribution shall have extended during a period of twenty years Should any person be dismissed for reasons other than misconduct after having served as an employe for fifteen years or more but less than twenty years such employe shall have the right to elect to keep in the fund all contributions heretofore made to the fund and to continue making monthly payments to such fund in an amount equal to the amount last due and paid monthly while an employe When such payments continue until the former employe has contributed to the fund for a total of at least twenty years or until reaching the age of retirement whichever is the longer such person shall be entitled to receive a pension proportional to the pension which would have been received had the employe completed twenty years of service prior to dismissal Such proportion to be computed on the ration which the employe's actual time of service in months bears to twenty years Should any person so employed after twenty years of service be dismissed voluntarily retire or be in any manner deprived of his or her position or employment before attaining the age fixed for retirement by this act upon continuing a monthly payment to the fund equal to the last amount due and paid monthly while in active service said person shall be entitled to the pension above mentioned notwithstanding he or she has not attained the age for retirement at the time of his or her separation from the service of such city but said pension shall not commence until he or she has attained such age. Provided That any employee who has heretofore or shall hereafter be dismissed and who has been in the service of the city for a period of twenty-five (25) years or more and who has made payments into the pension fund for a period of twenty (20) years or more and who has reached the age of fifty (50) years shall upon application to the board of pensions receive the pension or compensation fixed by this act during the remainder of his or her life. Should any employee however become totally and permanently disabled after fifteen years of service he or she shall be entitled to the said pension. Provided years becomes totally and permanently disabled by reason That if any employee who has served less than fifteen of injury sustained in the actual performance of duty such employee shall be entitled to the said pension. Proof of total and permanent disability shall consist of the sworn statement of three practicing physicians designated by the board that the employee is in a permanent condition of health which would totally disable him or her from performing the duties of his or her position or office. Once a year the board of pensions may require a disability pensioner to undergo a medical examination by three physicians appointed by the board and should such physicians thereupon report and certify to the board that such beneficiary is no longer incapacitated and should the pension board concur in such report the pension to such beneficiary shall be discontinued. The pension paid to any one employee shall not be less than seventy-five dollars nor exceed one hundred and twenty-five dollars per month and shall not be computed on rate of pay in excess of two hundred and fifty dollars per month. In the event of the death of any person receiving a pension under this act there shall be paid to the heirs or to the estate of such deceased person a lump sum representing the difference if any between the total contributions paid into the pension fund by him or her as an employee and the total pension payments received by him or her during his or her lifetime but such lump sum shall be paid only when such total contributions exceed the total pension payments made.

Section 2 Section five of said act as last amended by the act approved the twenty-sixth day of April one thousand nine hundred thirty-three (P. L. 81) is hereby further amended to read as follows:

Section 5 The city employees shall after the passage of this act pay unto the board of pensions monthly an amount equal to not less than two nor more than four per centum of their monthly salaries or wages as fixed by the board of pensions in no event however paying at a rate greater than ten dollars per month which shall be applied to the purposes of this act. Payment of the monthly amount or contribution herein mentioned shall cease and be discontinued at the time the beneficiary received the pension herein provided if such beneficiary has so contributed to the pension fund during a period of twenty years. If at the time the beneficiary received the pension herein provided he or she shall not have been a contributor to the pension fund during a period of twenty years such person shall be required to pay unto the board of pensions an amount equal to not less than two nor more than four per centum of his or her monthly pension until such time as his or her contributions shall have extended during a period of twenty years. If for any cause an employee contributing to the pension fund shall cease to be an employee of any such cities of the second class before said employee becomes entitled to the pension conferred by this act the total amount of the contributions paid unto the pension fund by such employee shall be refunded to him or her in full without interest unless he or she has less than full pension rights under the provisions of section four of this act and elects at once to exercise such rights by keeping such contributions in the fund and making such further payments as may be required. Provided however If any such employee shall have returned to him or her the amount contributed as aforesaid and shall afterwards re-enter the employ of such city said employee shall not be entitled to the pension designated until twenty years after said reemployment unless he or she shall return to the pension fund the amount withdrawn in which event the period of twenty years shall be computed from the time the said employee first entered the service of said city. In the event of the death of any such employee before the said employee becomes entitled to the pension aforesaid the total amount of contributions aforesaid shall be paid over to the estate of the said deceased employee or to his or her heirs.

Section 3 Section six of said act as amended by the act approved the first day of August one thousand nine hundred forty-one (P. L. 748) is hereby further amended to read as follows:

Section 6 (a) Should any person holding position in said cities of the second class as laborer at a per diem wage he or she shall not be compelled to pay or contribute toward the pension fund herein provided for but shall have the option or choice of so doing at any time within six months after the date of their employment and in that event only of becoming entitled to the pension provided by this act.

(b) Every new full time employee except as provided in subsection (a) of this section shall after serving a ninety (90) day probation period be required to join the pension fund and shall thereafter make contributions to such fund as provided in section five of this act.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return the same to the Senate with information that the House of Representatives has passed the same without amendment.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 220, as follows:

An Act to further amend sections twelve thirteen and fourteen of the act approved the twenty-second day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-five (P. L. 414) entitled as amended "An act to provide revenue for State purposes imposing taxes upon certain classes of personal property providing for the assessment collection and lien of the same and the distribution of the proceeds thereof imposing duties on executors administrators registers of wills recorders of deeds prothonotaries and court clerks and on persons copartnerships associations banks national banks trust companies and other corporations receiving deposits of money and on certain corporations and limited partnerships conferring powers and imposing duties on certain State officers and departments imposing penalties and making an appropriation" by extending the time for payment of the tax without interest in certain cases staying execution of certain liens in certain cases and requiring the board to issue certificates of credit for overpayment in certain cases

Section 1 Sections twelve thirteen and fourteen of the act approved the twenty-second day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-five (P. L. 414) entitled as amended "An act to provide revenue for State purposes imposing taxes upon certain classes of personal property providing for the assessment collection and lien of the same and the distribution of the proceeds thereof imposing duties on executors administrators registers of wills recorders of deeds prothonotaries and court clerks and on persons copartnerships associations banks national banks trust companies and other corporations receiving deposits of money and on certain corporations and limited partnerships conferring powers and imposing duties on certain State officers and departments imposing penalties and making an appropriation" as last reenacted and amended by the act approved the eleventh day of July one thousand nine hundred forty-one (P. L. 361) are hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 12 Interest The tax imposed by the third section of this act shall bear interest at the rate of six per centum per annum from the date such tax is due and payable until thirty (30) days after the department shall make an assessment and thereafter at the rate of twelve per centum per annum until paid except that any tax found due as the result of an appeal to the court of common pleas or any appellate court shall bear interest at the rate of six per centum per annum from the date the tax was originally due and payable until paid

Any tax imposed by the third section of this act due and payable by any individual for any year during any part of which he served in the armed services of the United States in World War II may be satisfied upon payment prior to January first one thousand nine hundred forty-nine of the tax as originally due without the addition thereto of any interest or other penalty.

Section 13 Lien of Taxes (a) All taxes imposed under the third section of this act together with all penalties and interest shall be considered a public account after becoming due and payable in the manner prescribed in this act and as such shall be a lien upon the franchises and real property of the resident against whom the same are assessed after the same has been entered and docketed of record by the prothonotary of the county where the resident's franchises or property are situated

(b) The department may at any time transmit to the prothonotaries of the respective counties of the Commonwealth to be by them entered of record certified copies of all liens for taxes imposed by the third section of this act and penalties and interest upon which record it shall be lawful for writs of scire facias to issue and be prosecuted to judgment and execution in the same manner as such writs are ordinarily employed Provided That execution shall be stayed until January first one thousand nine hundred forty-nine in the case of any lien arising from any such tax imposed by the third section of this act due and payable by any individual for any year during any part of which he served in the armed forces of the United States in World War II

Section 14 Credits for Overpayment The Board of Finance and Revenue may allow a credit for any taxes imposed by the third section of this act and penalties and interest thereon paid to the Commonwealth to which the Commonwealth is not rightfully or equitably entitled Claims for such credits shall be made in accordance with the provisions of "The Fiscal Code" relative to petitions for refunds of taxes No petition for such credit shall be considered by the board unless filed with the board within two (2) years of the payment alleged to have been erroneously made

Upon the allowance of any such petition the credit so determined may be applied against any amount due or subsequently becoming due by such petitioner on account of taxes imposed by the third section of this act and penalties and interest thereon or may be assigned in whole or in part to any other taxable resident to be applied against any amount due or subsequently becoming due by such resident on account of taxes imposed by the third section of this act and penalties and interest thereon Upon the allowance of a petition for credit the board shall issue its certificate under its hand and seal and no credit claimed whether assigned or not shall be allowed unless evidenced by such certificate

The board shall issue its certificate of credit for any payment made by any individual on account of interest or penalty on any tax imposed by the third section of this act for any year during any part of which such individual served in the armed forces of the United States in World War II

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Ordered, That the Clerk return the same to the Senate with information that the House of Representatives has passed the same without amendment.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 376, as follows:

A Supplement to the act approved the twenty-fifth day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-one (P. L. 1352) entitled "An act providing for joint action by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey in the administration operation and maintenance of bridges over the Delaware River and for the construction of additional bridge facilities across said river authorizing the Governor for these purposes to enter into an agreement with the State of New Jersey creating a Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission and specifying the powers and duties thereof including the power to finance the construction of additional bridges by the issuance of revenue bonds to be redeemed from revenues derived from tolls collected at such bridges transferring to said commissions all powers now exercised by existing commission created to acquire toll bridges over the Delaware River and making an appropriation" authorizing the Governor to enter into a supplemental compact or agreement on behalf of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania with the State of New Jersey amending the Agreement between the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey creating the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission as a body corporate and politic and defining its powers and duties to enlarge the jurisdiction and power of said commission with respect to the acquisition construction rehabilitation improvement maintenance and operation of bridges across the Delaware River the financing thereof and the fixing charging and collecting of tolls for the use of such bridges and repealing certain acts

Section 1 The Governor is hereby authorized to enter into a supplemental compact or agreement on behalf of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania with the State of New Jersey amending the Agreement entitled "Agreement between the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey Creating the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission as a Body Corporate and Politic and Defining Its Powers and Duties" which was executed on behalf of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania by its Governor on the nineteenth day of December one thousand nine hundred and thirty-four and on behalf of the State of New Jersey by its Governor on the eighteenth day of December one thousand nine hundred and thirty-four such supplemental compact or agreement to be in substantially the following form

"Supplemental agreement between the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey amending the Agreement entitled 'Agreement between the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey Creating the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission as a Body Corporate and Politic and Defining Its Powers and Duties' by extending the jurisdiction powers and duties of the commission and defining such additional jurisdiction powers and duties

Whereas The Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission (hereinafter referred to as the 'commission') was created by a compact or agreement entitled 'Agreement between the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey creating the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission as a body corporate and politic and defining its powers and duties' executed on behalf of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania by its Governor on the nineteenth day of December one thousand nine hundred and thirty-four pursuant to an act of its General Assembly approved the twenty-fifth day of June one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one (P. L. 1352) as last amended by an act of said General Assembly approved the eighteenth day of May one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (P. L. 827) and executed on behalf of the State of New Jersey by its Governor on the eighteenth day of December one thousand nine hundred and thirty-four pursuant to an act of its Senate and General Assembly approved June eleventh one thousand nine hundred and thirty-four (chapter 215 laws of 1934 R S (1937) 32:8-1) to which compact or agreement the consent of the Congress of the United States was given by section 9 of an act of the Congress approved August 30 1935 (Public No 411 74th Congress 49 Stat 1051 1058) and under the provisions of which compact or agreement the commission was authorized to administer maintain and operate certain bridges over the Delaware river and now maintains and operates the same as joint State owned free bridges and

Whereas Because of the great increase in traffic and loads over said bridges since their construction many of said bridges are now inadequate or unsafe and it will be necessary to rehabilitate or replace some or all of said bridges with new bridges at the same or different locations in order to provide safe adequate and convenient facilities for traffic crossing the Delaware river and

Whereas It is necessary that the commission have power to issue and sell its bridge revenue bonds for rehabilitating or replacing existing bridges with new bridges at the same or different locations for acquiring or constructing additional bridges and for refunding any bridge revenue bonds of the commission and that the commission also have power to fix charge and collect tolls rates rents and other charges for the use of any such new bridge or bridges now therefore

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey do hereby solemnly covenant and agree each with the other as follows

(1) Article IX of the Agreement between the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey creating the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission as a body corporate on behalf of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania by its Governor on the nineteenth day of December one thousand nine hundred and thirty-four and was executed on behalf of the State of New Jersey by its Governor on the eighteenth day of December one thousand nine hundred and thirty four be and the same is hereby amended to read as follows

Article IX

The commission shall make annual reports to the Governors and Legislatures of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the State of New Jersey setting forth in detail its operations and transactions and may make such additional reports from time to time to the Governors and Legislatures as it may deem advisable

Ordered, That the Clerk return the same to the Senate with information that the House of Representatives has passed the same without amendment.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 434 as follows:

An Act to further amend section two of the act approved the twenty-fourth day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine (P. L. 685) entitled "An act designating certain life insurance companies as limited life insurance companies and further describing the powers thereof" further describing the powers of limited life insurance companies under certain conditions

Section 1 Section two of the act approved the twenty-fourth day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine (P. L. 685) entitled "An act designating certain life insurance companies as limited life insurance companies and further describing the powers thereof" as last amended by the act approved the fifteenth day of May one thousand nine hundred forty-five (P. L. 566) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 2 Powers All limited life insurance companies are hereby specially empowered to issue policies agreeing to pay not more than twenty dollars ($20.00) per week in the event of disablement from sickness nor more than double that amount in the event of disability from accident nor more than five hundred dollars ($500.00) in the event of death from natural or accidental causes and to issue policies of endowment insurance subject to the condition hereinafter provided notwithstanding any limitation to the contrary established by the act of Assembly pursuant to which such corporation shall have been incorporated or reincorporated or by any other act of Assembly or by the provisions of its charter

Any such company may issue policies agreeing to pay in excess of five hundred dollars ($500.00) but not exceeding one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) in the event of death from natural and accidental causes provided it has

(a) In the case of stock companies a capital of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000.00) and in addition thereto has accumulated a surplus in the sum of at least twelve thousand five hundred dollars ($12,500.00) or

(b) In the case of mutual companies accumulated a surplus in the sum of at least fifty thousand dollars ($50,000.00)

Any such company may issue policies of endowment insurance agreeing to pay not more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) upon maturity thereof provided it has

(a) In the case of stock companies a capital of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000.00) and in addition thereto has accumulated a surplus in the sum of at least twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00) or

(b) In the case of mutual companies accumulated a surplus in the sum of at least one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000.00)

Any such company may issue policies agreeing to pay in excess of the weekly limitations herein prescribed but not exceeding forty-five dollars ($45) per week in the event of disablement from sickness or accident provided such policies limit payment of benefits to periods during which insured shall have been admitted as a patient into and as such be necessarily wholly and continuously confined within a duly licensed and incorporated hospital provided it has

(a) In the case of stock companies additional capital of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00) and has accumulated additional surplus in the sum of at least twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00) or

(b) In the case of mutual companies accumulated additional surplus in the sum of at least twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00)

Section 2 The provisions of this act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection,

Senate Bill No. 569, Printer's No. 343

was passed over at the request of the SPEAKER.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 575 as follows:

An Act concerning the ascertainment of principal and income and the apportionment of receipts and expenses among tenants and remaindermen

Section 1 Definition of Terms "Principal" as used in this act means any realty or personalty which has been so set aside or limited by the owner thereof or a person thereto legally empowered that it and any substitutions for it are to remain in trust perpetually or are eventually to be conveyed delivered or paid to a person while the return therefrom or use thereof or any part of such return or use is in the meantime to be taken or received by or held for accumulation for the same or another person

"Income" as used in this act means the return derived from principal

"Tenant" as used in this act means the person to whom income is presently or currently payable or for whom it is accumulated or who is entitled to the beneficial use of the principal presently and for a time prior to its distribution

"Remainderman" as used in this act means the person ultimately entitled to the principal whether named or designated by the terms of the transaction by which the principal was established or determined by operation of law

"Trustee" as used in this act includes the original trustee of any trust to which the principal may be subject and also any succeeding or added trustee

Section 2 Application of the Act Powers of Settlor This act shall govern the ascertainment of income and principal and the apportionment of receipts and expenses between tenants and remaindermen in all cases where a principal has been established with or unless otherwise stated hereinafter without the interposition of a trust provided that the person establishing the principal may himself direct the manner of ascertainment of income and principal and the apportionment of receipts and expenses or grant discretion to the trustee or other person to do so and such provision and direction where not otherwise contrary to law shall control notwithstanding this act

Section 3 Income and Principal Disposition

(1) All receipts of money or other property paid or delivered as rent of realty or hire of personalty or dividends on corporate shares payable other than in shares of the corporation itself of the same kind and rank as the shares on which such dividend is paid or interest on money loaned or interest on or the rental or use value of property wrongfully withheld or tortiously damaged or otherwise in return for the use of principal shall be deemed income unless otherwise expressly provided in this act

(2) All receipts of money or other property paid or delivered as the consideration for the sale or other transfer not a leasing or letting of property forming a part of the principal or as a repayment of loans or in liquidation of the assets of a corporation or as the proceeds of property taken in eminent domain proceedings where separate awards to tenant and remainderman are not made or as proceeds of insurance upon property forming a part of the principal except where such insurance has been issued for the benefit of either tenant or remainderman alone or otherwise as a refund or replacement or change in form of principal shall be deemed principal unless otherwise expressly provided in this act Any profit or loss resulting from any change in form of principal shall enure to or fall upon principal unless otherwise expressly provided in this act

(3) All income after payment of expenses properly chargeable to it shall be paid and delivered to the tenant or retained by him if already in his possession or held for accumulation where legally so directed by the terms of the transaction by which the principal was established while the principal shall be held for ultimate distribution

as determined by the terms of the transaction by which it was established or by law

(4) Nothing in this Section 3 shall apply to property in the nature of wasting assets such as timber minerals coal stone oil gas or other natural resources or to property subject to depletion such as leaseholds patents copyrights and royalty rights but this Section 3 shall apply to the shares of corporations which own such property

Section 4 Apportionment of Income Whenever a tenant shall have the right to income from periodic payments which shall include rent interest on loans and annuities but shall not include dividends on corporate shares and such right shall cease and determine by death or in any other manner at a time other than the date when such periodic payments should be paid he or his personal representative shall be entitled to that portion of any such income next payable which amounts to the same percentage thereof as the time elapsed from the last due date of such periodic payments to and including the day of the determination of his right is of the total period during which some income would normally accrue The remaining income shall be paid to the person next entitled to income by the terms of the transaction by which the principal was established But no action shall be brought by the trustee or tenant to recover such apportioned income or any portion thereof until after the day on which it would have become due to the tenant but for the determination of the right of the tenant entitled thereto The provisions of this section shall apply whether an ultimate remainderman is specifically named or not Likewise when the right of the first tenant accrues at a time other than a payment date of such periodic payments he shall only receive that portion of such income which amounts to the same percentage thereof as the time during which he has been so entitled is of the total period during which such income would normally accrue and the balance shall be a part of the principal

Section 5 Corporate Dividends and Share Rights

(1) All dividends on shares of a corporation forming a part of the principal which are payable in the shares of the corporation itself of the same kind and rank as the shares on which such dividend is paid shall be deemed principal Subject to the provisions of this section all dividends payable otherwise than in such shares of the corporation itself including ordinary and extraordinary dividends and dividends payable in shares or other securities or obligations of corporations other than the declaring corporation shall be deemed income Where the trustee shall have the option of receiving a dividend either in cash or in the shares of the declaring corporation it shall be considered as a cash dividend and deemed income irrespective of the choice made by the trustee

(2) All rights to subscribe to the shares or other securities or obligations of a corporation accruing on account of the ownership of shares or other securities in such corporation and the proceeds of any sale of such rights shall be deemed principal All rights to subscribe to the shares or other securities or obligations of a corporation accruing on account of the ownership of shares or other securities in another corporation and the proceeds of any sale of such rights shall be deemed income

(3) Where the assets of a corporation are liquidated wholly or partially amounts paid upon corporate shares as cash dividends declared before such liquidation began or as arrears of cumulative preferred or guaranteed dividends shall be deemed income all other amounts paid upon corporate shares on disbursement of the corporate assets to the stockholders shall be deemed principal All disbursements of corporate assets to the stockholders whenever made which are designated by the corporation as a return of capital or division of corporate property shall be deemed principal Any profit or loss resulting from the sale or liquidation of corporate shares shall enure to or fall upon principal

ure of a corporation is changed either with or without merger consolidation and the securities of the surviving succeeding reorganized or acquiring corporation with or without cash or other properties are issued to the shareholders of the original corporation in like proportion to or in substitution for their shares in the original corporation and prior to the effective date of such merger consolidation or reorganization there were arrearages of cumulative preferred or guaranteed dividends and such arrearages are eliminated in the merger consolidation or reorganization so much of the securities and cash and other properties received as is designated by the corporation as a payment in settlement of such arrearages shall be allocated to such arrearages and the balance of the securities and cash and other properties received shall be deemed principal in case the corporation does not so designate the securities received in like proportion to or in substitution for shares upon which there were such arrearages of cumulative preferred or guaranteed dividends at their value as of the effective date of such merger and the cash and other properties received shall be allocated first to principal in the amount of the inventory value of the said shares of the original corporation or in default thereof of their market value at the time the principal was established or of their cost where purchased later second to the arrearages of cumulative preferred or guaranteed dividends or in satisfaction thereof if less than such amount and third the balance if any to principal

(5) Except as otherwise provided in subsection (4) of this section where a corporation is a party to a merger consolidation or reorganization or otherwise acquires the assets of another corporation and shares of stock of whatsoever character or whatsoever class or classes of the surviving succeeding reorganized or acquiring corporation with or without cash or other securities or properties are issued to the shareholders of a corporation which is a party to such merger consolidation reorganization or acquisition of assets in like proportion to or in substitution for their shares in such corporation all shares of stock so issued and also all cash and other securities and properties which may be so issued shall be principal

(6) In applying this section the date when a dividend accrues to the person who is entitled to it shall be held to be the date specified by the corporation as the one on which the stockholders entitled thereto are determined or in default thereof the date of declaration of the dividend

Section 6 Premium and Discount Bonds Where any part of the principal consists of bonds or other obligations for the payment of money they shall be deemed principal at their inventory value or in default thereof at their market value at the time the principal was established or at their cost where purchased later regardless of their par or maturity value and upon their respective maturities or upon their sale any loss or gain realized thereon shall fall upon or enure to the principal provided however that the scheduled increment in value of bonds issued on a discount basis and subject to definite appreciation in value on a fixed schedule shall constitute income as of each date on which an increment occurs and shall be made available as income for such disposition as is provided by the terms of the transaction under which the principal was established by transferring from the principal on each such date an amount equivalent to the increment then occurring

Section 7 Principal Used in Business

(1) Whenever a trustee or a tenant is authorized by the terms of the transaction by which the principal was established or by law to use any part of the principal in the continuance of a business which the original owner of the property comprising the principal had been carrying on the net profits of such business attributable to such principal shall be deemed income

(2) Where such business consists of buying and selling property the net profits for any period shall be ascertained by deducting from the gross proceeds during and the inventory value of the property at the end of such period

the expenses during and the inventory value of the property at the beginning of such period

(3) Where such business does not consist of buying and selling property the net income shall be computed in accordance with the customary practice of such business but not in such way as to decrease the principal

(4) Any increase in the value of the principal used in such business shall be deemed principal and all losses in any one calendar year after the income from such business for that year has been exhausted shall fall upon principal

Section 8 Principal Comprising Animals Where any part of the principal consists of animals employed in business the provisions of Section 7 shall apply and in other cases where the animals are held as a part of the principal partly or wholly because of the offspring or increase which they are expected to produce all offspring or increase shall be deemed principal to the extent necessary to maintain the original number of such animals and the remainder shall be deemed income and in all other cases such offspring or increase shall be deemed income

Section 9 Disposition of Natural Resources Where any part of the principal consists of property in lands from which may be taken timber minerals coal stone oil gas or other natural resources and the trustee or tenant is authorized by the terms of the transaction by which the principal was established or by order of court to sell lease or otherwise develop such natural resources or where such natural resources have been leased or developed prior to the transaction by which the principal was established and no provision is made for the disposition of the net proceeds thereof after the payment of expenses and carrying charges on such property one-third of the net proceeds if received as rent or payment on a lease or as royalties shall be deemed income and the remaining two-thirds thereof shall be deemed principal to be invested to produce income provided that if a surviving spouse of the person establishing the principal shall be the sole tenant he shall be intitled to such proportion of the net proceeds as he would be entitled to under the intestate laws if the person establishing the principal were to die intestate at the time of the receipt of such proceeds a resident of the Commonwealth and owing such proceeds but this shall not include the $10,000 allowance Such proceeds if received as consideration for the permanent severance of such natural resources from the land payable otherwise than as rents or royalties shall be deemed principal to be invested to produce income

Nothing in this section shall be construed to abrogate or extend any right which may otherwise have accrued by law to a tenant to develop or work such natural resources for his own use

Section 10 Interest-Bearing Obligations in Default

(1) Whenever the interest on an interest-bearing obligation owned by a trust shall be in default in whole or in part and the obligation shall be converted into money or property which can be fairly apportioned or both before the principal is finally distributed then the tenant or in case of his death his personal representative shall be entitled to share in the net proceeds received from the property as delayed income to the extent hereinafter stated

(2) Such delayed income shall be the difference between the net proceeds received from the conversion and the amount which had it been placed at simple interest at the rate of four per centum per annum for the period during which such interest was in default in whole or in part would have produced the net proceeds at the time of conversion In no event shall delayed income exceed the defaulted interest upon the obligation The net proceeds shall consist of the gross proceeds including property other than money received from the conversion less any expenses incurred in converting and preserving the asset and less all carrying charges which have been paid out of principal pending conversion but shall not include net income received pending conversion

(3) The tenant shall be entitled to receive from time to time and to keep the net income from any form or property or obligation into which such interest-bearing obligation may be converted until it is finally converted into money or property which can be fairly apportioned or both and his share of the delayed income shall be reduced by the amount of income received and by the value of any beneficial use of the property which he may have had.

(4) In case of successive tenants the delayed income shall be divided among them or their representatives according to the length of the period for which each was entitled to income.

Section 11 Expenses Trust Estates

(1) All ordinary expenses and charges incurred in connection with the trust estate or with its administration and management shall be paid out of income but such expenses where incurred in disposing of or as carrying charges on unproductive estate shall be paid out of principal and where incurred in disposing of or as carrying charges on underproductive estate shall be paid out of principal to the extent that the income from the property shall not be equal to such expenses.

(2) Trustees' compensation compensation of assistants and court costs and attorneys' and other fees may be apportioned between income and principal as the court may direct.

(3) All other expenses including cost of investing or reinvesting principal and other costs incurred in maintaining or defending any action to protect the trust or the property or assure the title thereof unless due to the fault or cause of the tenant and costs of or assessments for improvements to property forming part of the principal shall be paid out of principal. Any tax levied by any authority Federal State or foreign upon profit or gain defined as principal under the term of subsection (2) of section 3 shall be paid out of principal notwithstanding said tax may be denominated a tax upon income by the taxing authority.

(4) Interest and penalties on inheritance and estate taxes levied by any authority Federal State or foreign shall be paid out of principal to the extent that such interest and penalties are in excess of the rate of return which has been or shall be realized from the estate during the time that such interest and penalty have accrued.

(5) Expenses paid out of income according to subsection (1) hereof which represent regularly recurring charges shall be considered to have accrued from day to day and shall be apportioned on that basis whenever the right of the tenant begins or ends at some date other than the payment date of the expenses. Where the expenses to be paid out of income are of unusual amount the trustee may distribute them throughout an entire year or part thereof or throughout a series of years. After such distribution where the right of the tenant ends during the period the expenses shall be apportioned between tenant and remainderman on the basis of such distribution.

Section 12 Expenses Non-trust Estates

(1) The provisions of Section 11 so far as applicable shall govern the apportionment of expenses between tenants and remaindermen where no trust has been created subject however to any legal agreement of the parties or any specific direction of the taxing or other statutes but where either tenant or remainderman has incurred an expense for the benefit of his own estate and without the consent or agreement of the other he shall pay such expense in full.

(2) The special taxes or assessments for an improvement representing an addition of value to property forming part of the principal shall be paid by the tenant where such improvement cannot reasonably be expected to outlast the estate of the tenant. In all other cases a portion thereof only shall be paid by the tenant while the remainder shall be paid by the remainderman. Such portion shall be ascertained by taking that percentage of the total which is found by dividing the present value of the tenant's estate by the present value of an estate of the same form as that of the tenant except that it is limited for a period corresponding to the reasonably expected duration of the improvement. The computation of present values of the estates shall be made on the expectancy basis set forth in the American experience tables of mortality and no other evidence of duration or expectancy shall be considered.

Section 13 Short Title This act may be cited as the Principal and Income Act of 1947.

Section 14 Repeal The act approved the third day of May one thousand nine hundred and forty-five (P. L. 416) entitled "An act concerning the ascertainment of principal and income and the apportionment of receipts and expenses among tenants and remaindermen and to make uniform the law with reference thereto" and Section twenty-two of the act approved the seventh day of June one thousand nine hundred and seventeen (P. L. 447) entitled "An act relating to the administration and distribution of the estates of decedents and of minors and of trust estates including the appointment bonds rights powers duties liabilities accounts discharge and removal of executors administrators guardians and trustees herein designated as fiduciaries the administration and distribution of the estates of presumed decedents widows' and childrens' exemptions debts of decedents rents of real estate as assets for payment thereof the lien thereof sales and mortgages of real estate for the payment thereof judgments and executions therefor and the discharge of real estate from the lien thereof contracts of decedents for the sale or purchase of real estate legacies including legacies charged on land the discharge of residuary estates and of real estate from the lien of legacies and other charges the appraisement of real estate devised at a valuation the ascertainment of the curtilage of dwelling houses or other buildings devised the abatement and survival of actions and the substitution of executors and administrators therein the survival of causes of action in suits thereupon by or against fiduciaries investments by fiduciaries the organization of corporations to carry on the business of decedents the audit and review of accounts of fiduciaries refunding bonds transcripts to the court of common pleas of balances due by fiduciaries the rights powers and liabilities of nonresident and foreign fiduciaries the appointment bonds rights powers duties and liabilities of trustees durante absentia the recording and registration of decrees reports and other proceedings and the fees therefor appeals in certain cases and also generally dealing with the jurisdiction powers and procedure of the orphans' court in all matters relating to fiduciaries concerned with the estates of decedents" and their amendments and all other acts or parts of acts which are inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed absolutely.

Section 15 Time of Taking Effect The provisions of this act shall become effective upon the enactment thereof and shall apply to all estates of tenants or remaindermen and to all wills trusts agreements and trust relations and to estates of tenants or remaindermen thereafter made or created. Except that the provisions of Section 9 hereof shall apply only to wills trust agreements and trust relations thereafter made or created. And provided further that the provisions of this act shall not apply to receipts and expenses received or paid prior to the effective date of this act.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

AMENDED SENATE BILL RECALLED FROM THE GOVERNOR RETURNED FOR CONCURRENCE

SENATE BILL No. 428.

An Act to further amend clause (17) of subdivision (4) of subsection (L) of section four of the act, approved the fifth day of December, one thousand nine hundred thirty-six (1937 P. L., 2897), entitled "An act establishing a system of unemployment compensation to be administered by the Department of Labor and Industry and its existing and newly created agencies with personnel (with certain exceptions) selected on a civil service basis; requiring employers to keep records and make reports, and certain employers to pay contributions based on payrolls to provide moneys for the payment of compensation to certain unemployed persons; providing procedure and administrative details for the determination, payment and collection of such contributions and the payment of such compensation; providing for cooperation with the Federal Government and its agencies; creating certain special funds in the custody of the State Treasurer; and prescribing penalties," by expressly excluding from the definition of "employment" services of certain solicitors and salesmen who are compensated on a commission basis.

Said bill having been recalled from the Governor for amendment, the vote had on final passage and third reading reconsidered in the Senate and the bill amended, in which amendments the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the amendments.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR

The Secretary to the Governor being introduced, presented a communication in writing from His Excellency the Governor, which was read as follows:

APPROVAL OF RESOLUTION RECALLING HOUSE BILL No. 1286

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, May 31, 1947.

To the Honorable, the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

I have the honor to inform you that I have this day approved and signed House Concurrent Resolution recalling from the Governor House Bill No. 1286, Printer's No. 504, for the purpose of amendment.

Accordingly, the original bill is herewith returned.

JAMES H. DUFF

BILL AND COMMUNICATION LAID ON TABLE

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill together with the communication from the Governor, be laid on the table.

The motion was agreed to.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By consent of the House leave of absence was granted as follows:

Mr. Sproul for Mr. LAYER for tomorrow's session.

CONGRATULATORY RESOLUTION

Mr. BENDER offered a resolution which was read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, June 2, 1947.

Lieutenant (j. g.) Larry Chervenak, U. S. N. R., son of our able and amiable fellow member of the House of Representatives, the Honorable Michael C. Chervenak and Mrs. Chervenak, has just published his first book entitled "The Leftovers" based upon his experiences in the Pacific theatre after the cessation of hostilities.

Graduated from his high school as valedictorian of his class at the age of fifteen, Larry Chervenak gave early promise of abilities in the fields of public speaking and literature.

At Pennsylvania State College he became managing editor of the school paper, the "Daily Collegian," was President of the Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism society, President of Theta Xi, national social fraternity and won the college debate title was well as gaining the semi-final rounds of the national intercollegiate debate competition.

After further studies at Harvard University, Larry Chervenak entered the United States Navy in December, 1942, and soon was commissioned as an Ensign. As the youngest chief supply officer of a cruiser in the Navy he has visited thirty-four countries and rose to the rank of Lieutenant, senior grade, during the war and now holds the rank of Lieutenant, junior grade, in the Naval Reserve.

While in the service he continued his literary efforts through contributions to the "Navy Magazine," "Our Navy" and "This Week Magazine."

Having just received an assignment in Europe, Larry Chervenak is leaving to assume it in a few days; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the members of the House of Representatives extend their heartiest congratulations to the Honorable and Mrs. Michael C. Chervenak, and their son, Larry Chervenak, upon the publication of his first book and likewise extend their best wishes for its enthusiastic reception in the literary world; and be it further Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives transmit a certified copy of this resolution to the Honorable and Mrs. Michael C. Chervenak.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cambria Mr. Chervenak.

Mr. CHERVENAK. Mr. Speaker, the offering and adoption of the resolution congratulating Mrs. Chervenak and myself on our son Larry is a pleasing surprise—I mean it. However, let me say that whatever success my five children have is through the training of their mother, all credit goes to her. However pardon my parental pride, I want to say a few remarks about my other children. God has been kind to us by blessing us with five wonderful children. I like to speak briefly about them.

M. C. Chervenak, III, chemical engineer worked on the atom bomb at Oak Ridge. He was one of 10 percent of the scientific personnel who were awarded special medals for their contribution to the atom bomb.

Marcella Chervenak, Penn-State graduate, is now a research chemist at the University of Hawaii.

Bill Chervenak is attending the Navy School of Electronics at Corpus Christie.

Jim the baby. He likes to be called a baby, is a straight "A" Student in his senior year.

Mr. Speaker it is parental pride that causes me to include all of them. I want to express my and Mrs. Chervenak's thanks to Mr. Bender, the gentleman from Allegany, for offering the resolution. Also the House for its adoption. It will be one of those priceless possessions that Mrs. Chervenak and I will always cherish, as a reward that comes to parents for the sacrifices that parents have undergone ours has been a great reward.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The SPEAKER. The following Members will please report in the office of the Chief Clerk immediately for a five minute conference: Messrs. Serrill, Turner, Hewitt, Tahl, Laughner and Lovett.

CONDOLENCE RESOLUTION

Messrs. GOODLING and BENTZEL offered a resolution, which was read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, June 2, 1947.

Jacob M. Flinchbaugh, a former member of the House of Representatives, suddenly died at his home in Red Lion, Pennsylvania on May 30, 1947. He was 67 years of age.

A school teacher for many years and a mercantile appraiser for several years, our late former colleague was elected to the House of Representatives for seven terms and while a member gained the respect and admiration of many persons and enjoyed a popularity among his fellow members of the House of both political parties that few persons have achieved.

An earnest and sincere person, he was always active in church and charitable affairs.

At the time of his death, he was employed in the Treasury Department of the Commonwealth; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the members of the House of Representatives express their deep sorrow over the sudden death of their former colleague, Jacob M. Flinchbaugh, and respectfully extend to his widow, Mrs. Emma Belle Leber Flinchbaugh and to his daughter, Mrs. Edward Lucas, their sincerest expression of sympathy; and be it further Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives transmit a copy of this resolution to Mrs. Flinchbaugh and Mrs. Lucas as a token of their deepest sympathy.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The SPEAKER. The Members are requested to leave their Journal files on the desk so that the Sergeant at Arms may add a new volume.

SENATE

TUESDAY, June 3, 1947.

The Senate met at 11:30 o'clock, a. m., Eastern Standard Time.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (M. Harvey Taylor) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. W. MURRAY YOUNG offered the following prayer:

O Lord, our Lord, how excellent is Thy name in all the earth! Who hast set Thy glory above the heavens. We rejoice that we are privileged to laud and magnify Thy Holy Name, and be assured that Thy promises to the children of men are valid and sure, for Thou canst not deny Thyself. We rejoice in the fact that Thou hast promised happiness to the godly. And in the message of the Book we read:

Blessed is the man that walketh not in the council of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful.

But his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in His law doth he meditate day and night.

And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper.

Be pleased, O Jehovah God, to let happiness, filled with joy, peace and love flow through our hearts, homes and our nation, to the end that the New Jerusalem of universal good will and brotherhood shall possess the earth. In Thy Ineffable Name, we pray. Amen!

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. TALLMAN and Mr. MALLERY, further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

EXECUTIVE SESSION RISES

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I move that the Executive Session do now rise.

Mr. BLASS. Mr. President, I second the motion. The motion was agreed to.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. DONLAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. DONLAN from the Committee on Military Affairs and Aeronautics, reported as amended, Senate Bill No. 753, entitled:

An Act to further amend the act approved the second day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 1278), entitled "An act relating to counties of the second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth classes; and revising, amending and consolidating the laws relating thereto," by further changing the provisions for markers and headstones at the graves of deceased service persons, and prescribing penalties.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. DENT asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, the Committee on Education has just presented to the floor a so-called compromise bill known as Senate Bill 834. There is a misconception of the terms compromise in the minds of many persons interested in this legislation. I want it clearly understood that there is no compromise that involves the Democratic position in the matter of school teacher legislation contained in this bill.

This bill, as I understand it, is a compromise between Republican members of the Senate Committee on Education and the House Committee on Education. Democratic members on both these committees were not consulted nor were they a party to any agreement relative to this legislation. We therefore reserve the right to act accordingly.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. BARR asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, just a few moments ago the monstrosity commonly known as the Homsher-Berger Bill, Senate Bill 834, was presented to this Senate. In so doing they have completely ignored the first-class school districts of Pennsylvania. In these conference committees between Republican members of the House and the Senate, with the exception of one day for one hour, there was no one there, Republican or Democrat, representing first-class districts.

The first-class district which I happen to represent, the city of Pittsburgh, is in the same category as the first-class district of Philadelphia.

In this bill the subsidy calls for $700 return for the year 1947 and $800 return for the year 1948.

Mr. President, out of a total appropriation of $48,000,000 for the year of 1947, the city of Pittsburgh school district will receive the sum of $285,000 and in 1948 will receive $285,000 twice; in other words, to add $285,000 three times will get in the next biennium $855,000, with a $48,000,000 appropriation.

Mr. President, it looks to me as if a city that conducts an honest government, or a county that conducts an honest government on their assessments, are being penalized by the General Assembly this year. In the city of Pittsburgh we have a twenty-eight mill tax on land, a fourteen mill tax on buildings, an eight mill county tax, an eight and three-quarter mill school tax, adding up roughly to about a sixty mill tax.

On account of this monstrosity, this legislation pending here, the city of Pittsburgh will have to put on as a school tax, extra taxes. In other words, there will be a head tax, and added to that there will probably be a mercantile tax and, if that does not get enough, they will probably put on a personal property tax.

Just yesterday they put on an additional cigarette tax and an extra beer tax and I wonder, Mr. President, where the people of Pittsburgh and the people of Philadelphia are going to land. I am going to stand here and watch and see if any Senator from the city of Philadelphia or the city of Pittsburgh can vote for this bill. When the time comes to talk about the bill, I will have more to say about it, but I think this is perhaps the most unfair bill that ever came before this General Assembly.

Statistics show that the city of Pittsburgh is assessed about one-sixth of the taxes of this state; in other words, there are about $48,000,000 to be spent, so, just using common grade school arithmetic, we should receive $8,000,000, but instead of that for the next biennium we will receive $855,000.

BILLS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 758, as follows:

An Act to further amend section four hundred fifty-two of the act approved the ninth day of April one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 177) entitled "An act providing for and reorganizing the conduct of the executive and administrative work of the Commonwealth by the Executive Department thereof and the administrative departments boards commissions and officers thereof including the boards of trustees of State Normal Schools or Teachers Colleges abolishing creating reorganizing or authorizing the reorganization of certain administrative departments boards and commissions defining the powers and duties of the Governor and other executive and administrative officers and of the several administrative departments boards commissions and officers fixing the salaries of the Governor Lieutenant Governor and certain other executive and administrative officers providing for the appointment of certain administrative officers and of all deputies and other assistants and employees in certain departments boards and commissions and prescribing the manner in which the number and compensation of the deputies and all other assistants and employees of certain departments boards and commissions shall be determined as amended by further changing the provisions relating to the maximum compensation of the State Civil Service Commission

Section 1 Section four hundred fifty-two of the act approved the ninth day of April one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 177) entitled "An act providing for and reorganizing the conduct of the executive and administrative work of the Commonwealth by the Executive Department thereof and the administrative departments boards commissions and officers thereof including the boards of trustees of State Normal Schools or Teachers Colleges abolishing creating reorganizing or authorizing the reorganization of certain administrative departments boards and commissions defining the powers and duties of the Governor and other executive and administrative officers and of the several administrative departments boards commissions and officers fixing the salaries of the Governor Lieutenant Governor and certain other executive and administrative officers providing for the appointment of certain administrative officers and of all deputies and other assistants and employees in certain departments boards and commissions and prescribing the manner in which the number and compensation of the deputies and all other assistants and employees of certain departments boards and commissions shall be determined" as last amended by the act approved the twentieth day of March one thousand nine hundred forty-five (P. L. 44) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 452 State Civil Service Commission The State Civil Service Commission is hereby created and shall consist of three members not more than two of whom shall be of the same political affiliation Of the original members all of whom shall be appointed within thirty days after the effective date of this act one shall be appointed for a term of two years one for a term of four years and one for a term of six years from the date of his appointment and until his successor shall have been appointed and qualified Thereafter each appointment shall be for a term of six years or until a successor is appointed and qualified The members of the commission shall hold no other public position to which a salary is attached shall have qualifications for appointment and shall be removable from office as provided by law The Governor shall designate one of the members as chairman

Each member of the commission shall receive actual traveling expenses and per diem compensation at the rate of twenty-five dollars per day for the time actually devoted to the business of the commission but no member shall be paid more than [one thousand five hundred dollars] three thousand dollars per diem compensation in any one year [, except that with the approval of the Governor such limitation on the aggregate amount of one thousand five hundred dollars shall not apply for the biennium 1943-1945 nor for the duration of the war and six months thereafter]

Section 2 This act shall become effective immediately upon its final enactment

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, on Senate Bill 758 I intend to vote for it, but, as you know, the understanding originally was that all these salary raises would only amount to ten per cent and I want to call to the attention of the Senate that this is far above that.

Section 501 Examinations Requisite for Appointment and Promotion (a) Except as otherwise provided in this act appointments of persons entering the classified service or promoted therein shall be from eligible lists established as the results of examinations given by the director to determine the relative merit of candidates Such examinations shall be written and competitive and open to all persons who may be lawfully appointed to positions within the classes for which the examinations are held Persons applying for positions or promotions in the offices designated as central administrative offices (which shall include all those having jurisdiction throughout the State) shall be citizens of the United States and shall have been legal residents of the Commonwealth for a period of not less than one year before making application and persons applying for positions or promotions in offices designated as district offices (which shall include all those whose jurisdiction is limited to a particular district) shall be citizens of the United States and shall have been legal residents of the Commonwealth for a period of not less than one year and in the district in which such office having jurisdiction thereof is located for a period of not less than six months before making application. The director shall prepare the proper State and district employment and promotion eligible lists when necessary. Provided That after an examination has been conducted for any class of position if there is no person with such legal residence in any administrative district who has passed the examination the director may certify and the appointing authority may make the appointment or promotion from the names of persons on an appropriate eligible list for the same class of positions of administrative districts which are contiguous or nearby to the administrative district in which there is no person on the appropriate eligible list. [Any person who has passed the examination may be placed on the employment list for offices designated as district offices if such person indicates his desire for employment in such office. The appointing authority for that office may at its discretion refuse to consider such a person for appointment if he does not have legal residence in that district and may request that the director certify only persons having legal residence in that district. Provided however That the option of refusing consideration to persons not having legal residence in the district is automatically voided at any time that the employment list does not contain the names of persons having legal residence in the district.] Limitations as to age sex health moral character experience and other qualifications may be specified in the rules of the commission and in the announcements of the examinations. All applications for positions in the classified service shall be under oath. As far as is in the judgment of the commission consistent with the best interest of the Commonwealth vacancies shall be filled by promotion. The commission may limit competition in promotion examinations to employees in the classified service who have completed their probationary period in a class or classes designated in the public notice of the examinations and may permit promotions to be accomplished by any one of the three following plans (1) by appointment from open competitive lists or (2) by appointment without examination if the person has completed his probationary period in the next lower position and if he meets the minimum requirements for the higher position or (3) by achieving a place on an eligible list after a promotional examination such examination having been given at the request of the appointing authority.

Section 502 Nature of Examinations. The director shall give examinations to establish employment and promotion lists. The tests in such examination may be written and may also include oral tests or a demonstration of skill or a combination of these which shall fairly appraise and determine the merit qualifications fitness and ability of competitors. Such tests shall be practical in character and shall relate to the duties and responsibilities of the position for which the applicant is being examined and shall fairly test the relative capacity and fitness of persons examined to perform the duties of the class of positions to which they seek to be appointed or promoted but no applicant shall be required to be possessed of any scholastic education in order to be permitted to take any competitive examination or to be appointed or promoted to any position. No greater credit for experience gained during a provisional emergency or temporary appointment under this act or acts repealed hereby shall be given to any person in any examination than is given in such examination for experience in the same type of work performed in a similar position not under the provisions of this act or acts repealed hereby. In evaluating experience in order to compute the final rating in any examination to establish employment and promotion lists persons other than dishonorably discharged after active service during any war in which the United States engaged from any branch of the armed service of the United States or from any women's uniformed service directly connected therewith shall not be given less credit for experience than would be given for continued experience in the position held at the time of induction in the service. No question in any examination shall relate to the race religion or political or labor union affiliation of the candidate.

Section 507 Duration of Employment and Promotion. Lists Appointing authorities shall utilize employment and promotion lists from the date of their establishment until exhausted cancelled by the commission or replaced by more recently prepared lists. Provided That when an appointing authority deems it to be in the best interests of the Commonwealth the commission shall cancel such lists if two years or more have elapsed since a competitive examination was held. The director with the approval of the commission may at any time correct clerical errors occurring in connection with the preparation of any employment or promotion list and revise the list accordingly but no person who has been appointed as the result of certification from such list shall be displaced by such action. Any persons whose announced rating or position on the list is changed by correcting any clerical errors shall be notified. The commission shall have the power at any time after giving notice as required in this act and after a public hearing to cancel the whole or any part of any employment or promotion list on account of illegality or fraud in connection therewith.

Section 802 Furlough. In case a reduction in force is necessary in the classified service no employee shall be furloughed while any probationary or provisional employee is employed in the same classification and no probationary employee shall be furloughed while a provisional employee is employed in the same classification. An employee shall be furloughed only if at the time he is furloughed he is within the lowest quarter among all employees of the employer in the same classification on the basis of their last regular service ratings and within this quarter he shall be furloughed in the order of seniority. Provided That the appointing authority may limit the application of this provision in any particular instance to employees in the same classification with headquarters at a particular municipality county or administrative district of the Commonwealth.

A furloughed employee shall have the right of return to any classification and civil service status which he previously held provided such classification is contained in the current classification plan of the agency or to any classification and civil service status in the same or lower grade provided that he meets the minimum qualifications given in the classification plan of the agency provided that in both instances there is a vacancy with the same appointing authority. The appointing authority shall promptly report to the director the names of employees furloughed together with the date the furlough of each is effective and the character of his services. Under the rules a permanent employee furloughed shall for a period of one year be given preference for reemployment in the same class of position in the department from which he was furloughed and shall be eligible for appointment to a position of a similar class in other agencies under this act provided that in case of a promotion of another employee such preference shall not be effective if it necessitates furloughing such other employee.

Section 807 Removal. (a) No person in the classified service shall be removed except for just cause which shall not be his race religion or political partisan or labor union affiliation. To all persons in the classified service except provisional temporary and emergency employees or probationary employees [who have served longer than two months] written notice of removal setting forth the reasons for such action and effective date thereof must be furnished. They shall have ten days from the receipt of such written notice to give the appointing authority such written answer as the person removed may desire. In every case of removal a copy of the statement of reasons therefor with the full written answer thereto if any shall be furnished to the commission by the appointing authority within ten days from the receipt of the written answer and shall be made a part of the public records of the commission. Within thirty days after receipt of such notice of removal from an appointing authority the commission upon the request of the appointing authority or of the removal employee or upon its own behalf shall initiate an investigation which shall include a public hearing. Such investigation and hearing may be conducted by the commission or by anyone designated by the commission. The investigation and hearing shall be for the purpose of fairly determining whether the employee involved merits continuance in his position or should be removed therefrom or otherwise disciplined for the good of the service. At the hearing the commission or those acting for the commission shall not be required to follow technical rules of evidence or court procedure but shall diligently seek all of the evidence and information bearing on the merits of the case. Where an investigation is conducted at the request of the removed employee the commission within ten days after the completion of such investigation and hearing or sooner if practicable shall make its findings and conclusions which shall be forthwith certified to the appointing authority. If the commission finds that the action complained of was taken by the appointing authority for any political partisan religious or racial reason or because of labor union affiliation the employee shall be reinstated to his position without loss of pay. In all other cases the final decision shall not be reviewable by any court but if such final decision is in favor of the employee the appointing authority shall reinstate him with the payment of so much of the salary or wages lost by him as the commission may in its discretion order. The commission may in its discretion upon request of an appointing authority order that the name of any person whose removal from the classified service has become final and binding be placed at the head of the appropriate eligible list or that he be transferred or reinstated to his former or a lower position provided that he meets the minimum qualification for the position and provided that such action is taken not later than thirty days after the appointing authority has [certified his decision] made its request to the commission.

(b) Charges against any employee in the classified service asking for his removal for a violation of law or for any cause enumerated in the rules may be filed by any citizen or taxpayer with the appropriate appointing authority and with the director. Charges so filed shall at the discretion of the commission be recorded in its minutes be investigated and determined in the manner provided in this section.

(c) Notwithstanding the provisions of this act the Governor may upon recommendation of the appointing authority suspend or remove the director and any employee if he deems such action to the best interests of the public service.

(d) Demoted or furloughed employees shall have such rights of notice and hearing similar to those provided under this section for removed employees as shall be prescribed in the rules of the commission.

Section 2 Article II of said act is hereby amended to read as follows

Article II

Civil Service Commission and [Personnel] Executive Director and Their Powers

Section 3 Subsection (b) of section three and sections three hundred one four hundred one six hundred three six hundred four six hundred six six hundred seven seven hundred one seven hundred four eight hundred four eight hundred six and nine hundred four of said act are hereby amended to read as follows

Section 3 Definition of Terms In this act unless the context otherwise clearly requires

(b) "Director" means the [Personnel] Executive Director

* * * * *

Section 301 Establishment of Classes The director shall [within ninety days] as soon as practicable after taking office and after consultation with the Executive Board of the Commonwealth State appointing authorities and principal supervising officials classify all of the positions in the classified service according to the duties and responsibilities of each position. The plan of classification shall designate appropriate titles for each class of position and shall recommend to the commission the qualifications to be required of persons assigned or appointed to positions in each class. The completed classification plan shall be so arranged that all positions which are substantially similar with respect to authority responsibility and character of work are included within the same class that the same tests of competency may be applied to persons to be appointed to all positions in a class and that the same schedule of compensation can be made to apply with fairness under like working conditions to all positions in a class. The statement which shall be known and described as "The Classification Plan" shall show for each class

(a) The title given to the class

(b) The duties and responsibilities exercised by those holding positions allocated to the class illustrated where necessary by descriptions of typical tasks

(c) The minimum qualifications required for the satisfactory performance of such duties and tasks and the exercising of such responsibilities

(d) As far as practicable the lines of promotion to and from the class

The director shall present such classification plan to the commission. The commission after adopting such classification plan either as presented or in modified form shall publish the classification plan.

Section 401 Compensation Schedules For each class established under this act the director shall make a study of the rates paid for similar services elsewhere and of other information pertaining to proper rates of compensation and after consultation with state appointing authorities and their principal assistants [and approval by the commission shall report] shall present to the commission which shall submit to the Executive Board of the Commonwealth for its approval modification or rejection a schedule of compensation for each class. Such schedules shall show for each class a minimum salary rate a maximum salary rate and such intermediate rate or rates as the director considers necessary and proper [Subject to the approval of the commission the] The director may from time to time recommend to the commission which shall submit to the Executive Board of the Commonwealth for its approval modification or rejection changes in the schedule of compensation for any class together with the reasons therefor. Pending the adoption of such compensation schedules and the appropriation of funds to make payments for personal services in accordance therewith the compensation of employees in the classified service shall be in accordance with the existing law.

Section 603 Probationary Period (a) No appointment to a position in the classified service shall be deemed complete until after the expiration of a probationary period. The probationary period for each class of position shall be prescribed in the rules of the commission and shall in no case be less than three months or more than nine months. At such times during the probationary period and in such manner as the director may require the appointing authority shall report to the director his observation of the work of the employee and his judgment as to the willingness and ability of the employee to perform his duties satisfactorily and as to his dependability. At any time during his probationary period [after the first two months thereof] the appointing authority may remove an employee if in the opinion of the appointing authority the probation indicates that such employee is unable or unwilling to perform his duties satisfactorily or that his dependability does not merit his continuance in the service Upon such removal the appointing authority shall forthwith report his action to the director and to the employee so removed No more than three employees shall be removed successively from the same position during their probationary periods without the approval of the director [The appointing authority may remove an employee within the first two months of his probationary period only with the approval of the director] The director with the approval of the commission shall remove an employee during his probationary period if it is found after the employee has been given notice and an opportunity to be heard that he was appointed as a result of fraud

(b) Ten days prior to the expiration of an employee's probationary period the appointing authority shall notify the director in writing whether the services of the employee have been satisfactory A copy of such notice shall be given to the employee If the employee's work has been satisfactory he shall at the completion of his probationary period become a classified service employee under the provisions hereof and continue in that position unless separated therefrom as herein provided

(c) If any employee is removed from his position during or at the end of his probationary period and the director determines that he is suitable for appointment to another position his name may be restored to the list from which it was certified

Section 604 Provisional Appointments Whenever there is great and urgent public need for filling a vacancy in any position in the classified service and the director is unable to certify an eligible for the vacancy he may authorize the filling of the vacancy by provisional appointment If he does authorize such appointment he shall certify not more than three qualified persons with or without examination and the appointing authority shall appoint one of the persons so certified A provisional appointment shall continue only until an appropriate eligible list can be established and certification made therefrom but in no event for more than ninety days in any twelve-month period except that during the first year after the [effective date of this act] repeal of the act approved the fourth day of June one thousand nine hundred forty-three (P. L. 870) provisional appointments may continue until appropriate eligible lists can be established and a person may serve in the classified service under provisional appointment until appropriate eligible lists can be established and certification made therefrom Successive provisional appointments of the same or different persons shall not be made to the same position The acceptance of a provisional appointment shall not confer upon the appointee any rights of permanent tenure transfer promotion or reinstatement

Section 606 Emergency Appointments Any appointing authority or any subordinate authorized by him may to prevent serious impairment of the public business when an emergency arises and time will not permit securing the authorization from the director for the appointment of a certified eligible appoint any qualified person during the emergency for a period not exceeding [ten] thirty days and may with the approval of the commission be extended for a further period not to exceed thirty days The existence of a vacancy of which the appointing authority has had reasonable notice or of employment conditions of which the appointing authority had previous knowledge shall not be considered an emergency Persons thus appointed shall be known as emergency employees Appointing authorities shall forthwith report to the director all emergency appointments and such appointments shall not be renewed

Section 607 Status of Employees Holding Positions When Act Takes Effect Any employee who holds a position which is in the classified service as herein defined and which was in the classified service under the law in force immediately preceding the effective date of this act shall if he has been appointed after appropriate competitive or competitive promotional examination and has successfully completed his probationary period become a classified service employee under the provisions hereof and continue in that position unless separated therefrom as herein provided Any such employee who has not completed such probationary period at the time this act takes effect shall retain his status as a probationary employee until the expiration of that probationary period If he successfully completes his probationary period he shall become a classified service employee under the provisions hereof and continue in that position unless separated therefrom as herein provided Any provisional employee holding a position in a bureau division board or department having a merit system under the law in force immediately preceding the effective date of this act shall become a provisional employee under the terms hereof All war-duration appointments reclassifications and promotions made pursuant to the provisions of the act approved the fourth day of June one thousand nine hundred forty-three (P. L. 870) shall continue as war-duration appointments until appropriate eligible lists have been established and certifications made therefrom Any employee having accepted war-duration appointment reclassification or promotion shall have the right of return to his former position and status in the classified service

Section 701 Training Programs The director [shall] devise and recommend plans for employee training programs to may develop in cooperation with appointing authorities and other supervising officials and shall if requested cooperate with them in the conduct of such plans for employee training programs to the end that the quality of service rendered by persons in the classified service may be continually improved

Section 704 Service Standards and Ratings In cooperation with appointing authorities the director shall establish and may from time to time amend standards of performance and output for employees in each class of positions in the classified service or for groups of classes and a system of service ratings based upon such standards [In such manner and with such weight as may be provided in the rules service ratings shall be considered in determining salary increases and decreases within the limits established by law and by the compensation plan and as a factor in promotion examinations provided that all applicants for promotions in the same class of position are credited on an equal basis according to their individual service rating and as a factor in determining the order of furlough when forces must be reduced because of lack of funds or work and the order in which names are to be restored on employment lists and as a means of discovering employees who should be promoted demoted transferred or removed In such manner and at such time as the rules may require each appointing authority shall report to the director the service ratings of employees under his jurisdiction or such information as the director may request as a basis for determining such service ratings Upon request any employee shall be informed of his service rating and may be informed of the service ratings of other employees in the same class] Service ratings shall be considered for such purposes as the rules of the commission shall provide

Section 804 Removal during Probationary Period The appointing authority may remove an employee from the classified service at any time [after two months from the date of his appointment and] before the expiration of the probationary period The appointing authority shall furnish the director with a statement in writing of the cause of the removal The person so removed shall be considered permanently separated from his position but the director may if he considers such action appropriate place the name of the person thus removed on the employment list of the appropriate class for future certification to other appointing authorities

Section 806 Resignation The rules of the commission shall state what shall constitute resignation from the classified service Absence from duty for five consecutive working days without notice to the appointing authority may be regarded as an abandonment of a position and in effect a resignation [No person who has voluntarily resigned from the service shall be restored to his position] within six months from the effective date of his resignation. No resignation of any person in the classified service shall be effective unless accepted by the appointing authority within fifteen days after the actual date of the making thereof. No person about to be appointed to any position in the service of the Commonwealth shall in advance of or at the time of such appointment sign or execute a resignation dated or undated. No resignation shall be made or shall be valid unless it bears the signature of the person resigning and the date of the resignation in his handwriting. Any person who resigns from the classified service may ask the commission in writing within fifteen days after such resignation for a public hearing stating his reasons. If on investigation there appears to be good evidence that the employe has been forced to resign against his will and without just cause or that his separation from the service has been involuntary and without just cause the commission shall grant him within thirty days a public hearing as hereinafter provided in the case of removal or demotion and shall treat the separation as though it were a removal.

Section 904 Prohibition of Political Activity. No person in the classified service shall be a member of or delegate or alternate to any political convention nor shall he participate at any such convention except in the performance of his official duty or as a visitor nor shall he serve as a member of [or attend the meetings of] any committee of any political party or take an active part in political management or in political campaigns or use his office or position to influence political movements or to influence the political action of any officer or employe in the service of the Commonwealth nor shall he circulate or seek signatures to any nominations or other petition required by any primary or election law nor shall he seek or accept election nomination or appointment as an officer of a political club or organization or serve as a member of a committee of any such club or organization nor shall he in any manner participate in or interfere with the conduct of any election or the preparation therefor at the polling place or with the election officers while counting the votes or returning the election material to the place provided by law for that purpose save only for the purpose of making and depositing his own ballot as speedily as it reasonably can be done nor shall he be within the polling place or within fifty feet thereof except for the purpose of carrying out official duties and of ordinary travel or residence during the period of time beginning with one hour preceding the opening of the polls for holding such election and ending with the time when the election officers shall have finished counting the votes and have left the polling place for the purpose of depositing the election material in the place provided by law for that purpose excepting only police officers who may temporarily approach or enter the polling place in order to make any arrest permitted by law or for the purpose of preserving order and in each case remain only long enough to accomplish the duties aforesaid after which the said officers shall at once withdraw. Provided however That the rights of any individual as a citizen are not impaired hereby and the prerogative to attend meetings to hear or see any candidate or nominee or to express one's individual opinion shall remain inviolate.

Section 4 Repealer. The following Act of Assembly is hereby repealed absolutely:

The act approved the fourth day of June one thousand nine hundred forty-three (P. L. 870) entitled "An act relating to appointments reclassifications and promotions made under any civil service system of this Commonwealth after the effective date of this act until a period after the cessation of hostilities making such appointments of war duration providing for examinations at the end of such period and providing for experience credit for men and women honorably discharged from the armed forces or the uniformed services of the United States suspending inconsistent laws saving the right to return to former position and status suspending powers and duties of the Personnel Director of the State Civil Service Commission for a limited period and conferring powers on the State Civil Service Commission."

Section 5 All other acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

Section 6 The provisions of this act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment.

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 771, as follows:

An Act to further amend section seven and to amend section eight of the act approved the second day of May one thousand eight hundred eighty-nine (P. L. 66) entitled "An act defining and regulating escheats in cases where property is without a lawful owner and providing for more convenient proceedings relative to the same" by providing that any number of items held by any administrator or executor trustee fiduciary depository of the court receiver or other officers of the court which are escheatable may be joined in one action of escheat and further providing for the right in the Attorney General or any person prosecuting any escheat action to discovery of any property without a rightful owner so held and further providing that the Attorney General or any other person authorized by The Fiscal Code to prosecute the right of the Commonwealth to escheatable property shall have the same rights and powers as an escheator and shall have the right to prosecute the right of the Commonwealth in the same manner as an escheator and further providing that the court may make orders relative to advertising and notice of the proceedings whether the escheatable property is real or personal.

Section 1 Section seven of the act approved the second day of May one thousand eight hundred eighty-nine (P. L. 66) entitled "An act defining and regulating escheats in cases where property is without a lawful owner and providing for more convenient proceedings relative to the same" as last amended by the act approved the thirteenth day of April one thousand nine hundred forty-three (P. L. 41) is hereby further amended to read as follows:

Section 7 That whensoever any escheator shall be duly commissioned by the [Auditor General] Department of Revenue of and concerning any property real or personal escheated or supposed to have escheated to the Commonwealth under the provisions of this act he shall apply by petition to the court having jurisdiction in the premises to hear and determine whether an escheat has occurred or not and shall in his petition set forth the facts of his appointment and the nature and character of the alleged escheat and shall also state as far as he conveniently can the location character and amount of the property real and personal alleged to have escheated together with the name and address of the person or persons having the same in his or their possession whereupon the said court shall have power to issue a summons or citation directed to any administrator or executor trustee fiduciary depository of the court receiver or other officer of the court to show cause if any they have why they should not file a true and accurate account of all and singular the said property alleged to have escheated as aforesaid and if upon sufficient proof by oath or affirmation of the service of said summons or citation no good and valid cause be shown to the contrary the said court shall proceed to direct said administrator or executor trustee fiduciary depository of the court receiver or other officer of the court to file his said account Any number of items of any property real or personal may be joined in one action against any administrator or executor trustee fiduciary depository of the court receiver or other officer of the court though held by said administrator or executor trustee fiduciary depository of the court receiver or other officer of the court for different persons under various fiduciary obligations or trusts or in any other manner whatsoever At any stage of said proceedings the Attorney General or any person who is authorized under the provisions of The Fiscal Code approved the ninth day of April one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 343) to prosecute such escheat proceedings shall be entitled to discovery with respect to the subject matter of the said proceedings against any administrator or executor trustee fiduciary depository of the court receiver or other officer of the court without the necessity of specifying the items which should escheat with the right to compel an answer or answers under oath to subpoena all persons as witnesses and to compel the production of all books papers and records and from time to time the pleadings may be amended to pray for the escheat of specific items escheatable under the laws of this Commonwealth and to make parties to the proceedings such other parties who shall have or who may have an interest in the said proceedings The Attorney General or any person who is authorized under the provisions of The Fiscal Code approved the ninth day of April one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 343) to prosecute the right of the Commonwealth to any property real or personal which has escheated or which is supposed to have escheated under the laws of the Commonwealth shall in addition to any other rights and powers vested in him by law have the same rights and powers as those prescribed by law for an escheator and shall have the right to prosecute an escheat proceeding in the same manner as prescribed by law for proceedings by an escheator And in all cases where any real estate has escheated or is supposed to have escheated by reason of the death of the person last seized thereof without heirs or known kindred the said court shall have power to order the administrator or executor of said person to file a true and accurate statement of all the real estate whereof said decedent died seized describing the same by metes and bounds together with the buildings and improvements thereon erected as far as he has been able to ascertain the same And whensoever it shall appear by the account of any executor or administrator or any receiver or other officer of the court or of any trustee or other person in a fiduciary capacity or upon the audit of any such account that the said receiver or other officer trustee or other person has in his possession or has any knowledge of the existence of any real estate which shall have escheated or is supposed to have escheated to the Commonwealth the said court shall have power to order and direct the said administrator or executor receiver or other officer trustee or other person filing an account as

SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE, TUESDAY, JUNE 3, 1947 AT ONE p. m., EASTERN STANDARD TIME.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The hour of one p. m., Eastern Standard Time having arrived, the next order of business is the special order of business on third reading and final passage bills, as follows, Senate Bill 230, Senate Bill 280, Senate Bill 361, Senate Bill 677, Senate Bill 678, Senate Bill 723, Senate Bill 775, Senate Bill 801, House Bill 826, House Bill 952, House Bill 1001, House Bill 1076.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I offer the following resolution and ask that it be read for the information of the Senate.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. TALLMAN. Mr. President, I rise on a Parliamentary Inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Lehigh will state his Parliamentary Inquiry.

Mr. TALLMAN. As I understand it, Mr. President, the Senate is now engaged on the special order of business set for one o'clock standard time, and I enquire whether the resolution just offered by the gentleman from Allegheny is within that order of business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair inquires of the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Holland, whether the resolution just presented is with reference to Senate Bill 230.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, the resolution is on the order of business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair calls to the attention of the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Holland, that the special order of business has to do with the bills as listed under that heading on the calendar and that the resolution presented by the gentleman from Allegheny is not with reference to Senate Bill No. 230, the bill now before the Senate for consideration.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, in order to expedite matters we had determined—and I think that is the understanding of both leaders—that we would take a period of general debate and discussion that would cover the contents of all the bills that are up under the special order of business. By so doing we can conserve time and still put into the record the arguments pro and con for the passage or non-passage of this legislation.

In that spirit this resolution is offered, as part of that program, as I understand it, it deals with all of the bills before us under the special order of business. If we are to break down our debate to each individual bill it will consume a great deal more time. However, that decision rests with the Chair.

Mr. TALLMAN. May the Senate be at ease?

DEBATE ON SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS BILLS TO APPLY TO ALL BILLS

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I move, in the debate on the bills under the special order of business, that all discussion will not be restricted to any one bill, or not be confined to any one particular bill, and that in the discussion any member may select any one of the group of bills for argument at any time, and I so move.

Mr. TALLMAN. I second the motion, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair understands that the motion covers all the bills under the special order of business, as contained in the first nine pages of today's calendar, namely, Senate Bills 230, 280, 361, 677, 678, 723, 775, 801, House Bills 826, 952, 1001, and House Bill 1076.

Mr. DENT. That is correct, Mr. President.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

MOTION THAT BILLS BE RE-COMMITTED TO COMMITTEE ON LABOR AND INDUSTRY

Mr. HOLLAND. In pursuance to Senate Resolution 62, introduced by Senator Dent and Senator Haluska, directing the Joint State Government Commission to study and investigate labor laws and report to the next session of the General Assembly, which resolution reads as follows:

In the Senate of Pennsylvania, May 12, 1947.

In order to effectuate a better understanding of the problems affecting both Labor and Industry and to bring about a more harmonious and cooperative meeting of Labor and Industry for the general welfare of the people of this Commonwealth, be it

Resolved, That the Joint State Government Commission is hereby directed to study and investigate the labor laws of this State and of other States, the advantages and disadvantages, merits and effects of such labor laws in this State and in other States and report its findings and conclusions to the next regular session of the General Assembly together with such proposed legislation as it deems necessary to carry out its recommendations.

This resolution, Mr. President, was unanimously adopted by the Senate, May 12, 1947. In view of this resolution, Mr. President, I feel we are already committed.

MOTION THAT ALL BILLS ON THE SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS BE RECOMMITTED

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bills Nos. 230, 280, 361, 677, 678, 723, 775, 801; House Bills Nos. 826, 952, 1001, 1076; be recommitted to the Committee on Labor and Industry, until their contents are studied by the Joint State Government Commission, as per the resolution passed by the Senate.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. HOLLAND and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—16

Barr,	Holland,	Leader,	Ruth,
Dent,	Jaspan,	Margie,	Stiefel,
DiSilvestro,	Klein,	Rahausen,	Tarr,
Haluska,	Lane,	Rosenfeld,	Woodring

Berger,	Frazier,	Mallery,	Wagner,
Blass,	Geltz,	Scarlett,	Watson,
Carr,	Hare,	Snowden,	Wilson,
Chapman,	Heyburn,	Stevenson,	Wolfe,
Crider,	Homsher,	Tallman,	Wood, L. H.,
Crowe,	Kephart,	Taylor,	Wood, T. N.,
Doehla,	Letzler,	Tyler,	Walker,
Donlan,	Lord,		Presiding Officer

So the question was determined in the negative.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President and members of the Senate, in order that there can be no question as to the nature and intent of the remarks that I am about to make on the general attitude of both major parties on labor legislation, I have prepared a statement in conjunction with some briefs, and with permission of the Senate I intend to present the statement and send to the Chair the briefs for inclusion in the Legislative Journal.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Hearing no objection, permission is granted.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, this attack upon the general welfare of labor as an organized group is the second phase in the well planned attack designed to destroy labor Unions as effective bargaining agencies.

The first phase started during the war and immediately after the end of hostilities. That phase dealt with the political freedom of labor organizations. In this State, through the medium of the Farrell Acts and in the Federal Congress through the Smith-Connolly and other equally as disastrous acts, the political activities of Unions were curtailed. Through the unprecedented demand by subsidized editorials, paid full spread advertising and the Peglerized rantings of biased columnist, legislation was passed that has in effect destroyed the effectiveness of concerted political action by Union workmen. By throwing up legal barriers to the raising and spending of political funds, by accusing labor leaders of raising and squandering huge slush funds politically, by sabotaging even the paltry $1.00 per member drive of the C. I. O.—P. A. C., the labor haters and baiters were able to destroy for the time being any chance of success for labor's friends in a political campaign. No better illustration can be given to prove this point than recalling the defeat of Senator Joseph F. Guffey by such a large majority by a candidate whose labor record in public office consisted entirely of promise and no practice.

Another example to prove my contentions concerns the publicity given to the so-called spending by the C. I. O.—P. A. C. during last year's election in Pennsylvania. Newspapers gave wide publicity to statements by the anti-labor candidates charging this labor group with spending sums ranging from one million to six million dollars. The truth of the matter was that this labor group spent approximately $7000, a sum much less than was spent in one South Philadelphia ward to get the votes of the very group of citizens who were supposed to be protected from this sort of electioneering by the State and Federal laws.

I need not take the time of the Senate to give you the picture of the A. F. of L's political activities. I don't know how much or if any money was spent by this group. If there was any money spent it was not spent for me or my colleagues on the Democratic ticket as this group adopted a state-wide strategy of straddling and endorsed neither political party. By so doing they hoped to escape the second phase of the anti-labor campaign. However, the bills upon our calendar today, plus the Federal Acts being pushed through Congress by the Republican party proves to me, if not to them, that you can't get away from supporting your friends and defeating your enemies.

If we were interested solely in election returns, the Democratic party in Pennsylvania at this time could very well be the sponsors and supporters of the very legislation we are now so bitterly opposed to. We oppose the legislation without hope of reward, except in the satisfaction that comes from doing that which we believe to be right.

We believe we are right in the course we are taking, although at the moment it may mean condemnation . . . condemnation inspired and fanned to a fever pitch by misguided individuals and groups who are attempting to convince themselves while confusing others, into a belief that labor must be curbed if this Nation is to prosper. The trouble with this element of our society is that it talks about the common good and the common welfare while measuring its private bank accounts.

Future events will prove who was right in this all important decision. Today, with most persons employed and with some backlog of savings, the legislation won't look too important to millions of men and women who work for a living. However, after the third phase of the anti-Union campaign is over and labor again finds itself bidding for jobs, when its hands are tied and its feet are chained, when the wages and hours are dictated under the terms of these acts of the legislature, then the importance of what we are doing here today will become apparent.

We cannot support these bills because they are legal restraints upon individuals and organizations, that were conceived in anger and is giving birth to the bitter fruits of distrust, misunderstanding and a sadistic desire for revenge.

Legal barriers and restraints lose their effectiveness and potency when times of adversity set in. Men and women think little of violating restrictive laws when they are hungry and in need. It is about the same as a soldier in the heat of battle when he charges into the lines of the enemy, although he may lose his life by so doing. We all witnessed the sorry spectacle when during the depression the farmers of the midwest refused to allow the orderly process of law in the matter of evictions and seizure of property.

I am a believer in the orderly processes of Government. I am a firm believer in law and order, and because I so believe I cannot support this legislation conceived and dedicated to the destruction of labor as an organized bargaining agency. I sincerely believe there is more danger to America in bread lines and soup kitchens than in the unbridled raving and ranting of radicals, regardless of their color.

Every man on this side of the Senate loves his home and family. Not one of us would cast a vote in this Senate Chamber to endanger either. However, we believe our homes to be safe and our children free just so long as our neighbor, be he labor or capital, enjoys the same rights and privileges as we claim for ourselves.

This legislation, when grouped together, fails to follow this philosophy, but puts barriers, pitfalls, restrictions and shackles upon one group of our citizenry, the men and women who belong to the labor organizations. The best proof of this statement appears in the history of the Senate, where the story unfolds itself in the many amendments put into the original bills by the sponsors with the hope, as they put it, "to make the bills less objectionable." Can sound legislation come out of this kind of thinking? It can not and will not!

This brings us to the Democratic platform of 1946 and the Republican platform of 1946, from which I will quote just one particular paragraph: "We will continue to broaden and liberalize the workmen's compensation and occupational disease laws at a level comparable with other states having similar industries with similar risks.

Ladies and gentlemen, to date there has not been one piece of legislation come from Republican-controlled committees that would give to labor any increased benefits in workmen's compensation or in occupational disease compensation. There is a bill, however, that purports to give some increased benefits in unemployment compensation. One would have to be very naive if he thought for one minute any person who reads House Bill 952 can find anything beneficial to labor in the contents of that bill.

At this point I would like to comment upon the general attitude of the sponsors of this anti-labor legislation since its introduction.

After a bitter fight by the recognized leaders of labor through the medium of the Democratic members of the Committee on Labor and Industry, the committee gave a public hearing on the anti-labor bills. However, they were denied the right to a hearing on Senate Bills Nos. 127, 265, 374 and 429, the labor bills that would give labor some gains in its uphill struggle in Pennsylvania.

This hearing was held with a gag upon the committee members. The whole attitude of the majority committee members was one of impatience and forgone conclusions. The time allocated to both sides was extremely short, in fact more time was allowed in every other public hearing I have ever attended in all my experience in Harrisburg.

The Republican party feels that it has a mandate from the voters to hamstring union activities, to curb labor and to show who is the boss. The Senate Republican members of the Committee on Labor and Industry are being used as the tool to put into effect this so-called mandate.

I wonder how many persons within the hearing of my voice can remember the sessions of 1935 and 1937 in the Pennsylvania Legislature. Can you remember how the opposition fought bitterly because the Democratic party tried to give unemployment Compensation to unemployed workers, compensation to men injured in industry, occupational disease compensation to the victims of the dread industrial and mining diseases? Remember the bitterness when we passed the labor relations act, the maximum hours law for female employees and the minimum wage standard acts.

Do you remember the high drama in this Senate when we passed the trainmans' legislation called "full crew legislation?"

Yes, and you can remember too, how after the General Assembly and the Democratic Governor had approved the greatest social and humane program ever advocated in the history of Pennsylvania, the opposition started right in to cut it apart by first attacking it in the Supreme Court, and through the greatest campaign of personal persecution ever witnessed in Pennsylvania. Yes, labor legislation has had a rocky road to travel, and here today the Republican majority in the Senate is putting upon its brow the final kiss of death.

I submit, Mr. President, and members of the Senate, that you may destroy by legal actions the rights and privileges of labor, but you will never destroy the might of labor. It will be a sad day for America when the legal chains upon labor become shackles that squeeze from capital its life blood of profit, made possible only by the production of free labor.

What many capitalists are forgetting today is that every laborer, after he has given up his own ambitions to become a capitalist in his own right, fights for this goal through his children, giving them, if he can, every chance for a higher education, an opportunity to get above the station he himself has held in life. That is the main strength of the Democratic processes of government and the capitalists system of government in America.

Labor, collectively, has a higher resolve and purpose than exemplified by the men and organizations who would promote their legislation before us at this time. Labor can achieve its resolve and purposes only through collective action. Through his Union a laborer can keep alive his hope for something better for his children, his friends and his country.

John Mason Brown put it this way:

"What happiness is, no person can say for another. But no one, I am convinced, can be happy who lives only for himself. The joy of living comes from immersion in something—more accurately, anything—that we know to be bigger, better, more enduring, and worthier than we are.

"People, ideas, causes, above all, continuities—these offer the one possible escape not merely from selfishness but from the hungers of solitude and the sorrows of aimlessness. No person is as uninteresting as a person without interests. The pitiful people are those who in their living elect to be spectators rather than participants; the tragic ones are those sightseers who turn their backs deliberately on the procession.

"Existence is a strange bargain. Life owes us little; we owe it everything. The only true happiness comes from squandering ourselves for a purpose."

Have any of you ever been to a Union meeting where strike talk is in progress? Have you ever witnessed the interest, the feverish excitement, the drama of men and women making a decision affecting the food upon their table, the clothes for their family, the rent and the gas, light and water bills? Yes, even the future of their employer comes into the discussion. I know, because I have participated and believe me when I say it is a story entirely different from the headlines in the newspapers.

You charge abuses and I admit that abuses can take place in labor relations. This is true on both sides, but laws and legal restraints won't change human nature or make men on either side of a labor dispute give each other the confidence and consideration demanded by decency, honor and fair play.

These anti-labor laws will do about as much for peace in the labor relations of our State as Prohibition did for true temperance.

These anti-labor laws are aimed in specific instances against labor leaders. You say there are certain labor leaders that are not trustworthy, not representative of the labor movement, and yet you aim the blunderbuss of reaction at all labor leaders.

I have known men who have worked all their lives in the labor movement, worked for others under the most adverse conditions. Yes, conditions that threatened their lives, harassed their children, worried their wives and destroyed their peaceful home lives.

George Bernard Shaw in preface to "Man and Superman" ably described this kind of a labor leader when he said:

"This is the true joy in life, the being used for a purpose recognized by yourself as a mighty one; the being thoroughly worn out before you are thrown on the scrap heap; the being a force of Nature instead of a feverish selfish little clod of ailments and grievances complaining that the world will not devote itself to making you happy."

You can pass this legislation, you have the power, yes you have the very power legislatively that can destroy the very power you have. Today you can do it, tomorrow the people will due it. I have to believe this, because I cannot see American labor shackled by the chains of reaction and greed without the sincere hope that I will again participate in the ceremonies that cut the chains and make all men free again in this Commonwealth.

In Pennsylvania the Chamber of Commerce of Philadelphia has taken the forefront in the fight to pass this anti-labor legislation. Every member of the Senate should read the release giving the views of the Chamber on this subject. If, after reading this release, you can still vote for this legislation, then I know that this legislation is being passed in a spirit of revenge and bitterness.

After you have read the release of the Chamber, I would ask you to read the open letter in the Pennsylvania Labor News, May 7th, 1947. In one you find the underlying motive to be one of selfishness, seeking advantage, in the other you find the high sentiments of common good and common welfare.

This is where I came in, common good and common welfare. I have called your attention to the two phases of the anti-Union campaign. The third phase will come in 1949 if the Republican party as it is constituted today, wins next year's National Election. That phase will be the signal for the greatest labor baiting and union busting campaign ever put on in America. The depression, Governor Duff has already given us a clue to, is only part of the scheme. Labor will die as an organized body, but will emerge stronger and more powerful than ever, but it will be years before we will again get to the high plane of labor relations enjoyed today.

I plead with you as men of good will, study the consequences, study tomorrow's problems and forget the conveniences of today.

I am submitting for the record a complete analysis of this legislation, covering its provisions and the results we feel will be obtained. In this analysis I cover the anti-strike features of this legislation academically. However, I must at this time take a moment to give my reasons logically, for a vote against this legislation.

I do not believe the group of citizens here assembled as representatives of the people can change a Constitutional guarantee, whether it feels it has a mandate to do so or not; when the constitution guaranteed each of us justice, domestic tranquility and the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity.

In the Declaration of Independence we find in the preamble by Thomas Jefferson, the following statement of principle and fundamental right:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their creator with inalienable rights; and that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

It does not say these rights are given to all the people except school teachers and public employes or employes of public utilities; it says in clear cut language that all are created equal and that they are endowed by their Creator with inalienable rights—and it says all, it does not restrict it to a few chosen people who do not happen to work for the public or the public utilities. As I interpret this principle it does not restrict these inherent rights to any select group, nor does it qualify these rights with the nature of ones employment.

When we take one right from another citizen, what can stop us from taking other rights? If we can dictate the terms of his pursuit of happiness because of the nature of his employment, who can stop our dictation of his very method of living and the status of his liberty.

I do not intend, at this time, to take up any more of the time of the Senate to discuss the bill dealing with Merit Rating. However, on March 25th I gave a full analysis of this type of legislation. Sufficient to say that the same group of employers whose viewpoint is restricted to their own immediate welfare are now going one step further in denying compensation benefits to persons unemployed because of labor disputes. I have pointed out before that the basic industries will eventually suffer from this shortsighted policy. I maintain that when a strike has reached the sixth week when compensation payments become due to the strikers there is a greater consideration in the settlement of that particular strike than the payment of unemployment compensation benefits.

There is not one instance in Pennsylvania's labor relations history where the consideration of unemployment benefits has been a determining factor in the prolongation of a strike. However, I can point to at least one specific case where a strike was settled the week that compensation benefits were due. There has been so much false information given by the static or scavenger industries that the basic employers have lost their sense of balance. This kind of legislation can mean but one thing, can mean the further curtailment of labor's rights, benefits and privileges under the law.

Another angle that is very serious at this time deals with the transfer from the unemployment compensation rolls to the direct relief rolls of the families of men and women in strike bound industries. Any one who entertains the silly notion that this bill will shorten a strike or possibly forestall one knows little or nothing about labor relations in modern industrial life. I for one can see no justification for this type of narrow minded legislative action.

Before I close I want to call to your attention to two or three specific conditions that pertain to one or two of the bills.

Senate Bill 230 has within its framework a condition that, if allowed to go into law, will destroy in Pennsylvania the apprentice rights of organizations that are built along the trade and craft lines. For over twelve hundred years in Great Britain, since the very beginning of the guilds, there has been set up an apprentice program that has always been sufficient to supply the needs of the times.

On Page 8, Lines 11 to 13, you will find a restrictive clause that destroys the apprenticeship program of the trade and craft unions in the state of Pennsylvania.

I do not believe the sponsors—and this is without reflection upon the ability of the sponsors to place upon the legislative books a bill doing exactly what they want to do—but I do not believe that the sponsors of this legislation know the full import of this particular feature of Senate Bill 230.

Another thing in that bill that has caused a great deal of comment is where they restrict a union's initiation fee to $25. Merely as a sidelight, the gentleman who introduced this bill is the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart. Senator Kephart represented the very men that this bill deals with, the United Mine Workers of America. If they are restricted in their dues and are restricted in their initiation fees, if they are restricted in how they manage their affairs, where would they get the sum of approximately $25,000 that they paid Senator Kephart for his part in defending a case of their before the Supreme Court? I mean, gentlemen, it is a question of economics with unions, the same as it is with lawyers, doctors and others.

Senate Bill 280. This bill hits at every type of employment except the type of employment it started out to hit.

When this bill was first introduced, Mr. President, it was widely heralded as a bill that would stop strikes in public utilities and by public employes and school teachers.

Mr. President, this bill already has been so amended that it does not deal with this phase of labor at all, those provisions are completely eliminated from the provisions of the bill. I understand that a little bit of pressure might have been the reason why these particular labor units were taken from the bill.

But here is a point I like under this bill, if you are interested, and the misnomer of it is the one I really like: it says "Pennsylvania Industrial Peace Act." Gentlemen of the Senate, here is what you do under this bill: first, under most union contracts there is a period of negotiations, prior to termination of a contract, of about ninety days in some instances sixty days, but in the major part of union contracts in Pennsylvania you will find a ninety-day negotiating clause. After the ninety days are over, under this so-called industrial peace act, here is what you do: first, ninety days of negotiation, and then thirty days of notice to the employer, and then thirty days of conferences, and then sixty days while the action is pending before the National Labor Relations Board, and then a secret ballot for ten days, and then fifteen days in order that an order may be issued; making a total of two hundred five days. But that is not all. Even after all this the conciliator may, at his own discretion, take the dispute and hand it back to the Labor Relations Board to consider all over again.

Is this labor peace when, two hundred five days, plus any other additional days that can be added at the discretion of the labor conciliator—we find ourselves without ever having solved the original dispute before the management and labor body.

There is no phase in this bill that gives to the labor relationship between employer and employe any positive action regarding the dissolution of any complaints or any insoluble argument before the group.

If this is a labor peace act I would like to know what kind of legislation could be drafted that would cause labor unrest. This to my mind is the greatest piece of fakery that has ever been introduced in the Senate of Pennsylvania, purporting to do one thing and doing exactly the opposite.

Also, on pages 20 and 21, they name a certain temporary arbitration tribunal. What is it? Where does it derive its power? It has no authority whatsoever to make a positive arrangement between employe and employer.

And then, of course, in section 9, page 22, when you get into the question of jurisdictional disputes, Mr. President and members of the Senate, if the sponsor of this bill, the Chamber of Commerce through the medium of Senator Heyburn, has found the solution of jurisdictional disputes, it is the greatest discovery since man learned to walk because since time immemorial, ever since one man has been forced to work for another, the question of jurisdictional dispute has been with us and no amount of legislation—at least not this legislation in its present form—can solve that problem. Jurisdictional disputes have been the cause of every major war since the world began. Jurisdictional disputes will continue in spite of this legislation and the only thing that this legislation does is to fan the breeze that burns up the tempers of men on both sides of an industrial dispute.

I submit to the members of this Senate that this legislation is ill-advised and uncalled for at this time.

BRIEF SUBMITTED BY SENATOR JOHN H. DENT COVERING SENATE BILLS No. 423, 280, 361 and 427

PROPOSAL EMBODIED IN SENATE BILL 423

Senate Bill 423 is a proposal which prescribes extensive internal controls for labor organizations and restricts normal and legitimate activities essential for the achievement of proper labor objectives by a series of prescriptions, and the imposition of substantial limitations upon the basic freedoms of labor organizations and their members.

This bill requires labor organizations to file annual statements setting forth organizational as well as financial data, and also details concerning its business dealings including the names of firms with which it holds contracts. Failure to file the prescribed statements precludes an organization from receiving a compliance certificate, without which an organization is unable to institute proceedings before the State Labor Relations Board.

The bill provides extensive controls for the internal operations and functioning of unions, limiting initiation fees to $25; requiring that the by-laws and constitution assure a representative form of government; limiting terms of general officers to one year and grievance committees and trustees to four years; the tabulation of votes under supervision; and regulating trials of persons charged with offenses.

The bill restricts the actions of unions in its dealings with both its members and others by requiring that strike votes be conducted by secret ballot under the supervision of the State Labor Board, and shall include all persons engaged in employment affected by the vote; prohibits black-listing or discharge of members upon demand of an officer except where properly expelled for cause; makes the operation of hiring halls and employment or placement services unlawful; prohibits the issuance of charters to owners of an business, agricultural enterprise, independent contractors, or persons other than employees; it outlaws boycotts, jurisdictional strikes, and strikes against the state or any political subdivision thereof, or strikes to require union membership as a condition of employment.

The bill imposes criminal penalties for its violation, and in addition thereof, authorizes restraining action by the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board for its enforcement as well as the injunctive power of the courts.

Objections To the Bill

This proposal is a direct invasion upon the fundamental liberties of the working people of this Commonwealth, and offers in the form of a proposed law, a series of unconstitutional restrictions and prohibitions upon the unions and their members, which both ignore and flagrantly defy the fundamental rights of our citizens as guaranteed by the Constitutions of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the United States.

Filing Statements

The requirement that unions file statements as prescribed by the bill is an illegal restraint upon the right of a union to bargain collectively, conflicts with the National Labor Relations Act, violates the right of privacy of the unions and its members, constitutes an unreasonable burden not warranted by the public interest, abridges the right of free speech, publication and assembly, deprives union members of equal protection of the laws and of their property without due process of law.

Any union failing to file the prescribed statement with the required data, and not holding a compliance certificate from the Secretary of Labor and Industry is thereby disqualified from filing either a petition or charge with the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board. Thus, any such union could not require an employer, the majority of whose employees it represented by virtue of their designation if it as their bargaining agent, to bargain collectively with it, and it would be precluded from obtaining an order from the Board directing such employer to bargain with it. Moreover, the injunctive power of the courts could be utilized to prevent collective bargaining and the union representatives could be arrested, convicted and jailed for their efforts to achieve such bargaining.

In the case of American Federation of Labor v. Mickelson, et. al. (14 LRRM 846; 15 LRRM 751) the South Dakota Circuit Court made it quite clear that such registration acts, to be valid, can not impose such filing as a condition precedent to collective bargaining. Since the primary objective and function of a labor organization is to engage in collective bargaining, it is clear that the proposed bill would, if law, prevent unions from functioning, and, in American Federation of Labor v. Miller, the Idaho District Court (15 L.R.R.M. 677) pointed out that such requirement to be valid can not prevent an organization from functioning.

By depriving workers of the full benefits of union representation through the imposition of restrictions of this character, it prevents such workers from exercising full freedom of choice of representative. This was attempted by the state of Florida requiring the licensing of business agents. The matter was reviewed by the United States Supreme Court in Hill v. Watson, etc., et. al. 325 U. S. 538 and it was held:

"The declared purpose of the Wagner Act, as shown in its first section, is to encourage collective bargaining, and to protect the "full freedom" of workers in the selection of bargaining representatives of their own choice. Congress attached no conditions whatsoever to their freedom of choice in this respect.

"Section 4 of the Florida act circumscribes the "full freedom" of choice which Congress said employees should possess . . ."

The Court pointed out further that this rule applies whether the statute relates to the business agent or the bargaining representative itself.

The requirement which includes in the information to be filed, data concerning contracts held by the union, and details concerning salaries and all moneys paid, and fails to mention any exclusion of ritualistic subjects, and makes inspection thereof available to present and past members invades the right of privacy of the union and its members. The Alabama Supreme Court in Alabama State Federation of Labor et al. v. McAdory etc. et. al (14 LRRM 710) made a special point of the fact that information concerning ritual was specifically excluded in the Alabama Act under review, and that the information was not for public consumption but was to inform the Governor only. The significant omission in the proposal is that while it imposes a penalty upon unions for their failure to file, it makes not mention of any liability being incurred by any one who disseminates the information improperly or contrary to their duties, after it is filed.

A similar provision was held unconstitutional by the Texas Court of Civil Appeals in American Federation of Labor v. Mann, et. al. (16 LRRM 634) as " . . . an unwarranted an unreasonable requirement, imposing undue burdens upon unions not demanded by the public interest, particularly as to small unions with limited membership . . ."

The foreclosure of access to the Pennsylvania State Labor Relations Board and the unleashing of the injunctive processes upon workers for the mere failure of the union which they selected as their representative for the purposes of collective bargaining to file a statement setting forth material, the confidential character of which is essential to the preservation of such organization, denies such employees the "equal protection of the law" guaranteed by the 14th Amendment to the United States Constitution.

This proposal denies to members of certain trade unions the rights and protection which is accorded to other persons in the same group or class and is therefore a clear violation of the constitution.

By thus preventing and interfering with the right of such employees to obtain the benefits of collective bargaining, they are also being deprived of property without "due process of law" contrary to the guarantee of the same constitutional amendment.

Control of Internal Affairs

The requirements for the control of the internal affairs of unions also contravene the constitutional limitations imposed upon the Legislature. They impair the obligations of contracts, abridge the privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States, deprive the members of unions of property without due process of law, deny them the equal protection of the law.

The form of government, the terms of officers, the method of election and the amount of initiation fee of unions are fixed by the constitutions and by-laws of the respective organizations. In the case of organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, the fundamental laws of such unions are modeled after and predicated upon the same guarantees for a representative form of government as are found in the Constitution of the United States, and elaborate procedures are established therein to safeguard these rights.

The constitution and by-laws of an organization constitutes a contract between the entire membership as a body and each and every member thereof.

Any requirement imposed by law compelling the change of such contract, either as to the amount of the initiation fee, or the term of any office, is an impairment of such contract contrary to the 14th Amendment to the United

Staes Constitution, and the 17th section of Article I of the Pennsylvania Constitution. These provisions would therefore impair every such contract now in force, and wherever they compelled a change in the by-laws and constitution of any organization, would thereby interfere with the constitutional guaranty of the freedom of contract.

The extent to which the provision deprives members of trade unions of property without due process of law is immediately apparent to every union member. Very few labor unions have substantial treasuries, and even less own property of value. In the instances where initiation fees exceed $25, the amount is fixed to assure existence and survival. No legislative body, under our present constitutional form of government, has the power to destroy or even abridge these organizations by fixing their initiation fees by fiat; and, the invocation of such limitation upon organizations will certainly result in their destruction.

Restrictions similar to those proposed here on the initiation fee were fixed by the state of Texas, and were thrown out as invalid by the trial court in A. F. L. v. Mann, et. al, supra. It is significant that the state did not press their validity on the appeal.

The same reasons apply with equal force to the restrictions upon the term of office imposed by the same bill. The term of a person's office is a valuable property right which is vested in both the office holder and the members of his organization. The members are entitled to the benefit of the administration and direction of their elected agents and officers for the term which they prescribed by their by-laws, and it is beyond the power of the legislature to interfere with this right of the citizens to make their own contracts. Any limitations such as are here proposed, can only serve to weaken the structure established by the democratic action of workers to more effectively achieve their ultimate objective which is effective collective bargaining.

Restriction on Union Activities

The bill proposes, through a series of conditions, precedent and subsequent, to abridge the right of persons to strike or engage in a boycott. These provisions are in direct conflict with the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States and Article I, Sections 1 and 7 of the Constitution of Pennsylvania.

The Legislature can not abridge the right to strike by placing any condition upon its exercise such as the secret ballot vote to be conducted by the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, and requiring that a majority of the voters favor such action.

The fundamental character of the right to strike is inherent in one's citizenship and not dependent upon the action of a majority. The Court in American Federation of Labor et. al. v. Bain, et. al. 31 Ore. 87; 106 P (2) 544 rejected a similar statutory restriction, and stated:

"In considering constitutional questions, the courts look through forms to the substance of things. It is not important, therefore, whether we call the statute one of prohibition or of regulation. That it prohibits to the minority the exercise of rights conceded to the majority there can be no question. If there are 500 employes in a plant whose employer is paying inadequate wages, either in fact or opinion of 249, the 249 who alone choose to make an issue of the matter may not, under this statute, exercise what the Supreme Court has held to be their constitutional right of freedom of speech, because the 251 prefer to avoid a dispute with their employer . . ."

"The fundamental constitutional right which the Supreme Court sustained in the cited cases was declared to be secured to 'every person.' We see no escape from the conclusion that the denial of such a right to the members of a minority is no less an unconstitutional abridgement of the right simply because it is saved to the majority."

In Alabama State Federation of Labor v. McAdory et al., supra, the Supreme Court of Alabama rejected a statutory requirement making it unlawful to strike except when authorized by a majority vote, and pointed out that each individual has such right and that it rests upon the minority as well as the majority.

The further limitation of the right to strike by excluding its use where the employment of union members is sought thereby is an improper and unwarranted limitation upon this fundamental constitutional guaranty. The Minnesota Supreme Court in Glover v. Minneapolis Building Trades Council, 10 NW (2d) 481, upon authority of the United States Supreme Court in Senn v. Tile Layer Union, 301 U. S. 468 stated:

" . . . work is a legitimate subject of economic competition and that employes may use peaceful means in such competition to obtain work and job security."

Our own Supreme Court in the case of Friedman v. Blumberg, 342 Pa. 387, 23 A (2d) 412 has affirmed this proposition.

The Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Thornhill v. Alabama 310 U. S. 88, has laid down the standards for the protection of the constitutional rights of the working people of this Commonwealth which invalidate every proposal in this bill dealing with or relating to the right to strike. It was there held:

" . . . labor relations are not matters of mere local or private concern. Free discussion concerning the conditions in industry and the causes of labor disputes appear to us indispensable to the effective and intelligent use of the process of popular government to shape the destiny of modern industrial society.

" . . . It does not follow that the state in dealing with the evils arising from industrial disputes may impair the effective exercise of the right to discuss freely industrial relations which are matters of public concern. A contrary conclusion could be used to support abridgment of freedom of speech and of the press concerning almost every matter of importance to society . . ."

" . . . But the group in power at any moment may not impose penal sanctions on peaceful and truthful discussion of matters of public interest merely on a showing that others may thereby be persuaded to take action inconsistent with its interests. Abridgment of the liberty of such discussion can be justified only where the real danger of substantive evils arises under circumstances affording no opportunity to test the merits of ideas by competition for acceptance in the market of public opinion.

" . . . The power and the duty of the state to take adequate steps to preserve the peace and to protect the privacy, the lives, and the property of its residents can not be doubted. But no clear and present danger of destruction of life or property, or invasion of the right of privacy, or breach of the peace can be thought to be inherent in the activities of every person who approaches the premises of an employer and publicizes the facts of a labor dispute involving the latter."

The right of persons who work, to withhold their labor, and if the occasion requires it, to act collectively, is a basic constitutional right, of equal dignity with the right to strike. The guaranty attached to this right is not lessened by the use of the term "boycott" to characterize the activity.

Attempts to restrict this right took place in Kansas, and the Court in Stapleton et. al. v. Mitchell et. al. 60 F. Supp. 11 invalidated it, saying:

"The right to peaceably strike or to participate in one, to work or refuse to work, and to choose the terms and conditions under which one will work, like the right to make a speech, are fundamental human liberties which the state may not condition or abridge in the absence of great or immediate danger to the community."

And in Kingston Trap Rock Co. et. al. v. International Union, etc., 129 N. J. Eq. 5 701, it was held:

"It is the fundamental right of the individual workman to refuse his services no matter by whom sought, and it is likewise his right to enter into a combination for the attainment of objects of common concern, and in the pursuit thereof, to withhold the services of its members from those whose trade practices are deemed inimical to the common interest."

The resort to the fiction that these regulations and restrictions are justified under the police powers of the state will not change the result. In Thomas v. Collins et. al., supra, the United States Supreme Court held:

"Such regulations, however, whether aimed at fraud or other abuses, must not trespass upon the domains set apart for free speech and free assembly."

The prohibition against the maintenance and operation of employment placement services and hiring halls by any labor organization is a direct invasion of the rights of each member of any such union to the equal protection of the laws, and is a deprivation of property without due process. It can not be justified under the police power because the essential relationship between the regulation and a proper legislative purpose, Nebbia v. New York, 311 U. S. 502; West Coast Hotel Co. v. Parrish, 300 U. S. 279, is lacking. It merely is another illustration of the arbitrary and discriminatory character of the bill as a whole.

Proposal Embodied In Senate Bill 280

This bill which is to be known as the "Pennsylvania Industrial Peace Act" provides for comprehensive regulation and control of labor relations. The bill establishes a Division of Conciliation with power to appoint deputies for particular disputes. It also creates a Labor-Management Advisory Committee. The bill divides labor disputes into two classes, ie: (a) those not affecting public interest, and (b) those affecting public interest.

As to disputes not affecting public interest the following procedures are prescribed: Unions or employers desiring to negotiate an agreement or change an existing agreement must give 30 days notice in writing to the other party prior to negotiations and thereafter it shall be their duty to bargain in good faith; strikes or lockouts are prohibited during this period and if at the end thereof there is a controversy either party may notify the Labor Conciliator who shall intervene personally or by special deputy; if the Conciliator finds that a question of representation is involved, he shall certify it to the Labor Relations Board; that it shall be unlawful for any union or employer to conduct a strike or lockout until the expirations of a 30 day notice which notice can be filed only after expiration of 30 days after the Conciliator has taken jurisdiction, and then only after the Conciliator has certified the issue for a secret ballot vote by the Labor Board to be conducted within ten days and then only after 15 days have elapsed from the announcement of the results by the Labor Board.

As to disputes affecting the public interest the following procedures are prescribed: Unions or employers desiring to negotiate an agreement or change an existing agreement must give 30 days notice in writing to the other party prior to negotiations and thereafter it shall be their duty to bargain in good faith. If a controversy still remains they shall notify the Conciliator who shall intervene personally or by special deputy, if the Conciliator finds that the controversy involves a question of representation he shall certify it to the Labor Relations Board; if the controversy is not settled within 30 days after the Conciliator has taken jurisdiction, the Conciliator shall notify the Governor who shall appoint a special commission, which shall hold its first hearing within 10 days after its appointment and file its report with the Governor not later than 15 days after the date of its last hearing; if no agreement or settlement is reached within 10 days after the commission reports either party desiring to institute a strike or lockout must give notice of intention to the Conciliator, no lockout can be instituted for 30 days; no strike can be instituted until 15 days after the Labor Relations Board has acted on the issue, and announced the results, it being the Conciliator's duty to certify the issue to said Board upon receipt of notice of intention to strike and the Board being required to conduct a secret ballot vote in 10 days.

The bill empowers the Conciliator during a strike to resubmit the question of continuing a strike at any time to the Labor Board to have a vote thereon, and when a majority vote to return to work, they shall be permitted to do so if the employer is willing without interference by any person, and such interference is made an unfair labor practice.

The bill permits the settlement of disputes by arbitration when agreed to by the parties, provides for the establishment of rosters of arbiters; and limits the power of arbiters to award retroactive wages prior to the date of filing of a formal claim.

The bill establishes special procedure for jurisdictional disputes, and provides that where a jurisdictional dispute is made ground for picketing, boycott or a strike, the Conciliator shall hear the dispute and shall, where the contending organizations are affiliated with the same federation, determine the controversy in accordance with the proper construction of the charters and agreements of the contending organizations; organizations may submit the controversy to a tribunal within the federation by which they are chartered prior to intervention by the Conciliator, but strike action or boycott is to be discontinued after such submission.

The bill subjects the treasury of labor organizations to levy an attachment to satisfy court judgments resulting from breach of collective bargaining contracts, and provides that unions shall be sued for damages, and liable for same breach of collective bargaining contracts. Neither union nor employer shall be entitled to maintain any action in any court for damages or injunctive relief in matters involving a labor dispute until the remedies under this act have been exhausted and it is an unfair labor practice for any union or representative to aid or conduct a strike or for an employer to institute a lockout unless the provisions of this act are fully complied with.

Discriminatory Character of the Measure

This proposal, considered as a whole, and aside from its unconstitutional aspects, exposes its purpose to be destructive of trade union growth, and antithetical to the normal and proper objectives of traditional, free, American trade unionism.

Under the guise of the high sounding title of "Industrial Peace," it has loaded every device available to special privilege under the color of legality against workers seeking to improve their wages, welfare and job security through collective action in free unions of their own choosing.

On its face, it compels employees to continue working for long periods of time during continuing breaches of contract, or in the face of any employer's arbitrary defiance to renew a contract on decent and humane terms without any correlative obligation being imposed upon the employer. Of course, the employer is prohibited from locking his employees out, but what employer is going to lock out his employees when he has the assurance of the state that it will keep his workers on the job on his terms?

The bill makes the Labor Conciliator a "czar," with power to make determinations and certifications which preclude the exercise of constitutional rights by the workers, and from which there is no appeal. This same "czar" can, at will, proceed to "break" any strike, at such time as the right to strike may mature, by requiring workers to vote on the "back to work" question, and he can order as many such ballotings held as is found necessary to "break" to strike. Another demonstration of the hypocrisy of the measure appears in the provision which requires that where the majority of the workers have voted on the question of their return, "they shall be permitted to do so if the employer is willing," and making any "interference" with their return and unfair labor practice. Clearly the purpose is to make the continuation of the strike by a minority an unfair labor practice, thus placing the workers under compulsion, and the employer free to act in accordance with any whim or caprice.

The bill, by the very definition of the term "strike" subjects unions to liabilities for acts of persons regardless of their membership in the union, and without any consideration for such facts as to whether the union opposed or even condoned such action.

The bill will destroy collective bargaining. Labor organizations subjected to the procedures prescribed in this proposal will, in order to perfect their ultimate right to strike, be required to plan to strike rather than bargain when the term of any contract is approaching its expiration. The procedural delays inherent in the terms of this measure will render genuine collective bargaining impossible. All of the exaggerated results which attended the notorious Smith-Connolly Law will be multiplied a thousand-fold under this bill. As a specific example of the bill's destructive effect upon the institution of collective bargaining is the provision which prevents arbiters from making retroactive wage awards to a date prior to the filing of a complaint. Here is a classic demonstration of the necessity for racing to the government instead of exhausting the processes of collective bargaining.

The measure places a premium upon the formation of company unions, which is an employer device to defeat the free association of workers for the realization of better wages and working conditions. It makes no distinction between bona fide unions and such company dominated and controlled groups, yet it invites situations where such organizations can be created by an employer to challenge a bona fide union, thus precipitating what is defined in the bill as a "jurisdictional dispute." Once such a dispute is found to exist, the Conciliator can make an award, thus setting at naught the right of workers to be represented by unions which are free from their employer's control.

The proposal is not limited to disputes arising out of existing contracts or the renewal of such agreements. An employer can invoke the procedural barriers of the bill at a time when his employees are merely in the process of organizing. The measure thus employed could be used to precipitate questions of representation before they actually existed, with the result that unionization would be prevented before the employees who were directly concerned would have any opportunity to give the subject consideration.

The Proposal Conflicts with the National Labor Relations Act

The bill vests authority in the Conciliator to precipitate the question of representation when he, in his unrestrained and unlimited discretion finds that a question of representation is involved, and to certify the matter to the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board. This right exists under the bill without limitation as to whether or not the subject matter is within the jurisdiction of the National Labor Relations Board, and without regard to the fact that an outstanding certification issued by that Board may be in full force and effect. Furthermore, the proposal makes no distinctions between bona fide and company dominated unions, thus permitting the latter to receive certifications as the result of the Conciliator's action referring the question to a vote to the Labor Board. Since the Labor Board can not go into the subject of company domination in representation proceedings, the Conciliator's action could foreclose any inquiry into the employer's control when a question was certified by him to the Labor Board under this bill.

This proposal can not be applied without sharp conflict with the National Labor Relations Act. It is therefore invalid under the rule laid down by the United States Supreme Court in Hill v. Watson, etc., et al., 325 U. S. 538 where the Court, in rejecting a Florida statute, said:

"Our holding is that the National Labor Relations Act and Sections 4 and 6 of the Florida Act as here applied can not 'move freely within the orbit of their respective purposes without infringing upon one another.'"

The Bill Infringes Upon the Constitutional Guaranties of Members of Unions

The proposal establishes extensive time-consuming procedures as conditions precedent to the exercise of the right to strike, and makes it an unfair labor practice to aid or conduct a strike unless the procedures are fulfilled. An unfair labor practice, it follows that they can be restrained through court enforcement of any such labor Board order, with an ultimate penalty for contempt upon failure to comply with such court order.

The right to strike which is inherent in the constitutional guaranties of freedom of speech, press and assembly, can not be encroached upon by fetters of extensive procedures extending as proposed in this bill over a minimum period of 115 days. The constitution precludes "abridgment" and the term "abridge" means "to shorten or curtail"—Winston Universal Reference Library. That is exactly what this bill proposes to do, namely, shorten and curtail the right to strike. Thus, the bill does not escape its fatal defect by theoretically permitting the right to strike at some indefinite date in the future.

The proponents of such measures can not help but have lost sight of the fundamental proposition that the bill infringes upon those basic rights of our citizens which are not subject to regulations under the police power of the state. It was stated by the United States Supreme Court in Thomas v. Collins et., 323 U. S. 516:

"Where the priority of the rights guaranteed by the First Amendment are involved, the rational connection between the remedy provided and the evil to be curbed, which in other contexts might support legislation against attack on due process grounds, will not suffice."

and further:

"Such regulation, however, whether aimed at fraud or other abuses, must not trespass upon the domain set apart for free speech and free assembly."

The only limitation recognized by the courts for any trespass, encroachment or abridgement of these basic rights is set forth in Thornhill v. Alabama 310 U. S. 88.

"... Abridgement of the liberty of such discussion can be justified only where the clear danger of substantive evils arises under circumstances affording no opportunity to test the merits of ideas by competition for acceptance in the market of public opinion."

The court then proceeded to stress that the "danger" referred to must be a "clear and present" danger.

The operation of the proposal is not limited in its scope to the proper boundaries delineated in the Thornhill case, and having exceeded the border of constitutional authority, it is invalid.

Proposal Embodied in Senate Bill 361

This bill proposes certain amendments to the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Act by excluding from the term "employees," supervisory and certain confidential employees, by limiting the scope of collective bargaining, by permitting employees to express opinions without liability therefor by making it an unfair labor practice for a union to do any of the following: (a) circulate a blacklist but excluding therefrom exchange of information concerning certain political views of employees; (b) to bargain collectively with a minority group of employees; (c) to picket the home of an employer; (d) to refuse to bargain collectively in good faith with an employer; (e) to use more than one picket, or to picket more than one entrance when no strike is in progress, or to fail to make deliveries or perform work on premises during the course of said picketing, (f) to interfere with the operation of a vehicle or operator thereof whether or not a strike is in progress; (g) to intimidate or coerce a person to strike against his will by threatened or actual interference with person, family or property; (h) to interfere with free and uninterrupted use of public roads, streets or methods of transportation or conveyance or to wrongfully obstruct ingress to and egress from a place of business; (i) to engage in a secondary boycott or to hinder or prevent by threats, force, coercion the obtaining, use or disposition of materials, equipment or services or combine or conspire to accomplish the same; (j) to call, maintain or conduct a strike or boycott on account of a jurisdictional question in which the Labor Conciliator has intervened as provided by the Pennsylvania Industrial Peace Act; (k) to strike or boycott against employer during effective period of any certification issued by National or State Labor Board to deny the certified representative from acting as such. The bill further makes it an unfair labor practice for an employer or union; (a) to institute a strike or lockout in violation of a valid collective bargaining agreement; (b) to institute a strike or lockout during any negotiation period in violation of the Pennsylvania Industrial Peace Act; (c) to refuse to accept as conclusion the final determination of any body of competent jurisdiction in any controversy as to employment relations.

The bill also extends the power of the Labor Relations Board to hold elections authorized by the Pennsylvania Industrial Peace Act, and requires Board decisions to be based upon substantial evidence and the entire record as submitted.

The Proposal Embodies Improper Exclusions

The exclusion of supervisory, confidential employees from the definition of the term "employee" as used in the act is conducive to litigation and contributes nothing to stability of labor relations, and, in fact, would render the measure invalid. The provisions conflict with the National Labor Relations Act, by the force of the decision of the United States Supreme Court in Hill v. Watson, etc., et. al., 325 U. S. 538. On the other hand, no law can compel workers in this category to refrain from acting together to improve their working conditions, nor can any law compel them to work if they, collectively, consider their working conditions intolerable. The exclusion of this class of employee from the labor relations acts by placing them beyond the law is an invitation to insoluble disputes.

The Bill is Designed to Destroy Collective Bargaining

The limitation of the scope of the term "collective bargaining" interferes with, obstructs and will actually prevent free collective bargaining on the subject of wages, hours, and working conditions, which directly affect the rights and the welfare of every worker. The subjects excluded from the term in the proposed bill are couched in terms which present a "color" of fairness, but which, upon realistic analysis, will utterly destroy such fundamental matters as job security, seniority, and wages. For example: By excluding the subject of the services to be rendered customers by an employer, an employer could establish a subsidiary company or farm out a certain part of his business to a member of his family to offer particular services to his customers to evade his responsibilities to his employes under existing collective bargaining contracts, and the employes would be precluded from even bargaining on the subject of such contract evasion. Job and seniority rights which were long established could be wiped out without any redress. Seniority rights being valuable property rights would be destroyed because, and only because of this measure would deny the holders thereof their due process of the law. The exclusion of the subject of the location of plants and facilities from the scope of "collective bargaining" is defective for the same reason. An employer could engage in the act of "running away" to evade the obligation to bargain or to escape a bargain already made and the employes could not so much as discuss the matter in bargaining conferences. This will result in the loss of businesses to lower wage areas, which means south of the state line, and even the feeble protest of the workers will be interdicted. The exclusion of equipment processes and methods from the scope of bargaining so long as the health and safety requirements as the maximum obtainable, and force employes to work under unsafe and unhealthy conditions where the law makes no adequate provisions therefor. The employer will be permitted to subject employes to unhuman working conditions without their being able to even submit a grievance on the subject. There are a multitude of health and safety subjects which are not as yet covered adequately by the law, a fact well supported by the volume of deaths and disabilities from occupational hazards and diseases. Even if it is contended that health and safety requirements of the law are not met by an employer, the governmental agency having jurisdiction can alone determine such fact, and by excluding the subject from collective bargaining, workers will have to wait until the understaffed government agency can get around to investigate and make its determination. As was so tragically demonstrated at Centralia, Ill., many of the workers will never live to experience the results of government action. The exclusion of financial policies, prices and customer relations from collective bargaining has a direct bearing upon wages particularly in situations relating to commission salesmen. This exclusion would result in placing in the hands of the employer, arbitrary power over job content, and, at the same time, prevent the employe from seeking any correlative adjustment of compensation. The same situation would result from the exclusion of quality standards from the subject of collective bargaining. Both of these exclusions collide headon with well-ordered, long established, and effectively working incentive systems which have emerged through long and successful experiences in collective bargaining. The exclusion of the selection of supervisory or managerial personnel as well as employes generally from the scope of collective bargaining is destructive of sound labor relations and workers' morale. By virtue of this proposal, an abusive or immoral person could be imposed upon employes without their being permitted to object by bargaining discussions. A person could be required to work with a physically or morally unclean co-worker, and denied the right of negotiating a change of such onerous conditions. The exclusion of "similar questions which is the proper function of a labor union or of management" from the field of collective bargaining is so vague, all-embracing, and so general as to be meaningless on the one hand and totally destructive of the bargaining relationship on the other hand.

The primary defect of the ten subjects excluded from the scope of collective bargaining is their utter destructiveness to the whole relationship contemplated by the term "collective bargaining."

The Measure Restricts the Freedom to Contract

The many exclusions from the scope of the term "collective bargaining" does not alter the fact that within the subjects thus excluded, are matters bearing directly upon the wages, hours, and conditions of employment of the workers. As such, they are the necessary and proper subjects for collective bargaining. To withdraw such subjects from the field of discussion and agreement between employer and employe, is to invade the area of freedom protected by the constitutions of the state and the federal government, and to deprive workers of property without due process of law.

Article I, Section 1 of the Constitution of Pennsylvania makes indefeasible the right of making reasonable contracts about matters not demanding police regulation, Cuthbert Bros. Co. v. New Kensington Lodge, 2 West. 185, and no one can contend that any of the specified exclusions demand police regulation in their application between employer and employe. The 14th Amendment to the United States Constitution provides a similar guarantee.

Beyond the effect of the constitution upon these invalid exclusions, there still lies the practical aspects of the problem and their effect upon our social and economic organism. If employes cannot bargain on these subjects relating to their health, welfare, safety and security, it is still their inalienable right to strike, speak and assemble in protest of them. By removing such subjects from the area of discussion through bargaining, the legislature will catapult them into the public's lap by requiring workers to strike to advertise the ills of which they require relief.

The Measure Interferes with the Freedom of a Worker's Inalienable Rights as a Citizen of the Commonwealth and the United States

The permission extended to employers to disseminate information concerning any employe's sympathy with, or membership in organizations acting in opposition to the declared public policies or the Constitutions is a direct infringement upon the civil rights of every worker as a citizen. Such a proposal constitutes political persecution of the most extreme sort. Under it, every professing Democrat could be persecuted by economic pressure during a Republican administration and vice versa. The complete absence of protective standards in the bill would permit every Democrat to be classified as a Communist and every Republican as a Fascist. The framers of this bill seem to forget that a large number of Republicans opposed our national policies as expressed by the Norris-LaGuardia Act and the Wagner Act, and wasn't that opposition open and overt, and wouldn't such persons under this proposal be subject to the politely styled black-listing as proposed in the bill? This provision is clearly in violation of the Constitution.

This provision is a direct invasion upon the rights of the individual to the protection of his reputation, which our courts have repeatedly held is guaranteed by Article I Section 1 of the Constitution of Pennsylvania.

The Bill Imposes Improper Restrictions on the Right of a Worker to Withhold His Labor and the Right to Picket

The proposal includes a number of limitations upon picketing without any regard to whether the act is peaceful and without a relationship to the presence or absence of a "clear and present danger," as required by the United States Supreme Court. See Thornhill's case 310 U. S. 88. No breach of peace, or clear danger can be implied by the presence or absence of a strike or labor dispute, nor by the presence of more than one picket or the place of picketing.

Thus when the proposal limits the place of picketing, and the number of pickets to one person and one entrance, on the assumption that such limitation can be justified by the absence of a labor dispute, it defies the fundamental basis for the constitutional guaranty. This was attempted in the Bakery and Pastry Drivers case but the restriction was rejected by the United States Supreme Court (See 315 U. S. 769) which upheld the right to picket and engage in boycott activities where no labor dispute existed in the same manner and extent as in a situation where a dispute was found to exist. The court remarked of the state's restriction:

"... a State is not free to define 'labor disputes' so narrowly as to accomplish indirectly what it may not accomplish directly."

Since it has been held in the case of New Negro Alliance etc. et. al. v. Sanitary Grocery 303 U. S. 552 that persons and organizations other than trade unions can picket, and thereby tell their story to the public, it is incomprehensible how the limitations which this bill proposes to lay upon the unions and their members can be sustained.

When the proposal goes further and makes it an unfair labor practice to fail to make deliveries or refuse to perform work during the pendency of any such limited picketing as set out in the bill, it not only restricts the right to strike but also imposes involuntary servitude upon the workers. By making such act an unfair labor practice, the necessary correlative which follows is that such act can be restrained through Labor Board proceedings. Such restraint contravenes the Constitution. In the Bakery and Pastry Drivers case, supra, one of the acts which was restrained was the refusal to handle goods and make deliveries, and there, although no labor dispute existed, the United States Supreme Court struck down the restrictive order.

The proposal to make the secondary boycott an unfair labor practice when engaged in to obtain the use or disposition of materials, equipment or services is another example of interference with the constitutional guaranty of free speech, equal protection of the laws, and involuntary servitude in contravention of the Constitution. This proposal on its face compels a free American to perform services on materials handled or processed by slave labor, or forced labor from our own prisons or an enemy country. It would force persons to work under conditions destructive of their own jobs and their future welfare and security. It denies the right of free labor to enter into competition with controlled labor. It is in complete defiance of a free American worker's fundamental rights. It fails to define "secondary boycott," a term for which no uniform definition exists, but seeks to endow it with some odious connotation by placing it beside such words as "threats", "intimidation," "force", "coercion" and "sabotage." There is, however, no relationship in meaning between these terms, which merely contributes to the conclusion that the proposal is defective because of its vague and misleading terminology.

The prohibition against combining and conspiring to obtain the same result is equally deficient. What persons may do individually, they may do concertedly. By labeling the concert of action a "conspiracy" does not, in fact, make an illegal conspiracy or combination. General Bottle Co. Inc. v. Oneta, 12 N. Y. S. (2d) 348.

Proposal Embodied In Senate Bill 427

Senate Bill 427 by amendment to Section 5 of the Pennsylvania Labor Anti-Injunction Act of June 2, 1937 P. L. 1198 proposes to declare union or closed-shop agreements contrary to public policy, unenforceable in any court in this Commonwealth and beyond the pale of any legal or equitable relief in the event of any breach of disregard thereof.

The Measure Is Unconstitutional

This measure proposes a direct conflict between the Constitution of the United States, and the injunctive powers of this Commonwealth. Workers may, regardless of this measure, refuse to work with non-union workers, may picket an employer who insists upon employing non-union workers, and may refuse to deliver to or handle the products of non-union workers. These rights are within the safeguard of the constitutional protection as stated by the United States Supreme Court in Thornhill's case, supra, Bakery and Pastry Drivers case, supra, the Senn case, supra, and American Federation of Labor v. Swing et. al 312 U. S. 321. To grant to the courts an injunctive power over a subject which is constitutionally valid and protected, is to attempt to do indirectly, that which this Legislature is without power to do directly. The indirect approach is afflicted with the same infirmity as the direct attack.

Union security agreements, ie., both closed and union shop, constitute the only effective means possessed by working people in their labor organization through which they can attain and preserve economic security, deter practices contrary to public policy and the interests of wage earners and effectuate genuine collective bargaining. As such, therefore, these agreements, when achieved, constitute a very valuable property right of the workers, which this proposal will destroy without due process of law. The measure clearly violates the 14th Amendment of the United States Constitution.

The measure also interferes with the freedom to contract protected by the same constitutional amendment as well as Article I of the Constitution of this Commonwealth.

Freedom in the making of contracts of employment is an elementary right of personal liberty and private property, protected from arbitrary interference consistent with the due process of law which is guaranteed by the 14th Amendment. Prudential Insurance Co. v. Cheek, 259 U. S. 530.

It also impairs the obligation of contracts which is in violation of Section 17 of Article I of the Pennsylvania Constitution for it has been held by our Supreme Court that if the law be so changed that the means of legally enforcing a contractual duty is materially impaired, the obligation of the contract no longer remains the same. Bunn v. Gorgas 41 Pa. 441; Penrose v. Erie Canal Co. 56 Pa. 46.

This Brief Covers the Opposition of the Pennsylvania Industrial Union Council on Senate Bills
No. 280, 361, 426 and 427.

Memorandum On Pending Pennsylvania Anti-Labor Bills
(Nos. 280 - 361 - 426 and 427)

Taken as a group these bills set forth a program of action which is objectionable not merely because it is one-sided; inequitable and biased against working men and labor organizations, but also because it represents an irresponsible meddling with and wrecking of collective bargaining patterns established over years of experience. The bills are thus calculated to provoke industrial chaos. They can be the product of the draftsmanship only of the individuals who either have no knowledge of the collective bargaining process or do not care whether they permit it to work soundly or not.

In this memorandum we shall give first a very broad outline of the general subject matters of the various bills and then give some consideration of each of the subjects covered.

I

The Subject Matters of the Bills

(A) No. 280 (Mr. Heyburn)—establishes a set of complex and interminable procedures surrounding the conduct of collective bargaining relations with severe restrictions on the union's bargaining power.

(B) No. 361 (Mr. Heyburn)—substantially rewrites the State Labor Relations Act so as to deny peaceful representation machinery for supervisors, limit the free collective bargaining process, encourage employers' blacklists, restrict peaceful picket and strike activities, convert the Labor Relations Board into a police court.

(C) No. 426 (Mr. Berger); and No. 427 (Mr. Berger)—deal with various aspects of the legality of union security clauses.

II

Analysis and Comment

(A) No. 280—this bill in its major provisions deals with two different kinds of labor disputes: Those which do not effect the public interest (Section 7) and those which do effect the public interest (Section 8). With respect to both its major impact and purpose is to impose a series of complicated restrictions on the collective bargaining process which have the effect both of making collective bargaining almost impossible and at the same time so weakening the labor union in its collective bargaining position that the employer is in position to dictate the terms of the contract.

The bill pretends to operate against both the employer and the labor organization—but this pretense is a complete fraud. It pretends to affect the employer by prohibiting a "lockout" unless the terms of the bill are complied with. A "lockout" is defined (Section 2 (8)) as the "refusal of the employer to furnish work to employees as the result of a labor dispute."

It should be perfectly obvious that very few employers ever need to or attempt to resort to that kind of action. The employer is the one who is able to determine how much money will be put into the pay envelopes each pay-day. If there is a labor dispute over an employer's wage cut or over a union demand for higher wages, the employer never has to nor does he deny any work at all to the workers. He is perfectly willing and anxious to permit the workers to work at the lower rate of pay.

Thus the bill limits the employer in no real way at all, while at the same time it limits the union in the only ultimate strength that the union has, namely, the power to withhold the services of the workers.

What does the bill do to the workers' right to strike?

In an industry "affected with the public interest" (which can mean almost any major or basic industry) the workers are required to withhold any action, regardless of how clearly unreasonable and provocative the employer's attitude may be, until there have been 30 days of negotiation with the employer, 30 days of action by the labor Conciliator, an indefinite period for hearings by specially appointed "commission" (such hearings have lasted for periods of over a year under the Railway Labor Act), 15 days for a report by the "commission," 10 days for further discussion, and at least 30 days thereafter. Thus, the entire process is to be stalled for a minimum of approximately four months, not counting the duration of any hearings before the "commission." If these delays and complications have succeeded sufficiently in demoralizing the workers, then a strike can be made completely illegal, since the labor board must then hold a vote to find out whether a majority of all the employees in the unit favor a strike. It should be noted that this is not even a majority of the employees voting, as is the rule in all public elections and in labor board elections. Those who do not vote or are not able for any reason to get to the ballot place are counted in effect as votes against the strike.

Even if the employees should be able to hurdle all these obstacles, keep their morale alive during all of these delays, secure a favorable vote, then they will run the risk of having their strike become illegal. The labor conciliator is given the power under Section 9 to jump into the situation whenever he may think that the morale of the strikers may have cracked temporarily. At such a time he can call for a new vote (the bill says "at any time") and if at that instant the strike fails to secure a majority of all the employees in the unit, the strike may be broken.

At no point is there any suggestion for a vote among the stockholders of the corporation; at no point is there any recognition that the workers have designated a representative to act as their spokesman and that the insistence on repeated ballots mean a destruction of the principle of collective bargaining through a single representative. At no point is there any compulsion on the employer. He may accept or reject, for example, the findings of the commission. Thus, if the employees vote against striking after the commission issues its report, their strike is illegal, while the employer may sit back and reject the commission's report and pay the workers only whatever wage he chooses.

The provisions of the bill with respect to disputes not affecting the public interest are only slightly less complicated, since all they do is omit the provision for hearings and findings by a commission.

All of this should demonstrate fairly conclusively the bias and one-sidedness of the proposal. It should demonstrate also the extent to which its real effect is simply to make it impossible for a union ever to be able to engage in effective strike action.

But it is perfectly clear also that these provisions will simply make collective bargaining as such impossible. Once an employer knows that a union can not engage in any strike against him for a period of at least four months or more, what possible incentive is there for the employer to engage in any serious collective bargaining? The employer is encouraged and licensed simply to reject all union proposals, knowing that he is safe for a long period of time, and in addition, realizing that he may be able to confuse the issue sufficiently so as to beat the union in the strike vote. He will always be in a position to start his collective bargaining for the first time, if by any chance a successful strike vote is taken. Even at that time he will be encouraged to continue his gamble in an effort to create a situation in which the labor conciliator can come in and take a new vote to break the strike.

Thus basically the bill is one whose purpose and effect will be to encourage employers to sit back and engage in sham collective bargaining and makes no real effort to reach any settlement.

The irresponsible interference under this bill with sound collective bargaining is evidenced also by the provisions of section 14. The implications of this section is that whenever the union has a grievance against an employer, claiming that the seniority clause has been disregarded or violated, a specific wage rate is out of line, etc., it should rush into court. By the same token the implication of the section is that employers should bring court suits on every claim of contract violation. This would mean that the state courts would be put in the business of administering labor contracts. Most labor agreements give rise to hundreds of problems of interpretation and hundreds of grievance situations during the course of the year. These must be settled quickly and without red tape. Only arbitration machinery under the contract as worked out by the parties has ever been found feasible or practical. Any law which attempts to throw this whole set of problems into the courts is simply an invitation to snarl up the whole collective bargaining operation.

(B) No. 361: This bill substantially rewrites many sections of the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Act. That Act has already been sadly emasculated in prior years so as to change it from its original intent into a law having many anti-labor features. This bill would do that job still further in many ways. The following are some of the most important provisions of this bill:

1. Supervisory Employees: Section 1 of the proposed bill, in the language appearing at the top of page 5, would exclude supervisory employees and certain other clerical employees from the status of employees, under the Act. This means that while such workers continue to have their basic right to join a union and to seek collective bargaining, they will be denied the peaceful machinery of the Act to bring about collective bargaining. The only way that they will be able to secure collective bargaining will be by strike action. In other words, the proposed change seeks to promote strikes by denying to these workers the peaceful machinery of an election by a state agency and a legal requirement of collective bargaining.

2. Restrictions on Collective Bargaining: Section 2 of the proposed bill (starting at the bottom of page 5) narrows the concept of "collective bargaining" by inserting a definition of the term into the law which makes it practically meaningless. If this section is adopted, then the state of Pennsylvania would have in the law from prior years a requirement that employers bargain collectively. But this amendment would define collective bargaining so that there was very little meaning in the term.

The proposed definition of collective bargaining is not a definition at all but rather a list of things that are not to be regarded as included in collective bargaining. A few examples of these exclusions give the general picture.

Collective Bargaining Under this Definition Would not Include:

a. Discussion of speed up of workers (since the bill would exclude any bargaining on layout, equipment, processes, techniques, methods, etc.—item (3)).

b. Any provision for preferential hiring, closed shop, etc. (since item (7) excludes any discussion of policies effecting selection of employees.

c. Discussion of relative wage rates, penalties or discharges for improper workmanship, incentive payments based on quality standards (since item (8) forbids any discussion with respect to the establishment of quality standards and judgment of workmanship).

d. Discussion of disciplinary rules, schedules of individual workers, distribution of work among workers (all forbidden by item (9)).

In fact, the exclusions listed above, leave very little for actual collective bargaining. But to make sure that nothing was left for collective bargaining, there is a catch-all phrase at the end which excludes from collective bargaining "any other similar question" which is the proper function of management. It will be remembered that there are very few issues, including wages, working conditions, job assignments, promotions and everything else in union contracts as to which management does not make or has not made the claim that these are functions of management. This item can have the effect of leaving nothing for collective bargaining.

3. Revival of Blacklist: Section 3 of the proposed bill, among many other changes, openly provides for a revival of the blacklist in the state of Pennsylvania. In the language appearing after "(g)" at the top of page 9, the bill pretends to be prohibiting blacklists but specifically legalizes and places its approval on the distribution of blacklists by employers with respect to the known sympathy with, or guilty of or membership in any organization acting in opposition to the declared public policies or constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania or the U. S. A. It will be remembered that the Government of the United States has several times claimed that the United Mine Workers of America have acted in opposition to the declared public policy of government. Whenever charges of illegal picketing are brought against a particular union, the government is necessarily claiming that the union is acting contrary to the declared public policy of the government. As a matter of fact, the companion bill introduced by Mr. Heyburn (SB-280) declares in Section 7 that the public policy of Pennsylvania is to be that there should be no strikes. If both these bills were passed, then under the bill which we are now discussing, any union which at any time calls a strike, is an organization acting "in opposition to the declared public policy" of the state of Pennsylvania. This section, therefore, would legalize the blacklist for such a union.

4. Restrictions of Peaceful Picketing: On page 10, under the heading "(c)", on page 11, under the heading "(e)", on page 12—under the heading "(j)" and under the heading "(k)", the bill proposes in varying instances to make it unlawful to engage even in peaceful picketing.

It should be remembered that peaceful picketing involves simply walking on the street carrying a sign. The Supreme Court of the United States has stated that individual citizens have the right to exercise free speech in this manner and that such action is constitutionally protected. This bill in these various sections would prohibit such picketing even if the acts of the pickets were entirely quiet, orderly, peaceful, and even if the pickets stated the facts in issue truthfully and accurately. Such a law is unconstitutional.

5. Miscellaneous: There are a number of sections of this bill which proceed on the assumption that Senate Bill No. 280 has already been passed. Thus on page 12—under the heading "(j)", on page 13—under the heading "(b)", on page 16 and 17—under the heading "(e)", "(f)", and "(g)", reference is made to the Pennsylvania Industrial Peace Act. There is no such law presently on the books of the State and this apparently has reference to Senate Bill 280. Analysis of these sections, therefore, depends on an understanding of Senate Bill 280.

(C) Bills affecting union security—The principle of union security is well established in American labor relations. More than two-thirds of the American workers under labor contracts are covered by some form of union security (either the closed shop, the union shop, maintenance of membership, etc). The principle has thus widely been recognized that when a majority of the workers in a unit have selected a representative, and when that representative bargains as it must for the interests of all the workers, it is proper and appropriate to agree that all workers should participate in the functioning of the common representative and should contribute to its operation. This is the principle of the closed shop and also of the union shop. The maintenance of membership, on the other hand, does not even compel all workers to join, but simply declares that when they do voluntarily join they agree to remain committed for the duration of the contract.

Employers have found these principle important and valuable as a means of preserving stability during the contract term, preventing inter-union conflicts, enabling the union to have disciplinary powers so as to strengthen obedience to the contract and many other similar values.

It should be remembered also that the issue is not whether there should be a law requiring such contracts, but only whether the parties should be free in the American tradition to make such a contract if they so desire.

Bill No. 426 completely outlaws any contract calling for any form of union security. It makes it an unfair labor practice for employers or unions to enter into such a contract. In this respect it sets aside the American tradition of free collective bargaining and free contract. It attempts to override and destroy the experience which has produced union security in contracts. It opens the door and invites employer efforts to destroy unions even during the contract period.

Bill No. 427, in a somewhat confused way, attempts to do the same thing. It amends the state anti-injunction act. That law now outlaws yellow-dog contracts under which employers compel individual workers in individual contracts to give up their right to join a union. The bill would add a provision making a contract between an employer and employe unenforceable if the employe promises thereby to join a union or to remain a member of one. Usually, of course a union security contract is made between an employer and a union designated as the collective representative of the employes, rather than between the employer and each individual employe. The exact effect of the proposed bill is thus unclear, but its intent would seem to be to do away with union security.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Westmoreland.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Westmoreland permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. DENT. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. KEPHART. Senator Dent, I am informed that the initiation fee charged by the United Mine Workers is $10; could you tell me whether that is correct or not?

Mr. DENT. That is exactly right, Mr. President.

Mr. KEPHART. And, therefore, they would not be harmed at all by my bill, which puts a limit of $25 on an initiation fee, would they?

Mr. DENT. Not as such.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I would like to explain this bill, which I sponsored, Senate Bill 230. I think that everybody knows that since the advent of the labor union movement there have been some abuses which have crept in—I think even labor leaders, many of them, will admit that some abuses have crept in which should be cured.

Senate Bill 230 does not attempt to cure all the evils, it just attempts to cure one of them, and it does not attempt to cure evils that are spreading throughout the labor organizations; only some labor organizations have evils in them which should be cured.

An illustration was one I just pointed out to the gentleman from Westmoreland, Senator Dent, on this point of the initiation fee of the United Mine Workers. Their initiation fee is only $10 and therefore there is no abuse by the United Mine Workers on that feature, but, Mr. President, there are unions which charge much more than $25, and in so doing keep people who want to work from getting a job because they can not afford the high initiation fee which the union places upon membership.

Senator Dent asked how they raise the money to pay certain of their expenses, and my answer to that is not through initiation fees but through the regular dues that each one will have to pay as long as they are members, and that is the fair way of doing it. That is my answer to him to the question he put to me when he was speaking.

Now then, Mr. President, the people that raised the question that prompted me to introduce this bill were those veterans who came back from fighting for this country and attempted to get jobs and were told by their proposed employer that he would like to employ them but that they would have to join a union. They then went around to the union and asked to be admitted to membership but were turned down, or kept out for some reason that the union would put out, either a high initiation fee or failure to meet something that they insisted upon which was unreasonable, so here is an employer who wanted a man to work for him, a man who is qualified to do the work, but being unable to do so because he could not get admittance into membership in the union.

Mr. President, the same thing is true with respect to the boys who go through our vocational training schools and attempt to get a job; they run into exactly the same thing. Here we spend millions of dollars to train these boys and then they are thrown out upon the world, trained to do a certain thing but unable to get jobs because they can not get membership in the union.

I do not think it is unreasonable to pass this bill and I would like to have it read, so I want to read part of it so that the public can understand just what it does.

This bill does not prohibit a closed shop. It merely says that if a union has a closed shop it must have a reasonably open membership, and it says it must not deny membership to an applicant providing the applicant for membership is acting in good faith and willing and qualified by experience or training to engage in the trade, craft, business or industry in which such closed shop agreement exists, and is ready and willing to comply with reasonable regulations uniformly required as a condition of acquiring or retaining membership. What is arbitrary about that? A union still has the right under this bill to set up reasonable and uniform regulations as to their membership and the applicant for membership must abide by those regulations.

One thing they can not do, however, is to impose an initiation fee of more than $25, and I think that $25 figure is certainly reasonable enough. I think the majority of unions in Pennsylvania do not charge more than $25 and they will not be hurt. I think if a union wishes to charge more than $25 and include in that amount the price for some other benefit, that that would be allowable; that is not part of the initiation fee—if it is death insurance or something like that, that is another matter entirely. What this bill deals with is solely the right to join a union.

The gentleman from Westmoreland also discussed the question of apprenticeship and he said that for twelve hundred years, I believe it was, they had this thing worked out and there has been no trouble with it. I disagree with him on that. I think there have been too few apprentices in certain lines, and that is the reason we are up against the situation in certain fields as, for instance, we are not getting building done because people have not been trained to come up to be qualified to fill the positions of older men. In lines 14 and 15, page 8 of this bill, it is provided that they can impose experience qualifications as a condition of membership. The only thing they can not do with apprenticeships is to monopolize the field of trade or employment by denying membership.

Certainly in this country, if we are going to keep this country and keep it the way it has been in years past as a great nation, then there must be a chance for these young people to get a job and make a living and take care of their families and loved ones, and they must have an equal chance to get a job along with everybody else. This bill only attempts to provide an equal chance for them, not for those people who are strong enough to be in an organization and have a job, but for those poor working men who can not get in the union, and they should have the right to that equal chance and that equal opportunity. Every workman who wants to work ought to have an equal chance to do so.

MR. DENT. Mr. President, I will try to give categorical answers to the statements made by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart.

The first question he raised was that of initiation fees of the United Mine Workers, which is $10. In the main initiation fees of most of the C.I.O. unions are from two to three dollars. However, that does not alter the principle involved in passage of this bill, which will legislatively set a specific sum. If $25 is reasonable, would not $10 be more reasonable; would not fifty cents be more reasonable? Setting any figure violates the fundamental principle that I am concerned about. Any union that charges more than $10 for its initiation fee—and many of them charge less, Mr. President—use these initiation fees as an accumulated fund that is entered into their books in line with their welfare fund, creating for their membership enduring benefits.

In so far as the closed shop item which the gentleman from Philadelphia discussed, he said that it was a closed shop, a little bit open. Mr. President, you just do not have a closed shop that is a little bit open. If it is a little bit open it is an open closed shop and that is exactly what we are against. If it is a closed shop it is a closed shop and incidentally, for the information of the Senate, I believe this definition of a closed shop given before the Senate Committee on Labor in the Federal Congress is one which ought to be read by every member of this Senate, and I quote: "Fundamentally a closed shop is nothing more or less than a policy adopted by one group of employes who, having formed themselves into a union, refuse to work with any other employe or group of employes who refuse to join and remain members of that union." I suggest, Mr. President, that is the underlying principle behind the Bar Association, behind the Medical Association, behind any other group in the United States of America that tries to keep from its ranks undesirable persons who may come in and destroy benefits that they have fought so valiantly for and gained for themselves as an organization.

Mr. President, when the gentleman from Philadelphia discusses the barring from union ranks of individuals because they do not belong to a union, I can only say that is because they do not meet the qualifications set up by the union. I might say the closed shop in Pennsylvania that has the most restrictive features is the Pennsylvania Bar Association. I can give to the Senate a specific case of a boy that graduated from the University of Pennsylvania Law School, served his country in the ranks and came out a captain in the United States Army and who to this day has yet to be admitted to the Bar because the Bar Association locally said he was not a fit type of individual to belong to that Bar Association group, because it was reported that his father was at one time a boot-legger. There is nothing in any labor restriction that denies membership to any individual because of what his father was or was supposed to be.

Mr. President, this bill reaches further than even the sponsor realizes, because, if we can do this to any segment of our society, there is not anything to stop another group of Senators from doing it to every segment of society represented by the individual who sponsors this bill, against the labor group, because it is conceivable that some day politically-minded men and women will get tired of taking the promises and the apologies of the group that he represents and again place into control of this State Senate men and women who have in their hearts a feeling for the ordinary people, not the least of whom are the men who work for a living in the plants, in the mines, in the shops and mills of this state and so, Mr. President, in a spirit of revenge that group, emulating the present group in control today, might very well pass for you the kind of legislation that you pass for them.

You say there are specific abuses. I say there are specific abuses in your field of endeavor but I do not condemn the whole field, I do not condemn all the members of the Bar Association—I think as a whole their rules are necessary, their regulations are necessary and, if properly administered, they do benefit the whole community and that is all I ask, is the same consideration for men who earn their living by a different method than that employed by you or any of your friends who are in the professional ranks. All we ask is that we be allowed to go along, doing the very things that we think are right, so that our children may have a better place in which to work and in which to live and I say, when the gentleman from Philadelphia gets up and says that this bill will return us to the yesterdays of America, he is all wrong, because nothing that we do can turn the clock backward; progress is the keynote, and we will progress in spite of this legislation. If he wants to go back to the hungry days that we were led into in 1929 and the subsequent years by the very type of thinking that is behind this legislation, Mr. President, I for one will not follow him down that track, because that track leads to the dungeons of despair when men and women lose the will to live, and so I say to the members of this Senate of Pennsylvania that no amount of camouflage can take away from this particular group of bills the bad feeling that must come if they are passed.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I certainly do not condone the abuses the gentleman from Westmoreland has criticized the Bar Association for, and I would be perfectly willing to vote for any bill that would eliminate those abuses in our field—and they do exist, I am willing to admit—but there is no reason why that should not be taken care of and eliminated in the field where we have that proposition before us now, and they should be eliminated in both fields, where there are abuses, and so I would go along with him on that proposition.

As far as turning back the clock is concerned, Mr. President, the gentleman from Westmoreland knows perfectly well I do not want to turn back the clock to the period he referred to, but I am afraid if something is not done we are apt to descend back into that period unless steps are taken, because if there are going to be people who can not get jobs any place because of this situation, somebody must take care of them. I say give them a chance to work, and that is all I am trying to do with this bill.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I do not intend to take much more time, except to say to the gentleman from Philadelphia that if there is a job available, no restriction of any organization will keep a man from taking that job. It is only when a man wants to take a job that another man holds that this type of legislation comes about.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I think, before we go any further in debating these labor bills, let us refrain from wrapping the flag around them and saying that these are veterans' bills. I think it comes in very poor taste, just political propaganda, to start off as the gentleman from Philadelphia did, stating that this is for the returned soldiers. For his information there are hundreds of thousands of union members who fought as soldiers and have come back just as good union members as when they went away. I feel that that is one thing we should keep out of this argument today, because it means too much flag waving and a lot of crocodile tears, shed, especially for the returned veteran, and nothing is done for them in this Senate in the closing hours which has proven our sincerity to the returned veterans, when we have the power here in Pennsylvania to do something for them and we have not done it. So let us first argue the bills on what you are trying to do to labor.

First, I was very much interested and I had many discussions with Senator Kephart about the closed shop. The union I belong to has union shops, not closed shops. I went to the trouble in the last three weeks of getting in contact in Western Pennsylvania with all the contractors and some of the high-skilled industries which had closed shops, and have asked them what their opinion was. Here is the opinion I received: every contractor of any large proportion in Allegheny county said they are for the closed shop. In working on that type of contract they may, during the life of the contract, hire as high as fourteen hundred or sixteen hundred people, but at no one time on that job any more than two or three hundred people are hired at any one particular day or particular week—they may need a bulldozer today and a steam shovel tomorrow; they may need a carpenter today and a bricklayer tomorrow, or vice versa. In the old days they had to deal with a lot of employment offices and I think anyone who has ever visited in a large city will remember lines and lines of employment offices, with the big signs of so many carpenters needed today, so many bricklayers needed today, to go to such and such a job but today, due to the collaboration of the current unions and the closed shop, all that is necessary for them to do is to call the union and the union, by their contract, is responsible to furnish those men at a certain time on that job, and they do not want to go back to the open shop.

As far as apprentices are concerned, certainly there is a scarcity of apprentices, because during the war the young men were in the army, at least all those who were able-bodied and who were very patriotic went into the army, with the result there were not very many apprentices.

First of all, apprentices were not paid very high wages, not through any fault of the union because that was the fault of the men who employed them on the job, and the result today is they do not have as many apprentices as they had in that day and as they would have today if we had not had a war.

Talking about abuses, I do not know anyone who abuses more than attorneys do, but I want to add my two cents to it. It has been abused so bad that the Governor in New Jersey had to take to task the General Assembly of New Jersey because it was found in the General Assembly of New Jersey that practically every lawyer was on a hidden payroll of some large industry or corporation, and even in this session the Committee on Judiciary General refused to consider a bill in which all of us would be compelled to give an account of whom we represented and whom we were being paid by. So I believe it comes with very bad grace for a lawyer, who is a member of a closed shop and who is very careful to see that no one gets on the inside of his racket, to introduce a bill of this type.

I do want to ask the gentleman from Philadelphia or anyone else discussing this bill today not to go back to flag waving about this bill. I believe there is only one man in this Senate who has the privilege of flag waving—Mr. Donlan—he suffered for his country. Some of us have served our country in World War I and World War II. But I do not think that it is honorable to use the returned veteran to pass any labor legislation that in 1919—remember this, remember the returned veteran of World War I who went on a bonus march to Washington because, after all, the veteran or soldier of yesterday is the civilian of today and he too must work in industry and he too must secure a decent wage, and anyone knows that after World War I every soldier returning back worked at starvation wages and scab wages because the party in power at that time, through the same propaganda, destroyed the labor movement in America. It is a repetition that goes back to the Haymarket Massacre; the same thing said by the gentleman from Philadelphia was said at the time of the Haymarket Massacre in Chicago; the same thing was said in 1892 during the Homestead strikes.

At all times there seems to be a few people that are worrying about the public being hurt and I believe we all know who the public is, as spoken by these bills—they are the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association—and it comes in very bad grace because the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association fought the LaGuardia Act in 1932, they fought the Wagner Act in 1935, and they have fought every social movement that was ever made in America, and they are the people who now come and say they are the friends of labor. There is an old saying, "Beware of Greeks who come bearing gifts"

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I shall not take up too much time of the Senate because I realize many more members want to be heard in order to express their views on this legislation.

However, I want to point out to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, that when he speaks about labor unions, the United Mine Workers gave every G. I. a fully paid-up membership when he returned from service. They fought for the right, they went out and had to place them back in their positions, the jobs they left when they entered the service, and they have done an excellent job, and that is true of other labor unions.

If I were politically inspired, if I hoped to make my living in the field of politics in the days to come, I would sit back quietly, cross my fingers and hope that these bills pass and that every Republican votes for them and every Democrat votes against them. That is what I would do if I had any ambition in politics. I know of no better way of winning votes than to take these labor bills and bring them down and cover the Commonwealth with pamphlets to show the people what is being done in this day and age in the Senate of Pennsylvania.

But I want to make one point, that I have sat in my chair and listened to what has taken place; I have heard so much in the year 1946—over radios, on street corners, in auditoriums, about Communism, every time that I turn my radio on I hear of Communism infiltrating the Democratic ranks, in school houses, even in my church, much to my surprise, my own priest talking about Communism. The job was well done by those who inspired it, and I say to you, Mr. President, if we look back to Italy, Germany, Russia and Japan and find what has happened, dictation, dictatorial powers, shackling labor, which brought about poverty and Communism only appears in a time of poverty, it never appears when a country is prospering—no man can show me where Communism ever appeared in a prosperous country, and today you are about to shackle labor.

I say to you, Mr. President and gentlemen of the Senate, whether you have any pains or not, you are about to give birth to the greatest and biggest Communist movement ever known in any state in this Union; that is what you are going to do today if you pass these bills, and never again will you be in a position to go out and say the Democratic party is composed of Communists because you take that label, you take that with you, because you are bound to bring about poverty, and when you bring about poverty you bring about Communism.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, that a bad situation requiring a lot of thought is before the American people, the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and in this General Assembly, I do not think can be questioned by anybody.

I hold in my hand, Mr. President, a copy of a newspaper of last week, which has a picture on its front page that started me to thinking; it is a picture of two boys, Mr. President, digging their mother's grave because the cemetery was strike-bound by grave diggers. This, Mr. President, appeared in several papers, including the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

Also, Mr. President, reading from the column of Drew Pearson of May 29 "The War Department, which has been handling with painstaking care the unhappy work of returning bodies of G. I. heroes from overseas, has run up against sneak strikes in the casket-making industry, which will probably make it impossible to bring the bodies home on schedule."

Mr. President, I do not cite those two unhappy things to cast any reflection on labor. I think the reflection, Mr. President, is on us as legislators—we have not had the courage to come to grips with this all-important problem—and it seems to me that this sort of thing, Mr. President, is the responsibility of those who have been elected to properly represent the American people.

One of the saddest things of our time, Mr. President, I think, is to hear certain labor leaders—not many, but certain ones—and certain legislators, talking about these bills as being anti-labor bills. To me that is rather foolish. I think it constitutes one of the tragedies of the century, Mr. President, when Americans can not sit down and get together on a set of rules to govern collective bargaining in this country. Collecting bargaining, I think, Mr. President, everybody agrees is an established fact, it is here, and it is here to stay and I am glad it is. There is no sense, Mr. President, of having continued industrial strife to prove the theory of collective bargaining; what we have to do as legislators, Mr. President, is to furnish the machinery to make it work.

Unfortunately, Mr. President, a great many of my good friends on the other side, when talking about these bills, in many cases they talk about anti-labor bills, which I submit, Mr. President, is the wrong approach. Someone on the other side—I think my good friend Johnny Dent—made reference to a bill outlawing unemployment compensation benefits while on strike, but he failed to tell the Senators, Mr. President and guests, that we are one of three states that now pay unemployment compensation benefits while on strike. The other two, Mr. President, have much longer waiting periods than we do before becoming eligible to those benefits.

The gentleman from Westmoreland neglected to tell you, Mr. President, that the G. I. Bill of Rights passed by his party and signed by a President of his party, in Washington, denies benefits while on strike to returning veterans and one of the unhappiest things I have seen, Mr. President, in a long time—and I repeat, in a long time—is to see a returned veteran who, in many cases, has poured his blood on foreign soil, strike because, in many cases, he could not help it. That fellow, Mr. President, can not get any unemployment compensation benefits while on strike, whereas his fellow-worker who did not serve in the service, Mr. President, does. If that is not a very unhappy and silly and unfair situation, I would like somebody to describe one to me that is.

Mr. President, one of the speakers on the other side referred to Senate Bill 280. That is one of the bills that I introduced and I do not say, Mr. President, that I did not meet with representatives of employers, because I did; and I also met with representatives of organized labor. This problem can never be solved, Mr. President, by calling a bill a chamber of commerce bill or a labor union bill or anything of the sort. I met with them both.

And Mr. President, the gentleman from Westmoreland said that this bill now does not set out to do that which it was originally intended to do and I am very sorry, Mr. President, but in my opinion the gentleman from Westmoreland—perhaps because he has been too busy—is not familiar with the bill. The bill has two sections, one dealing with strikes affecting the public interest—industrial disputes if you choose to so term it—and those affecting other industries in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Mr. President, as the gentleman well knows, there is a bill introduced in this body, with the sanction of the present administration, so I am told and as I read in the newspaper, that outlaws strikes by public utilities, namely, gas, water, heat and electricity. Why, of course, Mr. President, the only commonsense thing to do then was to strike out this section which affected those industries and to specifically exclude them, and that was what was done and nothing else.

Mr. President, the gentleman from Westmoreland talked about this bill dragging out a dispute for two hundred ten days, until the union and the dissatisfied employers just could not take it any longer and gave up. Mr. President, I am sorry but the gentleman has been too busy to study the bill. There is no such provision in the bill at all.

What happens in this bill, Mr. President, is this: before the expiration of a contract the aggrieved employe, or his representative, gives thirty days' notice to the employer that as of a certain date, when the contract expires, they originally propose to sit down and discuss the differences. They start discussing differences, as the bill reads, within the first thirty days. So those thirty days are up at the end of the contract. The gentleman from Westmoreland said that now in the contract they have a ninety-day provision, so why and where is there any curbing of labor, Mr. President, when you require a thirty-day notice? There is no prohibition against ninety days notice if they so desire. This merely says thirty days' notice. Mr. President, when the thirty days elapse, unless both parties agree, either party can call in a labor conciliator set up by the Department of Labor and Industry. This gentleman, or lady, is charged with making an honest effort to conciliate the differences and can require the attendance of either party to several conferences. After the thirty days have elapsed, Mr. President, again unless extended by mutual consent, if the union wants to call a strike, what do they do—they notify this conciliator, who in turn notifies the State Labor Relations Board and this Board, Mr. President, conducts a secret ballot, the question being shall or shall there not be a strike—yes or no. As originally written, Mr. President, the bill provided that a majority of all the employes must vote yes or there would be no strike. That was changed, Mr. President and I think rightfully so, to provide something easier as far as the unions were concerned—it provides that a majority of all the employees must vote to have an election and a majority of those voting could call a strike. This election must be conducted within fifteen days after the Board hands down its notice as to whether the “aye” vote was successful or the “no” vote. Then they can have a strike within ten days, as I recall it.

Anyway, Mr. President, it is possible under this bill to put a strike in effect in sixty days after the termination of the contract. Where in the world anybody gets two hundred ten days, I do not know, that is beyond me.

The gentleman from Westmoreland talked about a further postponement because of the National Labor Relations Board. Mr. President, that would only affect those cases that are before the National Labor Relations Board. The National Labor Relations Board, Mr. President, is months back with its work. Sometimes you can not even get a case considered in one or two years. According to the last figures I have, there were five thousand cases on the docket down in Washington, Mr. President, that they have not even gotten to yet.

I think there is a great deal of confusion with respect to that provision and I repeat, Mr. President, that just is not the fact, there is no two hundred ten day cooling off period; the maximum is ninety days, unless extended by mutual agreement.

Mr. President, the gentleman talked about arbitration, some compulsory arbitration, and if he would read the bill, Mr. President, he would find out that is completely voluntary, and why should there not be voluntary arbitration? Suppose the employer and the union decide that they do not want any outsider in this thing and they voluntarily submit to arbitration. What compulsion is there about that, Mr. President?

I repeat, this bill is not anti-labor; it just sets out to establish rules for playing the game.

As I recall, Mr. President, the gentleman talked about jurisdictional disputes—page 22 of the bill. There again, Mr. President, I am afraid the bill was not studied, because this provides for a voluntary settlement of jurisdictional disputes, that is, before the conciliator steps in. When the conciliator steps in, Mr. President, what does he do? He certifies the matter to the State Labor Relations Board and they conduct an election, a secret election. As a result of that election, Mr. President, determination is made as to who is the representative of the employee's union.

Mr. President, the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Holland, I believe it was, made quite a talk about the closed shop. There is no bill under consideration that I know of that opens the closed shop at all. I think, Mr. President, that argument is completely foreign this afternoon.

Mr. President, there were certain other little amendments made here that sort of make good sense. We provide, along with this election, that the election must be held within the vicinity of such employee entrances. Mr. President, there has been a lot of talk about freedom of the American working man. What are we doing in this legislation? We provide a completely secret ballot, conducted in the immediate vicinity of the employee entrances, where nobody but he and God Almighty knows how he votes. If that in any way curbs the labor movement in America I would like to know in what respect it does.

I do not want to take a lot of time of the Senate, Mr. President, but I do wish certain people had given more thought to this legislation.

Concerning a companion bill, No. 361, I would like to speak briefly while I am on my feet.

What does it provide? Mr. President, it guarantees, among other things, freedom of speech for the employer, provided however, that nothing contained in this act shall be construed in any way to prohibit any expression of opinion by the employer or his representatives with respect to any matter which may be of interest to the employees or the general public, provided such expressions of opinion are not accompanied by acts of coercion, intimidation, discrimination or threats thereof. What is wrong with that, Mr. President? It makes it an unfair labor practice on the part of an employer, Mr. President, to distribute or circulate any blacklist of individuals exercising any legal right, or of members of a labor organization, for the purpose of preventing individuals so blacklisted from obtaining or retaining employment, except that nothing therein shall prevent an employer from giving another employer, upon the latter's request, information regarding the known sympathy with, guilt of, or membership in any organization acting in opposition to the declared public policies or Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania or the United States of America, which is the anti-communistic reference. What is wrong with that, Mr. President?

It shall be an unfair labor practice, Mr. President, for an employer to bargain collectively with a minority group of employees of a bargaining unit where a bargaining agent for the unit has been determined by a majority vote, as provided in Section 7 of this bill.

In other words, Mr. President, once there has been an election and a decision made, it is an unfair labor practice for an employer to bargain with a minority group of employees. What is anti-labor about that?

It is an unfair labor practice to intimidate, restrain or coerce any employer by threats of force or violence or harm to the person of said employer or the members of his family or his property—I am reading the amendment now or his property or by picketing the employer's homestead or the homestead of any person acting in behalf of the employer. What is anti-labor about that?

It provides that both employer and employee must bargain collectively in good faith, and failure to do so is an unfair labor practice for both. Mr. President, what is there unfair about that, or anti-labor?

As far as organizational picketing is concerned, Mr. President, it is an unfair labor practice for more than three persons to picket, or cause to be picketed, a single entrance to any place of employment where no strike is in progress at the time, or to interfere with deliveries to or from the premises, or to interfere with the performance of work therein by others, or to procure the same to be done. What is unfair about that? You have an industry in which there is no strike and you have organizational picketing even provided in this legislation—organizational picketing. There is no anti-labor legislation there.

It is an unfair labor practice, Mr. President, for any person to interfere in any manner with the operation of a vehicle or the operator thereof, whether or not the owner or operator of the vehicle is at the time a party to a strike. What is immoral or unfair or anti-labor about that, Mr. President? Neither side can do that.

It is an unfair labor practice to intimidate, restrain or coerce any employe to strike against his will, by any threatened or actual unlawful interference with his person, immediate family or physical property, or to intimidate, coerce, assault or unlawfully threaten any such person when in pursuit of lawful employment. What is wrong about that, Mr. President?

It is an unfair labor practice for anybody on either side, Mr. President, to interfere with the free and uninterrupted use of public roads, streets, highways or methods of transportation or conveyance, or to wrongfully obstruct ingress to and egress from any place of business or employment. What in the world is wrong about that, Mr. President? I would like someone to tell me what is anti-labor about that.

Mr. President, it outlaws secondary boycotts, and any number of labor leaders have told me they do not agree with secondary boycotts and they would like to strike that out themselves. So there is nothing anti-labor about that.

So, Mr. President, all through this bill—I do not want to take too much time of the Senate, and I have hit the high spots and there is nothing anti-labor about it. I have no such attitude.

I do feel very keenly, Mr. President, the responsibility of a legislator to his country and you can not tell me, Mr. President, and no man can, that by striving to get industrial peace in America without repressing any man, that a wrong thing is being done.

We talk about inflation, Mr. President, and we know full well that the only sensible cure to inflation is production. America was never built on an industrial production line but it will be destroyed by picket lines—and I do not mean to say I am against picketing in reason, I am not, I am for it—but, Mr. President, if the Legislative bodies in this great Republic of ours all stand idly by and allow the great production machinery of America to be tied up because no one has the courage to come to grips with it, I think, Mr. President, that is one of the most cowardly things any American citizen could engage in.

So, Mr. President, I have tried to keep my mind open as far as these two bills are concerned. I deny they are anti-labor. I think they are pro-American and pro-public, Mr. President. The sooner we set up rules for this game of industrial relationship, then the sooner America is going to be on the high road to production and take its rightful place as a beacon light for peace and prosperity in the whole world. Mr. President, can you imagine what more comfort any unfriendly foreign power could get than to have an unhappy picture of a man or woman in America not being able to place a telephone call between here and Philadelphia?

Now again, Mr. President, I do not condemn labor for that sort of thing, nor do I condemn the employer; I condemn the elected representatives of the American people for not having the courage to come to grips with this situation which has been now crying too long for attention.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, the membership on this side of the Senate appreciates the explanation which was made by the Senator from Delaware. However, we desire some additional information with regard to Senate Bill 280 and therefore I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HEYBURN. Yes, Mr. President.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I would like to call the attention of the gentleman from Delaware to section 3 on page 6, in which his bill sets up a division of conciliation, and desire to ask the gentleman from Delaware whether a labor conciliator would be appointed for a period of four years; is that correct?

Mr. HEYBURN. That is right, Mr. President.

Mr. LANE. At an annual salary of $10,000 per year?

Mr. HEYBURN. That is right, Mr. President.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, is it necessary that he possess any particular qualifications for this position?

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I think the only qualification this man or woman need possess is simply this, to be completely fair to both sides and at all times, keep in front of him the picture of the great mass of American people, and govern himself accordingly.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I call to the attention of the gentleman from Delaware, page 10, line 10, where the gentleman will note it says "The labor conciliator will have the prerogative to designate to act for him as his special deputy a previously registered and properly certified community agency which through experience and composition is qualified to serve in this capacity."

Would the gentleman from Delaware name any particular agency?

Mr. HEYBURN. Yes, Mr. President. In the city of Philadelphia, and I heard this widely discussed in a luncheon I had with some of my good friends in the labor movement, and I never had a happier time, Mr. President, we all approached this thing with an open mind, completely off the record. That, Mr. President, refers to certain certified agencies. In Philadelphia—I forget what they term themselves at the moment—but it has to do with mediation of strikes certified by the American Arbitration Association. The reason that is in there, Mr. President, is that sometimes local agencies that are completely familiar with the picture can much better conciliate differences than an outside agency, and I think if the gentleman will talk to any number of labor leaders—I suggest President McDevitt of the Pennsylvania Federation—he will agree that this agency in Philadelphia has done a grand job.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I desire to further interrogate the gentleman from Delaware.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. HEYBURN. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I call to the attention of the gentleman from Delaware page 11, line 12, where it says "Immediately upon receipt of a strike notice the labor conciliator shall certify the issue over to the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board which shall, within a period of ten days, conduct a secret ballot among the employes in the bargaining unit involved, which vote shall be held in the immediate vicinity of such employes' entrances." What would constitute a bargaining unit?

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, that would be in the event of a contract, the agency that had signed the existing contract, the certified agency affecting the employes in any given unit, I should say.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, who would certify to the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board the list of the membership of the unit involved?

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I do not think there is any necessity for a list. What is done, once the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board gets this certification, they immediately give proper publicity to it, after which time all employes should be informed, if they read the papers, and that is all they can do with it, or the union itself can give written notice, Mr. President—and then, within ten days—there will be an election, conducted not more than ten days after the notice and in the immediate vicinity of the employes' entrances, at which time they can go in there, Mr. President, and nobody but they and the Lord will know how they vote with respect to whether they shall or shall not strike. In the event of a jurisdictional dispute, Mr. President, the question is shall "X" union or "Y" union represent us, and that is all that is before those people, Mr. President. When that is done and the votes are counted you have the answer, and what could be more American than that I do not know.

Mr. LANE. The point I am trying to bring out is this, Mr. President, that in the provisions of the bill a majority of the membership of the union must vote; is that not correct?

Mr. HEYBURN. That is correct, Mr. President.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, how would they determine a majority if they did not know the number of members in this unit that is involved in this industrial dispute?

Mr. HEYBURN. That necessarily follows, Mr. President, how many employes are involved, but that can be obtained from the company payroll or from the unit itself. Of course, Mr. President, you have to know whether hundreds or thousands are involved in order to know what a majority would be.

Mr. LANE. Just what portion of the unit would be permitted to vote in this election?

Mr. HEYBURN. All of them, Mr. President.

Mr. LANE. Would that include the supervisory employes?

Mr. HEYBURN. No, Mr. President.

Mr. LANE. Everybody but the supervisory employes?

Mr. HEYBURN. That is right.

Mr. LANE. I call to the attention of the gentleman from Delaware Section 7 on Page 17—

Mr. HEYBURN. Of what bill, Mr. President?

Mr. LANE. Senate Bill 280, and I quote, "Section 7. Re-submission to Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board. At any time during the existence of a strike the labor conciliator may at his discretion certify the dispute back to the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board to conduct a secret ballot among the employes within the involved unit in the immediate vicinity of such employes' entrances on the question of continuing the strike or returning to work."

Under this section would it not be possible to hold an election probably every other day?

Mr. HEYBURN. Well, Mr. President, of course you could not do that because you would have to have ten days' notice, at least, and the board could not physically conduct an election every day.

What is involved here, I would like to explain to the gentleman, is this: some time ago when the Philadelphia Record newspaper was on strike, Mr. President—I am very well acquainted with some of those employes involved, and sometimes they have written kind stories about me and other times they have been not so kind—one of them called me up and said "Senator Heyburn, how is it that nobody has set up any machinery for settling strikes, we want so bad to have a chance to vote on this question of shall we return to work or shall we not!"

Mr. President, when, in the opinion of this labor conciliator, there is sufficient doubt to believe that a majority of the employes have determined that they want to return to work in their own minds, without any force or coercion, then another election can be taken. That is the reason and the idea for it.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, since the gentleman from Delaware is the sponsor of this piece of legislation, I would like to have a statement from him with regard to the section as to legislative import of this particular section; would it be possible to hold elections say every ten days?

Mr. HEYBURN. No, Mr. President; public opinion would not support any such thing. It would be silly, Mr. President, to hold elections every ten days but at any time when the conciliator has reasonable doubt about whether or not the employes want to continue, it can be determined in the American fashion, by having a secret ballot.

Mr. LANE. Under the wording of the bill, Mr. President, it would be possible to hold an election every ten days would it not?

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, as I said before, it would not be physically possible, in my opinion, to do so and I can not conceive, Mr. President, public opinion in this great Commonwealth backing up such a proposition, they just would not tolerate it, Mr. President, and nobody would be so foolish, in my opinion, to try it, and the legislative intent is that it should not be done.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I call to the attention of the gentleman from Delaware Section "B", Page 20, "In case of contumacy or refusal to obey a subpoena issued under subsection (a) of this section, on application by the temporary arbitration tribunal, the Court of Common Pleas for the county where the proceeding is pending, or in which the person guilty of such contumacy or refusal to obey is found or resides or transacts business, shall have jurisdiction to issue an order requiring such person to appear before the temporary arbitration tribunal to produce evidence as ordered or to give testimony touching the matter under investigation or in question. Failure to obey such order of the court may be punished by the court as a contempt."

According to that Section that is compulsory arbitration, is it not?

Mr. HEYBURN. No, Mr. President, it is not.

Mr. LANE. How does the gentleman from Delaware then define it?

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, there can not be a temporary arbitration tribunal unless both side agree to have it, as I explained before. Once they have this temporary arbitration tribunal, Mr. President, and once both sides have agreed to have it, necessarily they can not arbitrate any thing unless they have the facts, and then, Mr. President, they have power to require attendance of the proper witnesses. You have to have that. If you do not have that, Mr. President, it is a joke.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I call to the attention of the gentleman from Delaware Section 11, Page 23, which states "Suit for breach of contract. When any of the disputants in a labor dispute shall refuse to comply with the terms of their contract and there shall arise a definite breach of such contract, or there has been an overt act to create such breach of contract, the aggrieved party may institute appropriate action in a court of competent jurisdiction for relief under the rules and procedures of such court in the county of the locale of the industry affected. In no case shall damages be awarded of a nature other than actual damages sustained."

Mr. President, would it not be possible under the provisions of this section for several members of an organization to call an unlawful strike and would not this unlawful strike make the union liable for damages?

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, an unlawful strike is in violation of the contract and therefore this section would not cover it. What is intended here, Mr. President, is wilfully breaking a contract by either party; then both parties are responsible for damages.

If I may continue, Mr. President, several union leaders, with whom I am friendly and have known for many years told me that they had objection to this provision and they raised that very question and I said, "I will tell you what I will do; you can insert any language you want in this section, provided you do not interfere with the fundamental principles of the bill, that is, make both keep a contract, and, evidently, Mr. President, they could not decide on any words to do that, because they did not come back.

I repeat, Mr. President, that if the gentleman has any such doubt, and the bill passes this Senate today—whether it will or not, I do not know—I am going to vote for it—if it does pass this Senate today, Mr. President, and if the gentleman from Washington thinks he has something which will protect that situation, I myself will go with him to the House Committee and advocate it. No one could do more than that, I do not think.

The sole intent of this legislation, Mr. President, is to make both sides keep a contract. That is the only way you can get industrial peace. Once a contract is signed, then it must be valid for the period of the contract.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, in section 11, line 13, the gentleman from Delaware will note, Senate Bill 280, page 23, the wording says, "or there has been an overt act to create such breach of contract"—that phrase is very dangerous in my opinion, because I believe it might be possible for two or three members of this organization to cease to work, cause a strike, and the company may suffer damages, and the result will be they will sue the union representative; is that not correct?

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I would like to say to my good friend, the gentleman from Washington, that this overt act refers to an overt act on the part of the union.

Mr. LANE. On the part of the union?

Mr. HEYBURN. Yes, the union, Mr. President, I repeat—not individuals, but the union itself.

I repeat, Mr. President, if there is any language the gentleman from Washington would like to insert that does not interfere with the bill as far as principle is concerned, I will go to the House Committee with him and advocate it. I said this to organized labor leaders, and they did not come back. I offered to have a lawyer sit down, who represents unions himself, and work out an amendment, and nobody, Mr. President, could suggest anything. I repeat that offer to the gentleman from Washington.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, during the debate here this afternoon I was handed a slip of paper which outlines in detail this question of initiation fees, with regard to restaurant hotel workers who are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and I believe, Mr. President, their initiation fee is $5 for unskilled and $10 for skilled workers. $2.50 goes to the international union, out of which a $200 death benefit is paid. Dues are five cents per day for a female and five and a half cents per day for a male. That seems very very reasonable to me.

Before I get off the floor I would like to read something into the record which appeared in the June issue of the Reader's Digest. This was written by Marty McIntyre, A. F. L. organizer, who works in and out of Bradford, Pennsylvania, where he was born in 1909.

"It took me just 20 hours to organize the 600 workers of a plant in Western Pennsylvania. Then I went in to talk turkey with the boss. Not a bad sort, he seemed bewildered.

"I've worked with these people 30 years," he said. "In a day or so you organize them, and they'll follow you anywhere."

"I didn't organize them," I told him. "You did. And it took you 30 years to do it."

"This successful small-town employer understood only half his business—the half beginning with manufacture and ending with sales. He didn't comprehend the simple truth that workers are people. His employees were little more to him than machines in overalls. And his wage scale was so low that a family couldn't live decently unless two or three members were working. There had been complaints—but he had brushed them all off. The men had to organize and strike to bring him to his senses.

"Most plants in the United States are small affairs like this one. And in my 13 years as an organizer of AFL unions in hundreds of them, I have had a good chance to figure out the causes and the cures of their labor troubles.

"Workers in small communities have a stake in staying put. Many of them own their own homes and expect to work where they are for keeps. What's more, they know their bosses, who have invested their savings in the business just as the workers themselves are investing the years of their lives. Strikes don't develop in this atmosphere unless the causes are compelling.

"No one—except the professional malcontent—welcomes a strike. Average union workers are not wild-eyed radicals. They're the chaps bowling in the next alley, the trim girl on the bus, the older folks you brush against in church or at the movies. They won't amputate their incomes and pound the picket line unless they're convinced they're getting a raw deal. Rent, payments on the new refrigerator, babies, make strong arguments against striking. Forget the idea that a union leader just snaps his fingers and everybody walks off the job.

"At an upstate Pennsylvania plant right now, a strike is long overdue. But the people won't walk out. Their boss, despite his faults, is slow to fire anybody. He gives his employees that precious feeling of security. They want and need more money, but the boss hasn't made them mad enough to strike. Neither, so far, have I. A man's strike vote in a wage dispute is tempered by human factors in his relations with his employer.

"Some plants handle their labor relations so well that unions can't get even a foothold in them. Bovaird & Co., oil equipment manufacturers in my home town of Bradford, Pa., is a good example. A hospitalized worker is kept on the payroll; an anemic employee is supplied an expensive liver extract month after month; an official of the company butchers the hogs on his farm and quietly passes the cuts around (his wife got two pounds of sausage meat out of that deal). Frequently this firm invites organizers to come in, but we have preferred to concentrate on people who really need a union.

"Nitroglycerine shooters in the much-smeared Du Pont Company gladly joined the powder worker's union—to help discontented shooters in other branches of the industry. They asked us not to stir up anything with their own highly satisfactory management.

"Management earns such tributes only by square dealing—by looking for grievances before they happen, and seeing that they don't happen.

"As a professional trouble shooter for labor, I know that the worker's principal beef is ill-chosen foremen. Every questionnaire proves it. Either a foreman is a smooth roller bearing or else he's so much sand in the gears. He recommends promotions, transfers, layoffs; allots vacations, days off, shifts and hours. He needs tact, tolerance, intelligence. Productivity and morale are ruined by "worry warts," and by unjust overseers.

"Little things can cause a lot of trouble. For instance, luxurious executives' washrooms when workers have only cold water, leaky sinks and poor quality towels, or an executive who walks through "no Smoking" areas puffing a cigar.

"Many firms, to suit their own convenience, pay only monthly or semi-monthly. Results? Workers must buy supplies at credit stores, which charge more, instead of at lower-priced markets which sell for cash.

"Small bookkeeping changes would provide weekly pay envelopes and put the equivalent of additional dollars in every worker's pocket.

"Workmen hate the time-study or "efficiency" expert who experiments with a worker as impersonally as a mechanic tinkers on a machine. They expect to do a fair day's work, but they object to trick pressures and speed-up.

"One of labor's jumpiest nerves is promotions-transfers-layoffs. Advancement is difficult in modern industry; not everyone can leap from the forge to the president's chair. A worker's only protection for his investment in the firm (the years of his life) comes through seniority. When it comes to promotions, workers recognize incompetence as well as management does, and no intelligent union will push a man into a job he can't do. A management and union committee can arrange amicably to reward the skill of a junior man.

"When wages and other conditions are satisfactory, the workers themselves will solve many personnel troubles. An Ohio novelty manufacturer recently jolted me by offering several cents more per hour than I had asked. But as soon as I signed the contract he dropped a tardiness problem right in the union's lap. We cured it by having all latecomers make an embarrassing entrance through the main office. Once living wages are assured, most workmen police the shirkers better than any supervisor or foreman can.

"Over-all profit-sharing plans likewise stimulate production. I have been particularly impressed by the way teams in a large Pennsylvania slide-fastener plant achieve amazing production—and earnings—under a group bonus plan. Removal of lazy or inept workers is one of the workers' constant demands. It's a rare union leader who has to carry such complaints to a boss!

"The soundest basis for labor-management stability is the guaranteed annual wage. It is a goal for management as well as labor to strive for. Can industry buy materials, pile stock, scheduled production and advertising a year in advance, and not be able to guarantee steady employees a certain amount of work and pay over the same period? Few working men can believe this.

"Labor troubles will continue to plague industry if management doesn't pay more attention to basic sources of disaffection. It's true that some strikes are caused by no fault of the employer: jurisdictional disputes, protests against government decisions, Communist influence. But get away from big-city theorists if you want to understand American labor. Many a troubled boss or bystander thinks he sees sinister political trends in a simple, healthy demand for better pay and better working conditions. If it seems to you that the average working Joe is tackling the capitalistic system, remember he's tackling it only to take a bigger chunk of it home."

Mr. WOODRING. Mr. President, I did not hear what the gentleman from Westmoreland said about the waiting period, or cooling-off period, under Senate Bill 280, but I believe I heard what Mr. Heyburn, the gentleman from Delaware, said and if I recollect correctly, he said it was a period of ninety days.

As I read the bill—and for the benefit of the gentleman from Delaware I would like to go on the record and state that I have studied the bill rather seriously and at some length—and as I read it there is provided prior notice of thirty days, a period of thirty days following the period of notice; I read in the bill that there is an additional period of sixty days after it has gone to the conciliator, or the National Labor Relations Board; I find a ten-day period after that, at which time an election may be held, and then a forty-five day period for certification, which adds up, in my calculations, to one hundred forty-five days; but, in addition to that, collective bargaining agreements, in those cases where there is a pre-existing agreement, always provide for some additional period before which a contract can be re-opened or the question of wages can be redetermined, and figuring that very conservatively at sixty days, I would calculate the entire period to be something like two hundred five days, which is a pretty long cooling-off period. So much for bill 280.

Mr. President and members of the Senate, I would like from here on in to consider those bills about which I spoke last week, Senate Bills 677 and 678, the bills which have to do with group life insurance as taken out for the protection of society generally by the unions, policies for which were written during this session, out in the area of Pittsburgh and Allegheny county, covering some thirty-three hundred employees in only two contracts, to say nothing of the countless women and children who are directly affected by those contracts and which were ruled out by the Commissioner of Insurance, and which ruling is to be validated by these bills, Senate Bills 677 and 678.

In considering these bills, Mr. President, it seems to me that Pennsylvania is changing its clothing, it is taking off the raiment reserved for the sheep or goat and trying to take on the raiment of another animal.

Pennsylvania is notoriously backward of the forty-eight states of the Union, notoriously backward, and its historic position in this regard can be readily understood when you consider the Republican National Conventions of 1936 and 1940, because on each of those occasions Pennsylvania could have been responsible for the selection of the presidential candidate of the Republican party and could have taken whatever credit could be assumed from that position, but Pennsylvania, adhering to its backwardness, passed its vote, its opportunity passed, and only after the selection of the candidate was assured did the Pennsylvania delegation pick up its banners and try to jump on the bandwagon.

That has nothing to do with legislation, but there are many things that have to do with legislation. In the case of compensation for partial unemployment compensation, Pennsylvania was the forty-seventh state—not the first and not the sixth or seventh state in the Union, but it was the forty-seventh of the forty-eight states in passing laws providing for compensation for partial unemployment compensation—Pennsylvania and Montana were the last two states in the Union to adopt that law, and Montana is a great state of forests and lakes and does not need any labor relations law and it is not what you might call an industrially leading state. Pennsylvania, on the other hand, is one of the leading states in industrial life, if not the leading state, but Pennsylvania was forty-seventh in that regard. Pennsylvania is way down the ladder in its assistance, in its direct compensation. Pennsylvania is very backward and especially with respect to hospitalization for the mentally ill and for the crippled. I have stated on this floor again and over and over again, with much regret, that in my district, and I am sure in all the districts, we have hopelessly crippled children of indigent parents, and the great state of Pennsylvania can not take care of those cases.

I point out this backwardness with a very definite purpose. In the instant case of adopting this kind of legislation—call it anti-labor legislation or ripper legislation or whatever you please, these bills speak for themselves and the record will stand. In this type of legislation Pennsylvania tries to throw off the sheep's clothing and tries to become a white woolly lamb and lead the procession of industrial states. No large industrial state to date has enacted any legislation like Senate Bill 280, or any of the others on the gamut of this special order of business, and it seems to me that we are doing an ill-advised thing to adopt this type of legislation at this particular time in the history of our country.

Mr. President and members of the Senate, I heard our minority floor leader pose the question: have you ever sat in on a strike meeting—many of you have not and I have not but I came close to it, not quite, but I have sat in on the negotiations of labor contracts, I have sat in on those meetings for both the employer and employee, for both industry and the union, and I know something from first-hand experience of what goes on in the thinking in meetings of that type. This is a serious business—these bills, 677 and 678, are serious business. These labor contracts, these collective bargaining agreements, are entered into normally with three parties thereto, the employees, the union and the employer, but there is a fourth party, a very definite fourth party, to every one of those contracts which is written, or between the lines, and which can not be removed from the writing and which can not be removed from consideration of the contract, and that is the public, and in Senate Bills 677 and 678, in a very thoughtless mood, in an angry mood, in an effort to spank the baby, in an effort to chastise this unruly child which we call labor, the sponsors of these bills have endeavored to bring down their wrath upon the innocent public.

It is a serious business when we have, and we do have, group life insurance, group health and accident insurance, group dismemberment by death insurance, hospitalization, insurance of all types. Why? Not to protect the employer and primarily, I say and I say it again, primarily not to protect the employer but to protect society generally, because when there is a death case, when there is a serious accident case, an employee case, a case where a man or a woman is incapacitated for the rest of his working life, that is a responsibility and a liability that is vested back upon the public. All of these types of group insurance were originally written and conceived with knowledge and recognition of that fact; they were written to take care of the public, so that the public would not have to bear the burden by reason of that death or that of accident.

By reason of the 1921 Act, as amended, which defines group life insurance, a great many group life insurance policies have been written, in Pennsylvania, in New York—which has similar legislation—in Massachusetts, and in a great many of the forty-eight states of the Union, and yet, at one stroke of the pen, by a simple amendment to that Act under Senate Bill 677, you take away the right of a union to purchase insurance if the premiums are contributed to by the employer. How are these premiums contributed by the employer? Well, let us go back to those occasions when those of us in this Senate and in this gallery negotiated union contracts. What is the purpose of that negotiation? Well, very often they want additional wages and they ask for twenty cents and they are finally told that the employer can not do business if he grants a twenty-cent increase; the company negotiators come along and say "We can not give you twenty cents increase and stay in business but we can give you eight cents and in addition to eight cents, we will give you three or four, or two, we will give you some additional amount." Why? Not to finance the union, not to finance political campaigns, but in lieu of additional wages; instead of writing an increase at eleven cents, they say "We will give the men eight cents and we will give you, the union, three cents additional in lieu of additional wages, for a particular purpose, for a very sound purpose, for the purpose of health and welfare, which ought to ring close to the hearts of every one of us because, with all our property, if we do not have a good health and welfare program, if we do not have a good health and welfare status, we will not be a happy nation and our prosperity can not continue very much longer."

So that contract is written that way and, under the terms of that contract, those three cents additional, in lieu of additional wages which might have been given under the contract—might have been given to the employees, the members of the union, but which were not and were given to the union—that money becomes the property of the union under all the legal tests, and once it becomes the property of the union, the union ought to be free to go out and buy that insurance in any way it sees fit under the regulations of proper insurance laws and, having purchased that insurance for the protection and insurance of its members and the families of its members, that contract ought not be disturbed either by our Insurance Commissioner or by subsequent legislation.

I could, Mr. President and members of the Senate, tell you some very intimate facts concerning a ruling of the Insurance Commissioner which led up to this legislation, which would be embarrassing to him and which would be embarrassing to me as a member of this Senate and I am going to refrain from doing it, but let me say that all that glitters is not gold—and the President agrees with me—this legislation was not inspired by the best legislative motives and principles. It was a deliberate attempt, as I said, to spank the baby, and it is prompted by improper motives and ought not be considered seriously. I heard our minority leader to day say "Today you can do it, you can pass all this legislation, but tomorrow the people will rue it." Yes, I think the people will rue it.

I think the majority side in this Legislature, both in the House and in the Senate, is going to rue it, and I think the successful passage of this special-order-of-business-labor-bills is going to cause men and women engaged in honest labor in the state of Pennsylvania to rise up to social and political heights to which nobody ever respected. I think that the majority side, speaking politically, is making a very serious mistake; it is not for me to pass judgment on their conduct, but I do agree with my leader that tomorrow you will rue it.

I think, Mr. President, concerning the labor bills that are on our special-order-of-business calendar, that generally labor itself can take care of those bills. However, with respect to Senate Bills 677 and 678, I think neither the laboring man or the union can take care of them, because the real hurt comes not to them but to the public, and my sympathy goes out to the public. When Senate Bills 677 and 678 are passed by this Senate.

Mr. JASPAN. Mr. President and gentlemen of the Senate, I learned today that Mayor O'Dwyer of New York called a holiday for the citizens of New York in protest against the Taft-Hartley Bill.

I feel that Governor Duff similarly, in view of his feeling towards punitive legislation, should call a holiday not only for today but for the entire week, starting next Monday.

I have heard much today and I have been very much interested. However, I feel there have been some points which have not been touched in connection with these labor bills, something that strikes home, not at my home alone but at everybody's home. Apparently some of us have forgotten where and how we were born; some of us may have come into wealth, fortunately, not realizing what poverty is, what it is to work by the sweat of our brows. Others, however, have been forced to work by the sweat of their brows. I have heard our minority leader, Senator Dent, say that he worked in the mines and worked in the factories. I have heard others say the same thing. I, likewise, at the age of sixteen went to work in a foundry at the corner of Broad and Buttonwood streets in Philadelphia, where I worked for $5 a week, working fifty-five hours a week, earning myself something like approximately nine and three-quarter cents an hour, I earned a living, while the bosses were making millions and basking in the sun at Florida, Atlantic City, or whatever summer resort they frequented. I have heard others say the same thing and my heart goes out for them because I worked as they work. Others who never worked by the sweat of their brows do not appreciate what it is to work hard and therefore I can consider the rights and the needs and the wants of labor and I say to you, Mr. President, at the very outset, and let us not forget it, these bills before us are designed to curb labor and destroy all gains made by labor since 1932. To put it more simply, it is to punish labor. These bills, Mr. President, were born in anger and are replete with vengeance. I wonder whether we are losing our sense of values? Do we not realize that labor creates the wealth that some of us enjoy here, and others throughout the state of Pennsylvania—apparently we do not. I appreciate, as I said before, that some of us who have not worked by the sweat of our brows do not realize the value of labor. I, like others, worked in foundries and factories and arsenals to earn a living, and therefore I am in a position to judge labor's true worth.

What is more, the people in my district are ninety per cent the laboring class and I know what they want. They elected me to represent them and I am going to represent them and not represent the interests, whose bidding some of us have done. Our people want protection and security. Do we intend to deny them what the Constitution of the United States and our Declaration of Independence gave them?

May I first ask why did our first Americans come here? The answer is a very simple one, a very plain one—to escape religious persecution, to obtain social security and economic security.

I shall confine myself to the question of economic security as it bears on the subject before us. Working in factories, shops and mines for years, for a mere pittance in order to exist, so that others can fill their coffers, is a sad commentary on the cities and the states and the government as well, while the capitalists sits there and enjoys prosperity with little regard for the rights of the common man. On account of their very conduct, and I speak of the capitalists, the men who are manufacturers, unions became a necessity. Yes, to protect the worker against the greed of the capitalists. Under unionism the lot of the worker has improved considerably, and such should be the case if we are honest to ourselves and if we are honest to our people.

Are we now going to destroy with one fell swoop all the advantages that are now labor's? Let me ask, in what respect has the capitalist suffered through the gains made by labor? The truth is that the capitalist today is in better position financially than he ever was, yet he complains. His object is to enslave labor and mankind. Do you know what happened to the Roman civilization thousands of years ago when labor was enslaved? That was one of the contributing factors to its downfall. Let us not make the same mistake.

Every man has a right to live, and I now quote from the preamble of the Declaration of Independence: "There are three inalienable rights, the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." My leader so stated. The right to live was given to us by God and nobody has a right to deny us that right, if we have any religion in us. The trouble today is that we lack religion, we only talk about it but never give our ears to it, but as we walk out of the church, temple or synagogue we forget the rights of others to live. We need further a little education so as not to act with greed, selfishness and over-zealousness and avariciousness.

The right to live, as set forth in the Declaration of Independence, is an inalienable right. The right to enjoy a full, rich and complete life should be everyone's right.

We can not set ourselves up today as God—ready to pass judgment, without consulting individuals, without considering their needs and wants. We who are safe and secure, very often forget the needs of those who are less safe and secure. That is unfortunate but it is true, on account of the greed for money and the power that you may attribute to it. You may call me what you will, but I am as much an American as anybody in this state.

Are we here to cater to the greedy and selfish employer, as against the employe who only asks for the right to live decently and comfortably, such as you and I enjoy that right. We often forget that we were elected by the people. After election who do we cater to—the interests, the utilities, the corporations, the manufacturers and the like.

Let me ask one question of the members of the Senate group: have you ever taken a poll of the people you represent to determine their attitude on these labor bills? Of course you have not. I dare say in almost every case they would be unalterably opposed to such drastic legislation as you now seek to pass.

I now quote from page 4 of Senate Bill 230, introduced by my friend from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart: page 4, line 4: "Whereas such practices are undemocratic and monopolistic, they can not exist side by side with free enterprise and they are opposed to the fundamental rights set forth in our Constitution that 'all men are born equally free and independent and have certain inherent and in-defeasible rights, among which are those of enjoying and defending life and liberty and of acquiring, possessing and protecting property and reputation and of pursuing their own happiness.'" That to me seems like the devil citing scripture in his own behalf.

Speaking of monopolies, under this bill, you would think labor unions were monopolies. But speaking of monopolies, think of it gentlemen, think of the utilities. I heard it mentioned on this floor that the Bell Telephone Company has allied throughout the country with the A. T. & T., they have no competition, and no one dares to give competition because we must do the bidding of certain interests, they get what they want, do what they want, and if they do not get what they want, something happens to certain individuals.

Again speaking of monopolies, there have been eighteen hundred mergers or consolidations since 1941, involving over six billion dollars of corporations and manufacturers—and they speak of unions as monopolies. Large firms have been gobbling up small firms, cornering markets—not the unions but these corporations, these utilities, these manufacturers, maintaining high price levels, causing increased cost of living and destroying free enterprise and initiative—as brought out in Senate Bill 230, that the unions are destroying free enterprise.

We are not children, you do not have to blind us to the facts. It is these corporations, the very ones that condemn regimentation and bureaucracy by the government that are destroying free enterprise. Banks—think of it—with their millions, denying the little merchant, thereby squeezing him and forcing him out of business, denying some little money, conspiring with big business. Is that what you would term free enterprise and initiative with labor and business acquiring and protecting property.

Gentlemen, I am not being deceived by high-sounding phrases or propaganda resorted to by industry, that they are being imposed upon because it is labor that is being taken advantage of, labor and the common man, my friends, being imposed upon, but apparently some of you have forgotten it, you did not have to labor, like your grandparents or someone in the distant past when they came to this country—for what purpose—to make an honest living—but apparently we have forgotten the rights of the common man and the sooner we realize what he needs, the better off we will be. Speaking of communism, there will come the day, unless we make up our minds that we shall protect labor, the little laboring groups, the very wealth that we enjoy today will be destroyed.

I remember, when I was a child, I heard of that American dream that there were equal opportunities for all, we heard of that great American principle. America to me is a great country and it was intended for all, but selfish and greedy people have seen fit to exploit it for their benefit.

Let me read from a book called "The Evolution of America's Purpose." I will not fritter away your time on just anything in these first hours—here we have the Pennsylvania Manual, here is a book called "Labor and Industry"—here is one about labor, and this I say from experience, that it is my observation, my friends, that labor deserves some consideration, but unfortunately, just before Roosevelt came into office I recall those yellow-dog contracts which enslaved labor which was the beginning of the end for Democracy, or for the representative form of government, unless we come down to brass tacks and do what we believe to be right, and you may not agree with me, but unfortunately they can not publicly stress what they privately feel on account of their leadership, and that is the trouble with our government today, because the leaders come to us and dictate notwithstanding the people who elect us to office.

And now I shall quote from this book called "The Evolution of America's Purpose" which bears very much on the subject before us. Mr. President, I speak sincerely and honestly—there may be a little levity here and there but it does not disturb me one iota. Here is this gentleman, A. J. Snyder, an economist, who has made his observations, he studied America, studied the economic system, the monopolies, corporations, rights of labor and the rights of everybody and, in fact, he starts out at the very outset by saying under Introduction, "When in the course of human events it becomes necessary—"—that is from the Declaration of Independence, as I stated before, those three inalienable rights, life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness and this bears on the point and I wish you would consider this and consider it well because this is a very serious and important bill and I speak for the eighty thousand people in my district, sixty thousand of whom are working-men:

"Man, in his more noble moods, makes bold resolutions. These firm resolves are the source of his greatest strength. Yet, in the qualms of weakness, these are the first to be discarded. One who dares remind him of his solemn pledge is indeed a friend, but in so doing risks that friendship.

"A nation is merely many men, and likewise, has its noble moods and makes bold resolutions. "Youth is the seed-time of good habits as well in nations as in individuals." A nation also has its faint moments when moral courage is relaxed. To remind a nation, grown into empire, of those ideals with which it was conceived, is certain to incur resentment, and perhaps provoke an angry charge of "treason." But when our own nation, in the full vigor of its manhood, stands dazed and bewildered, paying heed to every false advice, yet ignoring the wisdom with which it was born, then the obligation to recall those pledges is imperative.

"Reminding becomes a double duty when the very purpose for which our nation was brought into being, both solves its present problems and holds the only hope for its future existence.

"Today the social structure of our nation is undergoing vast and hurried changes. Time honored institutions and long accepted doctrines are being questioned, while newer theories clamor for recognition. The American people are confronted with the task of deciding which of the old to discard and which of the new to adopt. National pride dictates that only those changes be accepted which are in line with our national tradition, in keeping with what we are pleased to term, the "American way." Unfortunately, constant and rapid immigration has brought into this country philosophies foreign to our tradition; while within our country, an abundant prosperity, enjoyed without gratitude, over a long period has made some, who are American by birth, dull to the real meaning of our American ideals. Many now say we have no American beliefs, that emergencies demand the acceptance of theories and doctrines, of other people. Others, who should know better, feign ignorance of our ideals, mock them, deny them, and even distort and substitute false doctrines in their place.

"We talk of the "American way," yet how many know the meaning of the term? Some even question that it has a meaning. Every American should know that America has a philosophy; that the American philosophy is not only political but extends into the whole realm of human affairs; that it applies to existing economic problems; that it resents the only certain solution to their complexities; and that the American philosophy is right.

"What is this philosophy? From whence does it come? By whom was it propounded? How does it apply? What solution does it offer?

"The answers should be on the tongue of every American. Unfortunately there are few who know its terms, its meaning, or its application. Because we are ignorant of our own traditions, we are on the verge of accepting foreign philosophies. America must not make the mistake of adopting any of the false doctrines which are aligning humanity against itself and tending to disrupt the rest of the world. The urgent need of this nation for a knowledge of its own philosophy is the necessity which dictates this book.

"This nation did not just happen, nor did it chance into existence by the usual paths of history. Our forefathers truthfully claimed, "To fraud, to force, or accident, all the governments we know have owed their birth." "The Americans are the first people whom Heaven has favored with an opportunity of deliberating upon, and choosing the forms of government under which they should live."

"Ordinarily people become welded into nations after centuries of interbreeding. Similarity in race, religion, or geographic position account for their national existence. A new nation is forced into being only by violent military or economic necessity. Today, however, we in America, exist as a nation, though as a people we are unrelated in racial origin, drawn from every corner of the earth, profess every known religious creed, live beyond mere economic necessity, and are without fear of military invasion. We exist as a nation without any of the ordinary ties required to bind people together as a nation.

"A resolute purpose forms the solitary corner stone of our national structure. The common belief in the "equal rights of man" was our one reason for becoming a separate nation. The preservation of these "equal rights" is the single purpose for our continuance as a nation.

"America's purpose is not the mental gem from the mind of some one man, or even of the group of men that brought this nation into being. It did not suddenly blaze forth in full brilliancy upon the sky of human events. Nor did it begin as an enactment of human legislation. America's purpose is part of the very laws of nature; a persistent truth, struggling for recognition by man. Its cry for belief was heard by wise men from time to time since the very beginning of mankind. At first its faint philosophy had but few followers. By their teachings it gained greater credence. At times its truths were crushed beneath the heels of tyrants, only to rise with greater force. Throughout the ages it developed from a mere whisper to a mighty murmur of human belief.

"In 1776, America's purpose was written for the first time into human laws. It was the primary legislation of our new nation. Into the Declaration of Independence, which voiced our right to a separate national existence, those wise philosophers, to whom we owe our birth, wrote their philosophic beliefs:

"We hold these truths to be self evident that all men are Created equal, that they are endowed by their creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness."

"The nation they were establishing was not to be an aimless collection of humanity, but a new kind of nation; a nation with a purpose. They stated this purpose clearly and concisely when they added; "That, to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men."

"Time tends to decay. Even the firmest foundation in time needs rebuilding; the firmest resolution requires reiteration.

"Some eighty years after this nation's birth, it became necessary for Abraham Lincoln to remind Americans that the nation "our fathers brought forth on this continent" was "dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal." Our nation had lost sight of the purpose for which it was founded. Lincoln pointed to this decline; "Near eighty years ago we began by declaring that all men are created equal; but now from that beginning we have run down to the other declaration, that for some men to enslave others is a sacred right of self-government."

"Some like to excuse conditions on the theory that good and bad run in cycles which are beyond human control. For once the cycle of conditions happens to fit their theory. After a similar period of eighty years, our ideals have again "run down to a declaration" that for a few to exploit the lives and labor of millions of Americans is not only their "right," but their "American right of liberty." This is but one of the many distortions inflicted upon American principles.

"The ideal of equality has been so far forgotten that one who dares to advocate even a hesitant step in that direction is labelled "un-American." Inequality has become an accepted condition. Some now say the plain term "equality" was not intended. They apologize for our Revolutionary forefathers. They explain, that for which those patriots fought and bled was merely the limited right of "equality before the law;" which can only mean the doubtful privilege of suing or being sued in courts bound by unequal laws. They would reverse the purpose of our government, so its every muscle would be strained to perpetuate inequalities, against the natural trend of progress toward "equality."

"The right to life" has been diminished to a gamble for the means of existence. Security has become the luxury of a few. Life, for many, is a hazardous venture against overwhelming odds. Our government, "instituted to secure these rights" is supposed to act only as an "umpire" in this game of chance. While those who wish to enjoy the "adventure of speculation," at the risk of the lives and happiness of others are permitted to do so, providing they play according to the rules.

"One who dares defy this travesty on American ideals

is labelled "radical" and "revolutionary," as though to protest against injustice has become high treason. It has been said, "We have forgotten the very principle of our origin, if we have forgotten how to object, how to resist, how to agitate, how to pull down and build up, even to the extent of revolutionary practices, if it be necessary to readjust matters."

"We are told we must worship as "sacred" the errors made in the past, that the written laws and constitutions of human workmanship take precedent over the Laws of Nature. Forgotten is the advice that, "A strict observation of the written law is doubtless one of the high duties of a good citizen, but it is not the highest. The laws of necessity, of self-preservation, of saving our country when in danger are of higher obligation."

"Stand by your constitution" has become a slogan for blind adherence to existing inequalities. The law-abiding instinct of Americans is thus played upon to prevent the necessary changes that would deny a few their unfair advantages. No one dares to mention that "the basis of our political systems is the right of the people to make and alter their Constitutions of Government."

"Americans are told they must accept depression, poverty and defeat, as necessary conditions, as part of the "normal cycle" of existence. Placated by empty promises of "prosperity," and equally empty claims of "recovery," they exchange their right to an abundance for a crumb of "relief." Their appetite for happiness has been so long denied, that it is easily sickened by a few charitable sweets. The sterner stuff from which Americans were made has become too thin. The Continental European philosophy of "contentment amid poverty" threatens to replace the American "right to the pursuit of Happiness." Vague hopes for future rewards are accepted in exchange for the fundamental belief in a kindly Creator of an abundant nature here on earth.

"As Lincoln once said, "Prosperity" has "bred Tyrants;" they have reappeared in this fair land" and are about to "commence their vocation." They have already begun to distort American principles to their use. If these principles were merely the policies of some political party, we might look on with only mild feelings of repugnance while they are being twisted and contorted. But the principles of the Declaration of Independence are the pronouncement of our nation's purpose. They are the avowed determinations of our people. They are the reason for our national existence. Those who attempt to twist and distort these vital principles are torturing the very flesh and soul of every true American. It is but a question of time, when the irritation will exhaust the patience of an outraged people, and cause them to turn the force of their resentment upon their tormentors.

"There was a time when the "self-evident truths," upon which this nation was founded, were called "self-evident lies," when they were labelled "glittering generalities" and said to be "too idealistic" for the day and age. It should not be necessary to recall the bloodshed strife and civil war which threatened to destroy our nation, once its principles had been violated.

"The fundamental ideals of our country are, therefore, repeated, analysed, explained, and applied; not as precedents for blind acceptance, but as principles depending upon their own merit as truths. To acquaint Americans with the real meaning of their ideals; to challenge the feeling of smug "superiority," which denies "equality," to create a realization of the "Rights of Man;" to awaken that spirit with which America was born, in the hope we may avoid the natural consequences, which must follow if our nation's purpose is distorted and denied; this work is dedicated.

THE ANCESTRY OF AMERICA'S PURPOSE

"The error of those who reason by precedents drawn from antiquity, respecting the rights of man, is that they do not go far enough into antiquity. They do not go the whole way."

"When we examine the past, our purpose should be to ascertain if we have advanced; to find the direction of the paths of progress; to learn what means have aided us in our journey and what impediments remain to block our way. In this manner, the past can enable us to quicken our steps and hasten toward the goal of the future.

"Many million years ago, life first formed upon the cooling earth in tiny single cells. Each was a separate living thing, sufficient to itself. The lowest form of life was purely individual. Some jots of life were satisfied to remain isolated beings, and even to this day are simple single cells. But all life was not content in that solitary state; an impulse built by nature into its very structure urged it to combine with other life. From these unions of living cells evolved many complex creatures, among them man.

"Combination had a curious effect. Life which combined became more highly developed. The animals of many cells were more advanced than those which remained as single cells. Nature placed a special premium on co-operation.

"This urge to unite was irresistible in those cells destined to become man. When they had succeeded in their task and achieved the status of man, the impulse had not yet spent its force. The tendency to combine became man's outstanding characteristic. He was not content to remain alone but joined with other men to form society. "'It is not fit that man should be alone,' said the all-wise and all-gracious Author of our frame, who looked with compassion on the first solitary state of the work of his hand."

"The social instinct of man was his sword and shield. Compared to other primitive animals he was puny and weak. Alone he would have furnished a single, dainty morsel to whet the appetite of some mammoth beast. Together with other men he was a giant in power, with strength and skill that more than multiplied with his numbers, which enable him to subdue all other creatures. "Nature has endowed him with a principle, which gives him force and superiority, where otherwise he would be helpless and inferior. By sociability, they, who separately could make no effectual resistance, conquer and tame the various kinds of the brute creation."

"The earth is truly the source, the sustenance and the sepulcher of man. He came into existence because the earth at its surface was suitable for his needs. The air, water and soil furnished all that was necessary to sustain and preserve life. Conditions were both kind and abundant to nurture human life in that frail and helpless beginning. When the status of primitive man was achieved, he was crude and only slightly advanced beyond other creatures. During infancy he was dependent for a longer period, hence more helpless than his animal enemies. An abundance which overwhelmed his needs, harvested through cooperation with his fellowmen, accounts for man's ability to withstand the struggle for existence and attain his present status.

"Much has been written concerning the principle of the survival of the fittest. It is a biological fact that in a natural state, such as existed in primitive times, only those animals which were best fitted by reason of extra strength or cunning were able to survive. In this manner nature provided a process of selection which made for a higher creature.

"The difference between man and beast lay in the quality of their social instincts. Both had the instinct of self-preservation, but man had a greater desire for companionship and the stronger tendency toward cooperation. These instincts united him with his fellowmen and caused him to construct society as a protection against the destructive forces of this struggle. Society was erected as a fortress to prevent man from being eliminated in the struggle for existence, not as an arena within which to continue the struggle to the death.

"The strong and the weak fought side by side against the common enemy. The strong man cast the stones and hurled the spears, but the weaker man gathered them up and stood watch. When the common enemy had been fought off, no doubt the stronger primitive man forgot the assistance he had received from the weaker, and said, "Look what I have done. Now you must submit to my rule or fight me to see who is fittest to survive." No doubt the weaker thought to himself, "Next time I shall let you fight alone."

"Many generations of men were destroyed because they failed to understand the fundamental principle of co-operation. Man rose to ascendancy over other animals only after sad experience taught him that the tests to determine which beasts are fittest to survive do not apply to determine the fitness of men to survive as members of a common society. In society there are tasks for the weak as well as the strong. If the weak do their part they are entitled to the protection of the strong and an equal share of the products of their joint efforts. Might and cunning are the tests to determine fitness between beasts, but between men the test is willingness to cooperate in the work and willingness to share the harvest of society equally with one's fellowmen.

"Man's ability to survive the struggle for existence was not due to his individual fitness. The strongest man could never have withstood this test. United with other men he accomplished what he could not have accomplished alone. It was mankind as society, and not man as an individual, that survived.

"The evolution of man has been gradual. Organized human society began when man was crude and ignorant, when he was scarcely less beast than man. The conflict between the instincts of the beast and those of the man still continue. The development of man's intellect has helped him grow more manly and less bestial, but even today, man is far from complete; traces of the lower animal remain and manhood is immature.

"At first the beast within him urged him to take every advantage of his fellowman. His human tendencies, yet in their infancy, entered only a weak protest against these beastly impulses. The two natures, struggling within him, form the sources of the two conflicting philosophies which come down to us through the centuries. The one, dictated by brute strength and animal cunning argues the right of might, the right of the greedier to grasp the most; of the stronger to kill the weaker; of the "superior" to enslave the "inferior." The better nature of man argues for right based on justice, for the right of all to share and share alike; for the right of both weak and strong to live and be free.

"From the one nature developed the doctrine of inequality; from the other the philosophy of equality. Throughout the ages these two theories have struggled for acceptance in the minds of men. Inequality was the accepted creed while man was in the crudest stage. Equality has surged forward, hand in hand, with the growth of man's intelligence.

"Both these philosophies are reflected in the customs of man and the institutions of society. The champions of inequality argue that the combination of mankind in society does not alter the law of beasts that the strongest individual is still entitled to "all he can get." The advocates of equality say the purpose of society is to equalize the rights of all according to the principle of the brotherhood of man. The one argues the basis of government is the "divine right" of the mighty to rule the weak; the other believes in self-government, and states the true source of government is the consent of the governed. The one upholds the authority of the powerful to dictate laws which the weaker must obey; the other points to the laws of nature as patterns upon which human laws must be fashioned. The one insists upon acceptance of his doctrines by force; the other appeals to reason. The one claims superior rights; the other pleads for equal rights.

"The principle of human equality began with the beginning of man. History does not record when this law of nature was first discovered. Primitive man had little opportunity to consider his relationship to his fellow men. His immediate needs were urgent. Hunger, thirst, heat, cold, storm, drought and constant fear of other preying animals crowded the capacity of his dull wits. As he progressed, the united force of society protected the individual from his natural enemies and freed his mind for thoughts of the tomorrow. The realization of the certainties of the future should have caused him at once to seek equality with his fellowmen, but he was too ignorant to understand. Instead he learned only by the long, tortuous paths of cruel experience.

"The first slave, wincing under the whip of his master, expressed in his cries the voice of this philosophy. His enslavement cut more cruelly than the lash. Calling to his gods to deliver him from this injustice, he finally submitted to superior strength. He worked for the master because of necessity, not as an admission of his own inferiority. It was not his belief in equality that was destroyed, but his faith in his gods and his respect for his fellowmen.

"The first recorded attempt to bring about more equal conditions among men is contained in the Code of Khammurabi, King of Babylon. Over twenty-two hundred years before Christ, this social reformer caused laws protecting the weak, poor, widowed and orphaned, from the strong and the rich, to be carved upon huge stones. Though this code recognized slavery and classes, and prescribed rules for submission and subservience to arbitrary authority, it was a vast improvement over government by force. It represents the earliest known attempt at social legislation.

"The first substantial pronouncement of the principle of equality was by the classic Greek philosophers. These men, wise beyond their generation, in their discussion and writings, sowed seeds of thought destined to ripen into the American philosophy. Protagorus (481-411 B. C.) recognized man's social tendencies and credited the beginning of human society to these natural instincts. He was one of a group of philosophers, known as the Sophists, whose open discussions produced a beginning of the theory of natural rights of man. It was from the Sophists that Socrates (469-399 B. C.) acquired a thirst for knowledge, which led him to the sound conclusion that all vice is the product of our ignorance. From Socrates in turn, came the inspiration of the Stoic philosophy which developed a century later.

"In 411 B.C., the Great Grecian playwright Euripides (480-406 B. C.) voiced through one of his characters the "self-evident truth" that "Equality is the natural law of man." Thus, over two thousand years before our Declaration of Independence, wise men had pronounced the fundamental principle of Americanism.

"Plato (427-347 B.C.) and Aristotle (384-322 B.C.) put many of these earlier philosophies into writing, and preserved them for future generations. Plato distinguished between the laws of man and the laws of nature, and wrote of equality as an ideal but unattainable principle of government.

"The greatest contribution by the Grecians to our American principles came from Zeno (342-270 B. C.), whose teachings formed the basis of the Stoic school of philosophy. These thinkers recognized that all men by nature were entitled to equal rights. They considered happiness as the ultimate aim of life; spoke of the common brotherhood of man, and went so far as to visualize its ultimate achievement in a universal state embracing all the peoples of the world with its great humanitarian principles.

"With the rise of Roman civilization parts of this philosophy were expressed by some of their political thinkers. Cicero (106-43 B. C.) developed many of the principles of democracy. He considered men as having been drawn together by their instincts to form society; looked to nature as the basis of law; and referred to the natural equal rights of man. His aristocratic background prevented him from following, as a politician, the principles he pronounced as a philosopher. However, the Roman Jurists, who followed in later years, put into practice some of Cicero's theories.

"In the less developed parts of the world, the Hebrew prophets had raised their voices against the enslavement of their race and the idolatrous worship of innate "superiors." They preached equality among men as a religious principle, and developed the fundamental doctrine of Jewish tradition, that man should look upon his neighbor as upon himself. This principle was given definite expression in the writings of the Jewish Rabbi Hillel (50 B. C.-10 A. D.), just before the beginning of the Christian era.

"The strongest impetus for the philosophy of equality came from the religious teachings of Christ, who preached equality as the basis of the brotherhood of man. This principle was applied to break down the barriers between king and people, master and servant, rich and poor. The Christian teaching was more than a religion, it extended into all human affairs, political, economic and social. The early Christians placed special emphasis upon equality as an economic principle. St. Paul, preaching to the Corinthians, advised them to share their abundance: "For I mean not that other men be eased, and ye burdened: But by an equality, that now at this time your abundance may be a supply for their want, that their abundance also may be a supply for your want; that there may be equality."

"For nearly a century the followers of Christ actually practiced their theory of economic equality by sharing all things in common. Private property was prohibited because of its tendency to produce inequality. Private ownership of land was considered particularly un-Christian. The early church Fathers preached: "How far, O rich do you extend your senseless avarice? Do you intend to be the sole inhabitants of the earth? . . . The earth was made for all, rich and poor, in common . . . Nature gave all things in common for the use of all; usurpation created private rights. Property hath no rights. The earth is the Lord's and we are his offspring. The pagans hold earth as property. They do blaspheme God."

"St. Augustine (354-430 A. D.) applied the doctrines of Christianity to government, and evolved the democratic principle that the authority of government rests on the consent of the governed. He predicted the ultimate end of inequalities among mankind, and anticipated the purpose for which America was to be established nearly fifteen hundred years later.

"About five hundred years after Christ, hordes of barbarians left the undeveloped parts of the earth, which they had occupied, and invaded the more developed portions. They crushed with brute force the civilizations built up through centuries of intelligent effort. A blight of decadence, known in history as the dark ages, settled over all Europe, and continued for nearly a thousand years thereafter. During this period there was no extension of pure philosophy. High ideals were distorted into tools by which scheming leaders gained power and wealth. Both state and church were saturated with greed and corruption. Fanatics and hypocrites twisted the Christian belief of equality into doctrines of inequality to support church organizations, and competed with governments for political supremacy. The dictators of the church pointed to "divine revelation" in support of their actions. The kings and emperors in turn hired their own philosophers to distort truth, and manufacture arguments to prove their "divine right" to exclusive dominion.

"The state and the church, carried on their ruthless competition without thought or regard for human rights. At times they conspired and exerted their combined force to crush the revolts of the people. The system of property ownership known as the Feudal system was used by both clergy and nobles to enslave the common people and exploit their labor. Centuries of intrigue, violence and bloodshed, passed before the world was able to untangle the confusion of distorted religious, political and economic doctrines and produce some semblance of reason.

"The first clear concept of the philosophy of equality to emerge from this chaos was in the writings of St. Thomas Aquinas (1225-1274). He turned philosophic thought from "divine revelation" to an inquiry into nature through the aid of human reasoning. He identified the laws of nature with the will of God, and spoke of nature as the work of God from which man, with the aid of reason, could discover God's ordinances.

"The end of the middle ages came about through a gradual spread of knowledge and the development of the arts and sciences. Reasoning from nature became the basis of philosophy, instead of precedent and quibbling from interpretations of the scriptures. This produced a revival of the natural school to which our American philosophy belongs.

"Experiments in chemistry by Roger Bacon (12-10-1293), coupled with his imaginative predictions of the possibilities of science, gave new vision to the world. In retrospect his prophesies of steamships, automobiles and airplanes, five hundred years before their accomplishment, were indeed "revelations." The development of the art of printing with movable type hastened human progress through the general dissemination of learning. Discoveries in astronomy and physics gave man a better understanding of the earth on which he lived, and its relation to the universe. Copernicus, Kepler, and Galileo perfected the telescope, analyzed the movements of the heavenly bodies in their orbits, and reversed existing belief by announcing the revolution of the earth about the sun.

"Meanwhile revolts of the common people succeeded in obtaining some slight recognition of their rights. In England, the peasants were inspired to rebellion by the philosophies of John Wyclif (1320-1384), who sought to raise the standards of life for the lower classes. In his homely but forceful way, he preached the doctrine of economic and social equality, by asking the unanswerable question: "When Adam delved and Eve span, who was then the gentleman?"

"The fifteenth and sixteenth centuries were marked by a revival of the philosophy of equality, as the basis of direct attacks on monarchical government. Most effective were the writings of Richard Hooker (1553-1600). His works, written primarily as treatises on church government, developed the theories of political equality, so that a century later they were used, almost without change, as the basis for the writings of John Locke. Hooker's works were widely read in the American colonies prior to our Revolution. He wrote of men as "equals in nature"; of society as instituted for the "common good"; that "the public power of all society is above every soul contained in the same society"; that "laws human must be made according to the general laws of Nature"; that "to live by one man's will became the cause of all man's misery"; and to the theory of equal natural rights, he added the concept of natural duties, saying "to be loved by my equals in nature . . . imposeth upon me a natural duty of bearing to themward fully the like affection." These phrases were all destined to become part of our American philosophy.

"Toward the close of the seventeenth century, there were several important developments. Sir Isaac Newton, the great English physicist and astronomer, announced the laws of gravitation and the principles of motion. These definite laws of nature had been discovered by simple observation aided by mathematical calculation. They stimulated the method of reasoning from nature as a basis for other forms of learning.

"In 1688 a revolution in England deposed King James II, and placed William and Mary on the throne. This was a victory for limited monarchy over absolute monarchy. To justify this change in government, it was necessary to destroy the doctrine of "divine right." John Locke, following Newton's method of reasoning from nature, announced the theory of government by the consent of the governed and the principle of political equality. His efforts weakened the accepted belief in the "divine right of kings."

"Locke's writings provided the American colonists with the precise arguments needed for their revolution, less than a century later. As proof of this are the words of Samuel Adams that: "Mr. Locke has often been quoted in the present dispute between Britain and her colonies, and very much to our purpose. His reasoning is so forcible, that no one has even attempted to confute it." Substantial portions of the Declaration of Independence were composed of actual phrases found in Locke's "True End of Government."

"The influence of Locke carried over to the Continent and was reflected in the writings of Jean Jacques Rousseau and other eighteenth century French philosophers. The necessity for translation limited the reading of Rousseau's essays in America, but his forceful and radical statements influenced the thoughts of many of the colonists.

"While the theory of equality was developing throughout the world, natural forces of progress were bringing about, in reality, more equal conditions among men. Tools for cultivation and production were improved. Learning and knowledge were disseminated more widely. Better roads and means of communication brought the people closer together and tended to erase prejudice. Explorations in new lands and in the realms of science added to the world's resources. All this progress made for equality.

"A famous commentator, reviewing history over a period of seven hundred years, wrote: "The Crusades and the wars of the English decimated the nobles and divided their possessions; the erection of communes introduced an element of democratic liberty into the bosom of feudal monarchy; the invention of firearms equalized the serf and the noble on the field of battle; printing opened the same resources to the minds of all classes; the post was organized so as to bring the same information to the door of the poor man's cottage, and to the gate of the palace; and Protestantism proclaimed that all men are alike able to find the road to heaven. The discovery of America offered a thousand new paths to fortune, and placed riches and power within the reach of the adventurous and obscure."

"Conditions in the world were gradually improving, but much of the way was paved with bloodshed and destruction, for man learned only by bitter experience. In all these eras, the greatest of man's accomplishments was the discovery of the natural law of human equality. This principle, although it is only intangible thought, marked the beginning of civilization. We need only accept its truth, realize its inevitable force and apply its simple principle to the laws and institutions of society in order to prevent human conflict and add to our happiness.

"The foundation of our empire was not laid in the gloomy age of ignorance and superstition; but at an epocha when the rights of mankind were better understood and more clearly defined than at any former period."

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

"The struggle for equality was carried over to a new battlefield, a new continent, America. Divine providence had saved half the earth for man to start anew, freed from the cumulation of his errors and self-erected inequalities. Here a condition of natural equality provided an opportunity for man to apply the knowledge he had gained through civilization, without heeding the precedents which, in the civilized world everywhere, dragged upon the coat-tails of his progress.

"The discovery of America is claimed by nearly every nation that ever sailed a ship, but it was the beginning of the sixteenth century before the attention of the civilized world was properly focused upon it. The voyages of Columbus began a march of explorations that prepared the way for the colonists to follow.

"The story of the colonization of America is a fitting prologue to the telling of its purpose. Both natures of man invited him to the new world. The quest for gold appealed to his lower instincts. Many early attempts at colonization owe their beginning to the incentive of greed. The history of these efforts is typical of the philosophy they represented. Disappointment, disagreements, untold hardships, cruelties and murder finally led to failure.

"The better nature of man summoned him to America in search of treasures richer than gold; his quest was for freedom, liberty and equality of rights. At the beginning, the motive was freedom from religious persecution; later, escape from political tyranny; and finally, opportunity for economic equality. The colonies established for these purposes gained firmer footholds. Hard ship, sickness and death took their toll, but the persistent devotion to these objectives gained ultimate success and account for a new people, known as Americans.

"The colonists immediately demonstrated that monarchy, though not forgotten, had been left behind, and that America was headed for democracy. The colony at Jamestown, Virginia, the first to take root in this country, adopted a representative form of assembly as early as 1619. Before the Pilgrims reached the shores of New England, they established a government upon "the consent of the governed." The Mayflower Compact in 1620, thus introduced a basic principle of political equality, and designated the proper source and authority of government. In 1638 this fundamental principle of democracy was voiced in the sermons of Thomas Hooker, a minister in Connecticut. The Fundamental Orders of Connecticut, adopted the following year, was the first of a series of written constitutions framed by the people for the people.

"Those who sought religious freedom had been compelled to appeal to the laws of nature, as against the laws of England. The man-made edicts required obedience to the dictates of the state church, rather than to one's own conscience. In America the process was reversed, natural forces predominated. The mind was freed from conventional adherence to man-written scriptures and encouraged to reason from the work of the Creator. As a result, the writings of these early American religious leaders represented a curious mixture of quotations from the gospel and philosophy from nature. Frequently, the principles used to justify religious freedom applied equally to the political field, and played a prominent part in political thought just prior to the revolution.

"The desire of the early colonists for religious freedom was not entirely unselfish. Though they clamored for equality, they were frequently unwilling to accord an equal right to others. The banishment of Roger Williams, from the colony of Massachusetts, was an example of this intolerance. However, the principle of equality, intermingled with the Scriptures, was the basic premise of their argument.

"The eighteenth century found Europe still engaged in violent conflict for power. The common people, crushed between the imperialistic greed of the governing classes of their nations, sought haven in America. Left alone to the task of clearing the wilderness, the colonists had succeeded, without the aid of their parent government, and were producing beyond their immediate needs. America offered opportunity to immigration and a source of profit to the trade of the world.

"The British Government, then in control of wealthy property owners, was being used as an instrument to further their exploitations. The growing prosperity of the colonies tempted their greed. By restricting colonial trade to their merchants alone, the wealth of America could be systematically drained into their coffers. The war with France offered a patriotic excuse for acts of Parliament calculated to gain those ends. When, by the French and Indian Wars, the quarrel was transported to America, it not only excused restrictions on trade, but taxation for supporting troops, and incidentally helped to defray the burden of debt created by England's own wars in Europe.

"Historians, stating the causes of our Revolution, have stressed with too much emphasis the disagreement over taxation. It is true that greed for the hard earned wealth of the colonies motivated British aristocracy, but that which angered the American colonists was the affront to their ideals and beliefs. "It was the principle, of which the tax made but a part, and the quantity still less, that formed the ground on which America resisted."

"The mutual struggle of the colonists had taught them the real relationship of man to man. The ruggedness of America had inculcated in them a belief in natural equality. Their democratic institution of the town meeting encouraged thought, study, and discussion of the rights of man, and his relation to society and government. "Here the value of quality of liberty, the nature of government, and the dignity of man, were known and understood, and the attachment of the Americans to these principles produced the Revolution, as a natural and almost unavoidable consequence."

"The first serious difference between England and the colonies was a question of liberty, not taxation. John Adams said he considered, "the argument concerning Writs of Assistance in the Superior Court . . . as the commencement of the controversy between Great Britain and America." He was referring to the argument of James Otis, in 1761, to the effect that the practice of issuing general search warrants constituted an infringement of liberty. Although Otis lost this argument, he continued his fight as a matter of principle. The following year Otis issued a pamphlet in which he named "equality" as the philosophic basis for the controversy which had now begun. Otis wrote, "1. God made all men naturally equal. 2. The ideas of earthly superiority, pre-eminence and grandeur, are educational, at least acquired, not innate. 3. Kings were (and plantation governors should be) made for the good of the people, and not the people for them."

"Not many years later, John Adams wrote that all the fundamental thoughts of our American philosophy were to be found in this pamphlet by James Otis; "How many volumes are concentrated in this little fugitive pamphlet, the production of a few hurried hours, . . . Look over the Declaration of Rights and Wrongs, issued by Congress in 1774. Look into the Declaration of Independence in 1776, . . . and to cap the climax, look into Mr. Thomas Paine's Common Sense, Crisis, and Rights of Man; what can you find that is not to be found in solid substance in this vindication of the House of Representatives."

"The discussion with England was revived with each new Act of Parliament directed against the colonies. Most of this legislation was taxation, as in the case of the Stamp Act, 1765. But the opposition was not a matter of dollars and cents. In the case of the tax on tea, the combined cost of tea and tax was less than the Englishman at home paid for his favorite beverage. The oratory of Patrick Henry was raised not against taxation, but against "taxation without representation." That which he resented was the infringement of human liberty.

"Both John and Samuel Adams viewed the actions of England as "a direct and formal design on foot to enslave all America . . . by the introduction of the canon and feudal law into America." Samuel Adams charged the royal governor of Massachusetts with a attempt to revive the feudal system which he declared was "contradictory to all principles that govern mankind."

"As the controversy progressed, the thoughts of the colonists approached more closely to a correct understanding of the real issue. There was no longer any question of taxation, nor even of the feudal system, but a question of equality of human rights. As early as 1770, James Wilson, a brilliant lawyer with a sound knowledge of the underlying principles of government, wrote a pamphlet, which he withheld from publication until 1774. In this he embodied most of the philosophic principles which Jefferson later set forth in the Declaration of Independence. The phrasing of one paragraph closely resembles the phrasing of the most important paragraph of the Declaration. Wilson wrote, "All men are, by nature, equal and free; no one has a right to any authority over another without his consent: all lawful government is founded on the consent of those who are subject to it: such consent was given with a view to ensure and to increase the happiness of the governed, above what they could enjoy in an independent and unconnected state of nature. The consequence is, that the happiness of the society is the first law of every government."

"In 1774, the Continental Congress first assembled to debate the situation. Richard H. Lee, who two years later was to move for Independence, said, "I can't see why we should not lay our rights upon the broadest bottom, the ground of nature. Our ancestors found here no government. . . . Life and liberty, which is necessary for the security of life, cannot be given up when we enter into society." The Declaration of Grievances and Rights, adopted by Congress, followed this suggestion and began, in the same philosophic manner, "That the inhabitants of the English Colonies in North America, by the immutable laws of nature . . . have the following rights: That they are entitled to life, liberty and property and they have never ceded to any sovereign power whatever a right to dispose of either without their consent."

"By 1775, the disagreement had passed beyond the stage of debate. The King of England, like all believers in the doctrine of inequality, resorted to force. Though compelled to take up arms in self defense, the American colonists continued their appeal to reason, with the declaration "that Government was instituted to promote the Welfare of Mankind, and ought to be administered for the Attainment of that End."

"Throughout the colonial revolt the objective was reconciliation with representation, not separation. Only the most radical entertained the thought of independence, and few ever dared to voice it. The relationship between the American colonies and Great Britain had been strained from the termination of the French and Indian Wars, but none predicted the ultimate separation. Christopher Godsen is said to have made the suggestion as early as 1764. James Otis hinted at the possibility, in his writings about the same time. Both Samuel and John Adams were suspected of being sympathetic to the idea. Samuel Adams made one of the first threats of independence in an essay, "The Sons of Liberty," published in 1769. Patrick Henry mentioned independence in a public address in 1773, but Benjamin Franklin, in 1774 said, "I have never heard in any conversation of any person drunk or sober the least expression of a wish for separation from England." George Washington, about to take command of the colonial military forces said, relative to independence, "I am well satisfied that no such thing is desired by any thinking man in all North America."

"When delegates from the colonies met in Philadelphia, at the Continental Congress, there was no discussion of independence, but quite the reverse; allegiance was pledged to the King of England. Years later John Adams wrote; "In the Congress of 1774, there was not one member, except Patrick Henry, who appeared to me sensible of the precipice, or rather the pinnacle on which we stood, and had candor and courage enough to acknowledge it."

"By 1775 the colonies were in a state of open rebellion, but not revolution. The massacre at Lexington, like all demonstrations of force, reacted against the British and gained sympathy for the cause of independence. In May, a group of citizens of Mecklenburg County, North Carolina, passed resolutions, which were said to have been followed by a Declaration of Independence. But John Adams and Jefferson, who were living when this claim was made, in 1819, denied ever having heard of any Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, and expressed doubt as to its legitimacy."

"By the summer of 1775, the colonies were engaged in open hostilities with the British troops. "The Declaration on Taking Arms," adopted by Congress, July 6, 1775, also contained a declaration of allegiance to the King. The wise old philosopher, Benjamin Franklin, was by that time speaking of his English friends as "enemies," and recognized reconciliation was "hopeless." By December he was endeavoring to sound out the courts of Continental Europe to ascertain if assistance could be obtained for America in its struggle for Independence.

"Jefferson was still loyal, but was chafing under the insults of England. He wrote to a friend; "I am one of those, who, rather than submit to the rights of legislation for us, assumed by the British Parliament, and which late experience has shown they will so cruelly exercise, would lend my hand to sink the whole island in the ocean."

"The cause of independence was still unpopular as late as the fall of 1775, when the assemblies of the various colonies convened. Most of them had instructed their representatives in Congress to reject any proposition of independence. The spark destined to touch off the revolution was yet to gleam.

"In April of 1774, a certain collector of revenue in the British Excise Department was discharged from his job. This every day occurrence dislodged a force destined to span the Atlantic and weld the scattered feeling of discontent into a spirit of righteous revolution. The man discharged was Thomas Paine. A noted political writer later commented upon this trivial incident as follows: "A little thing sometimes produces a great effect; . . . insults, offered to Mr. Paine while he was in the Excise in England, was the real cause of the Revolution in America; for, though the nature of the cause of America was such as I have before described it; though the principles were firm in the minds of the people of that country; still, it was Mr. Paine, and Paine alone who brought those principles into action."

"Paine arrived in America, November 30, 1774. He carried an introduction from Benjamin Franklin which described him as "an ingenious worthy young man." John Adams tells of Paine's arrival as follows: "In the course of this winter appeared a phenomenon in Philadelphia, a disastrous meteor I mean Thomas Paine." From that moment, events in the colonies moved more rapidly. "I thought it very hard," wrote Paine to Franklin sometime later, "to have the country set on fire about my ears almost the moment I got into it." But this was hardly a coincidence, for Thomas Paine, himself, was the torch that set off the conflagration. Up to that time Paine had written little and published nothing. He later admitted, "It was the cause of America which made me an author."

"In October 1775, Paine wrote an article in which he recounted the wrongs and horrors of slavery, and added: "When I reflect on these, I hesitate not for a moment to believe that the Almighty will finally separate America from Britain. Call it independence or what you will, if it is the cause of God and Humanity it will go on." Jefferson's conversion to independence was completed about this time. He then wrote: "We want neither inducement nor power, to declare and assert a separation. It is will alone which is wanting, and that is growing apace under the fostering hand of our King."

"Paine was about to supply this will, for he was busy preparing his famous pamphlet, "Common Sense." John Adams said, "Dr. Rush put him upon writing on the subject . . . and gave him his title of Common Sense." Another writer said, "There is good reason to believe that Dr. Franklin had no inconsiderable share at least in furnishing material for this work." Finally it was finished, but according to Benjamin Rush, it was difficult to secure "a printer who had boldness enough to publish it."

"Common Sense" made its appearance in Philadelphia, on January 10, 1776. Immediately the country was swept by its sentiments. Demands poured in from all parts of the colonies for copies. In a short time more than five hundred thousand pamphlets had been sold. No publication, up to that time, had ever reached this proportion. It was read by nearly every literate person throughout the sparsely settled colonies.

"Paine addressed his "acute human reasoning" to the intelligence of "the inhabitants of America." He delved into the origin of government, and named the security and happiness of the governed as the end for which it was designed. His premise was that men were "originally equal in the order of creation," hence he questioned the validity of monarchy and hereditary succession. "The present state of American affairs," Paine said, was "not the concern of a day, a year or an age; posterity are virtually involved in the contest, and will be more or less affected even to the end of time." Stating it was "time to part," Paine called for a Declaration of Independence. He followed this with a detailed suggestion of a form of representative government, and pointed to the ability of America to sustain its position against the world. He ended with an appeal for the rights of mankind, and free and independent states of America.

"The style as well as the subject matter of this little pamphlet won immediate recognition. Jefferson appraised Paine's skill in these words, "No writer has exceeded Paine in ease and familiarity of style, in perspicuity of expression, happiness of elucidation, and in simple and unassuming language. In this he may be compared with Dr. Franklin; and indeed his "Common Sense" was, for a while, believed to have been written by Dr. Franklin, and published under the borrowed name of Paine, who had come over with him from England."

"It was "Common Sense" that swung the tide of public sentiment to independence. George Washington can be named among its converts to this cause. There is no known statement or writing of Washington, either public or confidential, in favor of Independence prior to a letter written by him a few weeks after this publication, when he wrote: "A few more of such flaming arguments as were exhibited at Falmouth and Norfolk, added to the sound doctrine and unanswerable reasoning contained in the pamphlet "Common Sense," will not leave numbers at a loss to decide upon the propriety of a separation."

"This work alone earned for Paine a most prominent place in America's history, which he never received. John Adams wrote, "History is to ascribe to Paine the Revolution." Samuel Adams, in a letter to Paine, later wrote, "I have frequently with pleasure reflected on your services to my native and your adopted country. Your

"Common Sense," and your "Crisis," unquestionably awakened the public mind, and led the people loudly to call for a declaration of our national independence. I therefore esteemed you as a warm friend to the liberty and lasting welfare of the human race." Madison spoke of Paine as "the man, whose writings have so much contributed to enforce and foster the spirit of independence in the people of America." Lafayette said, "To me America without Thomas Paine is unthinkable." A contemporary historian said, "that the great American cause owed as much to the pen of Paine as the sword of Washington."

"Common Sense" had drawn the lines clearly. It was no longer a petty quarrel over taxes, nor even a dispute over the division of economic spoils. The writing of Paine "raised the struggle above the paltriness of a rebellion against taxation to a great human movement—a war for an ideal" The question became one of vital principle, between the false doctrine of "Divine Right" of a few and the true philosophy of the equal rights of all. "The cause of America," as Paine correctly stated, was "the course of all mankind."

Mr. JASPAN. Mr. President, may I yield the floor to Senator Dent for a few minutes? Some of my colleagues want to talk to me.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There being no objection, leave is granted.

Mr. DENT. I will continue, Mr. President, from the point where my colleague from Philadelphia left off, page 38:

"Great movements of democracy grow slowly at the start. Like smoldering fire they remain hidden a long time; merely glowing, but spreading all the while. Finally some tiny spark, more daring than the rest, breaks through its confines and bursts into flame. It springs into the air, and with vast strides leaps from place to place, rapidly accelerating its pace. Once democracy makes its way to the free air of open discussion, all is consumed in a brief moment by the general conflagration of its sound human sentiments.

"The first great conquest of democracy came to a climax in our revolution. But its principles had smoldered for centuries within the brains of the wisest men. The spark, more grave than the rest, which set it off was Thomas Paine. The burst of flame was his brilliant "Common Sense." The consuming fire of human sentiment was the American Declaration of Independence.

"Future movements of democracy will demonstrate these same traits. Both friends and foes of democracy can learn from a study of these characteristics. Its friends will learn not to be disheartened at the slow but steady beginning. Its enemies, who stand above the rest on a mountain of inequalities, will know from the first rumblings that their perch is a volcano and be ready to run for their lives.

"From the issuance of Paine's pamphlet, the colonies were seething with revolution. If the private conversations of that period could be broadcast for the ears of the present generation, we would learn much to our advantage. We would hear the true meaning of American principles and know America's purpose.

"No doubt at that time, Jefferson was reading deeply into the philosophy of the rights of man. James Wilson, with his trained legal mind, was considering the fundamentals of government. It is probable that Dr. Franklin introduced his friend Thomas Paine to Thomas Jefferson and said, "You two should get together, for you are of the same mind." We know that John Adams did not fully agree with Paine's "Common Sense," and replied with his "Thoughts on Government"; that he sought a conversation with Paine, and that their only point of agreement was the necessity for independence.

"Up to the beginning of the year 1776, there had been no official action in Congress looking forward to independence. The first indication of this move appeared in a report of a committee to prepare an "Address to the Inhabitants of the Colonies," reported in Congress on February the 13th. The draft was in the handwriting of James Wilson, and displayed the characteristic depth of his knowledge of government. It said, "That all Power was originally in the People—that all the Powers of Government are derived from them—that all Power, which they have not disposed of still continues theirs—are Maxims of the English Constitutions, which, we presume, will not be disputed."

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I now yield to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Jaspán.

Mr. JASPAN. Mr. President, I have been given to understand by the Chairman of the Republican Caucus that they desire to recess for about an hour or so in view of dinner arrangements previously made. I, however, am not yielding the floor. That is the understanding with me—I do not know whether he has taken it up with the others.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair has heard no motion that the Senate recess. The gentleman from Philadelphia will proceed.

Mr. JASPAN. All right, Sir, I will proceed.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I suggest that during the conference—apparently the gentleman wish to indulge in a conference, and I will hold the floor, with permission of the Chair, until the gentleman from Philadelphia finishes his conference.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Westmoreland has the floor; he may proceed.

Mr. DENT. Is it possible under the rules, Mr. President, to be at ease for a moment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It is possible that the Senate be at ease.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I ask that we be at ease for just one moment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Jaspán.

Mr. JASPAN. Mr. President and gentlemen of the Senate, in view of requests made by members of both sides who have made previous arrangements, and I do not want to stand in the way of any engagements they have made I understand arrangements have been made for dinners, guests are going to be there and I think decency dictates that I call off any further discussion on these bills. I think that I have gained my point and I have brought out that the Democratic party is absolutely opposed to the principles of these bills and gone on record as such and we hope, if by chance the Legislature does vote for them, that the Governor will veto them, because I consider them punitive measures and Governor Duff has gone on record as saying that they are punitive measures.

Again I repeat that out of respect for the members on both sides who have made previous engagements I do not desire to debate the question any further.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, the attempt of a reactionary big business and its senatorial collaborators to sell the idea of government domination and control as a means to industrial peace is an insult to the intelligence of the American worker.

According to Republican administration leaders and the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association, the present anti-labor program embodied in these Republican anti-labor bills is the result of a mandate given to the Republican party in the election last November, to crack down on unions and to place the entire organized labor movement in a straightjacket of punitive and restrictive legislation. Further, we are told by the official Republican Administration leaders that the prohibitions and restrictions on trade unions in these bills are in complete harmony with the labor policy of the Republican party.

These premises are completely false. Let us look at this so-called mandate from the people. What evidence is there that the Republican party, which was successful in gaining control of both the House of Representatives and the Senate last November, campaigned on the basis that it was going to eliminate the closed shop; outlaw union welfare funds; or bring back government by injunction? What evidence is there that the Republican party went to the people with the promise to undermine and weaken trade unions by every legislative device that the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association could conceive?

Did any responsible representative of the Republican party inform the voters prior to last November's election that the services of lawyers representing the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association would be utilized, should they be utilized, to write anti-labor laws for the Republican administration?

Did Senator Heyburn, or any other responsible spokesman for the Republican party, tell the voters that the Republican leadership in the Senate would write anti-labor laws along lines suggested by employers?

Senator Heyburn has admitted that his bill contained three-quarters of the matters strenuously pressed upon him by the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce.

But I can not recall the American voter being told prior to last November's election that employers were going to be allowed to dictate legislation to control the lives of workers. If there was a mandate to enact legislation such as that proposed by the Republican program, it must have been a secret mandate. I am sure the great mass of the voters who went to the polls last election knew nothing of such mandate.

There is evidence that the vote last year of the American electorate was a protest against the very type of regimentation and control which the anti-labor bills now seek to impose on labor. It was a protest against the failure of the administration and Congress to provide adequate housing so vitally needed by millions of Americans. It was a protest against the complete inability of Congress and the administration to do anything when the country's meat producers went on strike against the American people. It was above all a protest against the higher and ever higher prices for the necessities of life that were daily reducing the real wages of those who work for wages.

Mr. Carroll Reece, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, made the following statement on a nation-wide radio broadcast ten days before election—and I quote:

"The Republican party stands unalterably for the American enterprise system of free labor and free management—the system which has made the American standard of living the highest in the world."

Well, there are no indications from this statement, nor from anything else that happened during the campaign, that the Republican party sought or expected a mandate to enslave labor as Mr. Heyburn and Mr. Kephart now propose.

Now, let me take up the second contention—the contention of Republican spokesmen in this Senate that the anti-labor program represents the official policy of the Republican party.

I believe that this is of tremendous importance. Everyone who works for a living should understand the implication of this effort to convince the American people that the Republican administration in Harrisburg are following party policy when they attempt to place on the statute books laws which would weaken and eventually destroy trade unions in this state. This contention is inherent in the position taken by Senator Berger, who is Chairman of the Republican dominated Labor Industrial Committee in the Senate.

The question naturally arises—what is the labor policy of the Republican party? Is it the policy of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association and the Philadelphia Chambers of Commerce, or is it the policy laid down by the delegates attending the last National Republican Party convention in 1944?

At that time, when they selected their candidates for president and vice-president of the United States, the delegates adopted a platform containing the following principles on labor. I am now quoting from the Republican Platform of 1944:

"The Republican party is the historical champion of free labor. Under Republican administrations American manufacturing developed, and American workers attained the most progressive standards of living of any workers in the world. Now the nation owes these workers a debt of gratitude for their magnificent productive effort in support of the war."

The platform went on to declare that "The Republican party accepts the purposes of the National Labor Relations Act" and promised a fair and just administration of that basic law which these anti-labor bills now proposes to repeal.

Remember, this is from the official platform of the Republican party, a platform never since changed, a platform on which it sought the support of the American people in the last presidential election.

Governor Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican candidate for the presidency selected at that convention, developed the party's policy toward labor in the ensuing campaign.

In his speech at Seattle, Washington, Governor Dewey, who was then and still is the titular head of the party, said:

"The National Labor Relations Act is a good and necessary law. It acknowledges the trend of our times and will continue to be the law of the land."

In January of 1945, addressing the New York State Legislature, Governor Dewey stated:

"The hard won rights of labor which are a cornerstone of economic freedom, must be preserved and strengthened as I have indicated."

On January 1st of this year, again addressing the Legislature, Governor Dewey made this statement in regard to maintaining constitutional liberty for all, and again I quote:

"When we chip away at the rights of a minority, we chip away at the rights of all of us. When we seek to reach an end by limiting the freedom of one group we undermine the freedom of every group. And it makes no difference whether that group be religious or racial, agricultural or business, factory workers or doctors. When, to cure one evil, we establish another, we are bringing ourselves ever closer to the abyss."

One week later, on January 8, 1947—just four months ago—Governor Dewey set forth the labor policy of his administration in the following words:

"The labor policy of the state rests on a maximum of voluntary mediation and a minimum of government compulsion. This policy has promoted free collective bargaining. It has been widely successful in preventing strikes and violence. We propose to continue this policy."

So, even a casual examination of the record gives the lie to any contention made that the Republican administration anti-labor bills and the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association program of repression and restriction against labor represents the official policy of the Republican party.

What it does represent, however, is quite clear. It represents practically word for word the official position of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association, as proclaimed in the leading newspapers of the country through the medium of paid advertisements. But the question naturally arises, in view of the actions of the official Republican spokesmen in this Senate: has the Republican party one policy on labor which it presents to the American people when it is seeking votes, and another policy after it has been successful in taking control of the legislative branches of the government in Harrisburg?

These spokesmen for the Republican party in Harrisburg must have a very low estimate of the intelligence of American workers. In addition, they must be convinced that the wageearners of the nation have very short memories. Surely, they must know that the workers of America, at least all of them who are over thirty years of age, remember quite vividly the late twenties and early thirties. If the Republican state administration and the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association desire to forget those days, I can assure them that the workers do not forget. Those were the boom days. Profits, profits and ever higher profits—new millionaires every day. Those were the days of Collidge and Hoover prosperity, but, unfortunately, they were the days of bust as well as boom.

I am sure that there are still people in America who remember 1932. After twelve years of Republican control of Congress and of the executive branch of our government, depression hung heavy over the nation. Deflation had forced prices and wages down; workers in the mass production industries were completely unorganized and badly underpaid. Banks collapsing daily; thirteen million people unemployed; apple sellers at every corner; thousands upon thousands of veterans homeless; breadlines the order of the day. I am sure that labor remembers those days. We remember the end of an era of government by big business and big politics and the only comfort we could get from the architects of our ruin was the assurance that prosperity was just around the corner.

Labor in those days was fighting to keep children in school until they were at least fourteen years of age so that they would not be competing for the jobs held by their fathers. We were fighting then for compensation for those who were injured and the dependents of those who were killed in industry. We were fighting then for a system of minimum wages and maximum hours. We were fighting then for unemployment insurance and for old age pensions for those who had grown old in the service of industry. Did we receive any aid or cooperation in these efforts from the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association and the political reactionaries who had done their bidding for twelve years prior to 1932? No. On the contrary the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association then, as now, consistently opposed every effort to better the lot of the nation's wage earners.

It seems that the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association and its friends in the General Assembly would like to bring back the good old days of boom and bust. In order to do so, they must first destroy and eliminate the hard won gains which organized labor has made over the years. Labor must be weakened. Labor must be more amenable. Labor must be responsive to its masters and present less interference to the efforts of big business to get more and more cream out of things we produce. Well, labor is not going to be fooled by the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association. Labor is not going to lie down and allow them to take over again. Labor will fight with every legitimate weapon at its command to preserve the system which has brought the standard of American life to the high point where it is today.

Mr. TARR. Mr. President, this Bill No. 826, is a negative bill in that it lowers the status of Pennsylvania's teachers to the level of the indentured servants first brought to this country in the early eighteen hundreds to teach pauper children, pauperized through no fault of their own.

The Senate proposes, with this bill, to shackle those who have always been proud of their academic freedom—freedom to speak the truth and encourage, unafraid, the search for truth. Is it the Senate's thought that we will now control thought in the class-room. It so, certainly many thousands died in the late war for an alien philosophy to which I as an American can not subscribe.

At the dawn of history, the first great teacher, a Nazarene, stood on trial in the same fashion as these teachers today, not judged by an impartial judge or jury, but one biased, and told what the decision would be. When that Judge, Pontius Pilate, passed sentence on that teacher, he called for a basin of water to cleanse his hands as a gesture of feigned innocence.

I would advise the members of this Senate voting on this measure to call for the water basin for the same purpose.

BILLS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 230, as follows:

An Act to further amend the act approved the first day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1168 No. 294) entitled "An act to protect the right of employes to organize and bargain collectively creating the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board officers of the State government and courts providing for the right of employes to organize and bargain collectively declaring certain labor practices by employers to be unfair further providing that representatives of a majority of the employes be the exclusive representatives of all the employes authorizing the board to conduct hearings and elections and certify as to representatives of employes for purposes of collective bargaining empowering the board to prevent any person from engaging in an unfair labor practice and providing a procedure for such cases including the issuance of a complaint the conducting of a hearing and the making of an order empowering the board to petition a court of common pleas for the enforcement of its order and providing a procedure for such cases providing for the review of an order of the board by a court of common pleas on petition of any person aggrieved by such order and establishing a procedure for such cases providing for an appeal from the common pleas court to the Supreme Court providing the board with investigatory powers including the power to issue subpoenas and the compelling of obedience to them through application to the proper court providing for service of papers and process of the board prescribing certain penalties" making it an unfair labor practice for labor organizations to deny membership to certain person engaged or willing to engage in the trade or industry in which such organization is active to discriminate against members employment to use membership qualifications as a means of limiting the number of employes available in the labor market to limit the operation or conduct of employment or placement services or to interfere with the employer's right to hire persons of his own choosing.

Whereas Many veterans have returned home from World War II with a knowledge of new skills and trades and others of our people have acquired skills and trades at public and private educational institutions and others without any special knowledge desire to acquire a skill in a trade and

Whereas All of these and perhaps others not enumerated above desire to work and are entitled to an opportunity to do so and to procure gainful employment in a trade or industry and

Whereas They are frequently prevented by closed shop agreements made by labor organizations with employers under which employers cannot hire them and by practices of labor organizations which deny them membership in such organizations and

Whereas Such practices include excessive initiation fees experience qualifications and arbitrary limitations on membership so as to increase the amount of work available for members and they are opposed to the fundamental rights set forth our Constitution that "All men are born equally free independent and have certain inherent and indefeasible rights among which are those of enjoying and defending life and liberty of acquiring possessing and proving property and reputation and of pursuing their own happiness"

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows:

Section 1 Section Five of the act approved the first of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1168 No. 294) entitled "An act to protect the right of employees to organize and bargain collectively create the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board officers of the State Government and parts providing for the right of employees to organize and bargain collectively declaring certain labor practices by employers to be unfair further providing that representatives of a majority of the employees be the exclusive representatives of all the employees authorizing the board to conduct hearings and elections and certify as to representatives of employees for purposes of collective bargaining empowering the board to prevent any person from engaging in any unfair labor practice and providing a procedure for such cases including the issuance of a subpoena the conducting of a hearing and the making of an order empowering the board to petition a court of common pleas for the enforcement of its order and providing a procedure for such cases providing for the review of an order of the board by a court of common pleas petition of any person aggrieved by such order and publishing a procedure for such cases providing for an appeal from the common pleas court to the Supreme Court providing the board with investigatory powers including power to issue subpoenas and the compelling of obedience to them through application to the proper court providing for service of papers and process of the board precluding certain penalties."

Section 5 Rights of Employees (a) Employees shall have the right to self-organization to form join or assist labor organizations to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing and to engage in concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid or protection

(b) Membership in any labor organization having a closed shop agreement in the business or industry in which it is the bargaining agent or in the trade or craft in which it is the bargaining agent shall be open to any person willing and qualified by experience or training to engage or engaging in the trade craft business or industry in which such closed shop agreement exists and ready and willing to comply with reasonable regulations uniformly required as a condition of acquiring or retaining membership

Section 2 Subsection (2) of section six of said act as amended by the act approved the ninth day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine (P. L. 293) is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof five new clauses as follows

Section 6 Unfair Labor Practices

(1) It shall be an unfair labor practice for a labor organization of any officer or officers of a labor organization or any agent or agents of a labor organization or anyone acting in the interest of a labor organization or for an employee or for employees acting in concert

(2) In the case of a labor organization having a closed shop agreement to deny membership to any person or to refuse the right to membership of any person by any constitutional or by-law prescription regulation practice or agreement among its members or otherwise Provided That such person or applicant for membership is willing in or is in good faith willing and qualified by experience or training to engage in the trade craft business or industry in which such closed shop agreement exists and is ready and willing to comply with reasonable regulations uniformly required as a condition of acquiring or retaining membership

(e) To limit or restrain employment or the number of skilled specialized apprentice or general employees available for employment by denying membership in such labor organization

(f) To impose any experience qualification requirements as a condition to membership other than reasonable apprenticeship

(g) To impose an initiation fee of more than twenty-five dollars ($25) as a condition to membership

(h) To discriminate against any member in connection with current or future employment

(i) To operate or conduct "hiring halls" or other employment or placement services in such manner as to coerce intimidate or direct employers to employ persons recommended or approved by such labor organizations or to otherwise interfere with the employer's right to employ persons of his own choosing

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

(d) Nothing contained herein shall prohibit an arbitrator or an arbitration tribunal to fix a date at which retroactivity of wages shall be set but in no case shall such date be retroactive beyond the date that formal complaint is filed with the employer except as above provided

Section 9 Procedure for Determination of Jurisdictional Controversies Whenever two (2) or more labor organizations adversely claim for themselves or their members jurisdiction over certain classifications of work to be done for any employer or in any industry or over the persons engaged in or performing such work and such jurisdictional interference or dispute is made the ground for picketing an employer or declaring a strike or boycott against him the Labor Conciliator through notification from either the labor organizations or the employer concerned shall hear and determine the jurisdictional controversy. If the labor organizations involved in the controversy have an agreement between themselves defining their respective jurisdictions or if they are affiliated with the same labor federation or organization which has by charters granted to the contender organizations limited their jurisdiction the Labor Conciliator (or his duly appointed deputy) shall determine the controversy in accordance with the proper construction of the agreement or of the provisions of the charters of the contending organizations. If the labor organizations involved in the controversy so desire they may submit the controversy to a tribunal of the federation or labor organization which has granted their charters or to arbitration before a tribunal selected by themselves provided the controversy is so submitted prior to intervention by the Labor Conciliator to act in the controversy and any strike picketing or boycott is discontinued after such submission.

Section 10 Financial Responsibility of Labor Organizations. In the event of a judgment issuing from a court of competent jurisdiction as a result of a violation of a collective bargaining contract the treasury of the association or labor organization shall be subject to levy and attachment.

Section 11 Suit for Breach of Contract. When any of the disputants in a labor dispute shall refuse to comply with the terms of their contract and there shall arise a definite breach of such contract or there has been an overt act to create such breach of contract the aggrieved party may institute appropriate action in a court of competent jurisdiction for relief under the rules and procedure of such court in the county of the local of the industry affected. In no case shall damages be awarded to a nature other than actual damages sustained. Any employer, employee or labor organization who has violated any of the provisions of this act with respect to any labor dispute shall not be entitled to any of the benefits of this act respecting such labor disputes and such employer, employee or labor organization shall not be entitled to maintain in any court of this State an action for breach of contract with respect to any matters growing out of that labor dispute until he shall in good faith offer to comply with the provisions of the act.

Section 12 Strikes and Lockouts. It shall be an unfair labor practice within the meaning of subsection three of section six of the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Act as amended for any labor organization or representative thereof or any employee or other person to institute or aid in the conduct of a strike or for an employer to institute a lockout unless the provisions of this act are fully complied with.

Section 13 Saving Clause Repeals. This act shall not be construed to effect or repeal the provisions of the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Act approved the first day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1168) as amended. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

Section 14 Severability Clause. If any clause, sentence, paragraph or part of this act or the application thereof to any person or circumstances shall for any reason be adjudged by a court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, such judgment shall not affect, impair or invalidate the remainder of this act and the application of such provision to other persons or circumstances but shall be confined in its operation to the clause, sentence, paragraph or part thereof directly involved in the controversy in which such judgment shall have been rendered and to the person or circumstances involved. It is hereby declared to be the legislative intent that this act would have been adopted had such invalid provisions not been included.

Section 15 Effective date. The provisions of this act shall become effective the first day of July one thousand nine hundred forty-seven.

And said bill having been read at length the third time and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 361, as follows:

An Act to further amend the act approved the first day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1168) entitled "An act to protect the right of employees to organize and bargain collectively creating the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board officers of the State government and courts providing for the right of employees to organize and bargain collectively declaring certain labor practices by employers to be unfair further providing that representatives of a majority of the employees to be exclusive representatives of all the employees authorizing the board to conduct hearings and elections and certify as to representatives of employees for purposes of collective bargaining empowering the board to prevent any person from engaging in any unfair labor practice and providing a procedure for such cases including the issuance of a complaint the conducting of a hearing and the making of an order empowering the board to petition a court of common pleas for the enforcement of its order and providing a procedure for such cases providing for the review of an order of the board by a court of common pleas on petition of any person aggrieved by such order and establishing a procedure for such cases providing for an appeal from the common pleas court to the Supreme Court providing the board with investigatory powers including the power to issue subpoenas and the compelling of obedience to them through application to the proper court providing for service of papers and process of the board prescribing certain penalties" further defining certain terms declaring certain additional labor practices of employers and employees to be unfair authorizing the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board to conduct strike votes and votes to return to work by secret ballot and further defining the scope of collective bargaining.

Section 1. Clause (d) of section three of the act approved the first day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1168) entitled "An act to protect the right of employees to organize and bargain collectively creating the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board officers of the State government and courts providing for the right of employees to organize and bargain collectively declaring certain labor practices by employers to be unfair further providing that representatives of a majority of the employees be the exclusive representatives of all the employees authorizing the board to conduct hearings and elections and certify as to representatives of employees for purposes of collective bargaining empowering the board to prevent any person from engaging in any unfair labor practice and providing a procedure for such cases including the issuance of a complaint the conducting of a hearing and the making of an order empowering the board to petition a court of common pleas for the enforcement of its order and providing a procedure for such cases providing for the review of an order of the board by a court of common pleas on petition of any person aggrieved by such order and establishing a procedure for such cases providing for an appeal from the common pleas court to the Supreme Court providing the board with investigatory powers including the power to issue subpoenas and the compelling of obedience to them through application to the proper court providing for service of papers and process of the board prescribing certain penalties" is hereby amended to read as follows

Section 3 Definitions When used in this act

(d) The term "employee" shall include any employee and shall not be limited to the employees of a particular employer unless the act explicitly states otherwise and shall include any individual whose work has ceased as a consequence of or in connection with any current labor dispute or because of any unfair labor practice and who has not obtained any other regular and substantially equivalent employment but shall not include (1) any individual employed as an agricultural laborer or in the domestic service of any person in the home of such person or any individual employed by his parent or spouse (2) any supervisory employees having the authority to hire promote advance demote or discharge other employees or to effectively recommend the same or confidential secretaries or employees engaged in personnel or industrial relations or other confidential activities whether supervisors or not

Section 2 Section three of said act is further amended by adding clause (k) as follows

Section 3 Definitions When used in this act

(k) The term "collective bargaining" shall apply to all matters made the subject of a labor dispute as above defined but shall not be construed to apply to or to include for any particular industry any matter which in that industry is not regularly and customarily included as a matter for collective bargaining nor shall it be construed to apply to or to include (1) the determination of services to be rendered to customers by the employer (2) the determination of the location of plants and facilities (3) the determination of the layout equipment processes techniques methods and materials to be used where health and safety requirements of the law are being complied with (4) the determination of financial policies accounting procedures prices for services and goods furnished to customers and customer relations (5) the determination of management organization including the selection of employees for promotion to supervisory and managerial positions (6) the selection of labor union officers and officials the determination of union by-laws and form of union organization or the conduct of the internal affairs of a labor organization (7) the establishment of quality standards and judgment of workmanship required (8) the maintenance of discipline and control and use of property and facilities including the scheduling of operations and number of shifts required (9) the determination of any other similar question which is the exclusive function of a labor union or of an employer

Section 3 Section six of said act as amended by the act approved the ninth day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty (P. L. 293) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 6 Unfair Labor Practices (1) It shall be an unfair labor practice for an employer

(a) To interfere with restrain or coerce employees in the exercise of the rights guaranteed in this act Provided however that nothing contained in this act shall be construed or interpreted to prohibit any expression of opinion by the employer or his representatives with respect to any matter which may be of interest to the employees or the general public provided that such expressions of opinion are not accompanied by acts of coercion intimidation discrimination or threats thereof

(b) To dominate or interfere with the formation or administration of any labor organization or contribute financial or other material support to it Provided That subject to rules and regulations made and published by the board pursuant to this act an employer shall not be prohibited from permitting employees to confer with him during working hours without loss of time or pay

(c) By discrimination in regard to hire or tenure of employment or any term or condition of employment to encourage or discourage membership in any labor organization Provided That nothing in this act or in any agreement approved or prescribed thereunder or in any other statute of this Commonwealth shall preclude an employer from making an agreement with a labor organization (not established maintained or assisted by any action defined in this act as an unfair labor practice) to require as a condition of employment membership therein if such labor organization is the representative of the employees as provided in section seven (a) of this act in the appropriate collective bargaining unit covered by such agreement when made and if such labor organization does not deny membership in its organization to a person or persons who are employees of the employer at the time of the making of such agreement provided such employee was not employed in violation of any previously existing agreement with said labor organization

(d) To discharge or otherwise discriminate against an employee because he has filed charges or given testimony under this act

* * * * *

(c) Whenever a question arises concerning the representation of employes the board may and upon request of a labor organization or an employer who has not committed an act herein defined as unfair labor practice or any group of employes in an appropriate unit representing by petition thirty per centum or more of the employes of that unit shall investigate such controversy and certify to the parties in writing the name or names of the representatives if any who have been designated or selected or in the event that the board shall find that the majority of the employes in a unit appropriate for the purposes of collective bargaining do not desire that a certain labor organization represent them for such purposes or have not designated or selected any representative or representatives for such purposes the board shall so certify to the parties in writing. In any such investigation the board shall provide for an appropriate hearing upon due notice either in conjunction with a proceeding under section eight or otherwise and may utilize any suitable method to ascertain such representatives except that if either party to the controversy so requests a secret ballot of employes shall be taken within twenty days after such request is filed. Any certification of representatives by the board shall be binding for a period of one year or for a longer period if the contract so provides even though the unit may have changed its labor organization membership. Any certification that the majority of such employes do not desire that a certain labor organization represent them for such purposes shall be binding for the period of one year from the date of such certification

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 801, as follows:

An Act to provide for the prompt peaceful and just settlement of labor disputes between public utility employers engaged in furnishing electric gas water and steam heat services to the public and their employes which cause or threaten to cause strikes lockouts slow-downs or similar work stoppages and consequent interruptions in the supply of a public utility service on which a community served is so dependent that severe hardship would be inflicted on a substantial number of persons by a cessation of such service providing procedures for the adjustment and settlement of such disputes declaring that the public policy of the Commonwealth requires the continuation without cessation of such public utility services and providing means including regulations affecting the rights powers and privileges of employes and employees for the enforcement of such public policy and providing penalties

Section 1 That it is hereby declared to be the public policy of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania that it is necessary and essential in the public interest to facilitate the prompt peaceful and just settlement of labor disputes between public utility employers engaged in furnishing electric gas water and steam heat services to the public and their employes which cause or threaten to cause an interruption in the supply of service necessary to the health safety and well being of the citizens of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and to that end to encourage the making and maintaining of agreements concerning wages hours and other conditions of employment through collective bargaining between public utility employers and their employes and to provide settlement procedures for labor disputes between public utility employers and their employes in cases where the collective bargaining process has reached an impasse and stalemate and as a result thereof the parties are unable to affect such settlement and which labor disputes are likely to cause interruption of the supply of a public utility service on which the community so affected is so dependent that severe hardship would be inflicted on a substantial number of persons by a cessation of such service

Section 2 As used in this act

(a) The term "public utility" or "public utility employer" means a private employer subject to the jurisdiction of the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission and engaged in the business of rendering electric gas water and steam heat services to the public in this Commonwealth

(b) The term "collective bargaining" means collective bargaining of or similar to the kind provided for by the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Act as interpreted by the decisions of the courts in this Commonwealth

Section 3 It shall be the duty of public utility employers and their employees engaged in operating public utility services to exert every reasonable effort to settle all labor disputes by engaging in collective bargaining in good faith and by entering into agreement and maintaining the same

Section 4 Within sixty days after this act becomes effective the Governor shall appoint a panel of arbitration consisting of twelve persons selected from a roster of recommendations received from a Labor-Management Advisory Committee appointed by him and having thereon equal representation from labor and management. The number and terms of the members of said Advisory Committee shall be fixed by the Governor. The Governor shall keep such panel revised at all times and available for services under the provisions of this act. Each person appointed on said panel shall be a resident of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania possessing in the judgment of the Governor the requisite experience and judgment to qualify him to capably and fairly deal with labor dispute problems. Appointments on the panel of arbitration shall be made without consideration of political affiliation. Each appointee shall take an oath or affirmation to perform honestly and to the best of his ability the duties of arbitrator. Any appointee may be removed by the Governor at any time or may resign his position at any time by notice in writing to the Governor. Any vacancy on the panel shall be filled by the Governor within thirty days after the vacancy occurs. Arbitrators shall receive no compensation except for their services as such as hereinafter provided in this act.

Section 5 If in any case of a labor dispute between a public utility employer and its employees the collective bargaining process reaches an impasse and stalemate with the result that the employer and employees are unable to effect a settlement then either party to the dispute or the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board may request the Governor in writing to appoint a mediator. Upon the filing of any such request the Governor shall consider the same and if in his opinion the collective bargaining process has failed and such dispute if not settled is likely to cause the interruption of the supply of a public utility service on which a community is so dependent that severe hardship would be inflicted on a substantial number of persons by a cessation of such service the Governor shall appoint a mediator from among the mediators employed by the Department of Labor and Industry to attempt to effect a settlement of such labor dispute.

Section 6 The mediator so named shall expeditiously meet with the disputing parties or their representatives and shall exert every reasonable effort to effect a prompt settlement of the labor dispute. After the appointment of a mediator by the Governor as provided for in Section 5 hereof there shall be no interruption of work and no strikes or slowdowns by employees and there shall be no lockout or other work stoppage by the employer until such time as all of the procedure provided for in this act has been exhausted or during the effective period of any order issued by a board of arbitration pursuant to the provisions of this act unless the Governor shall determine that failure to settle the dispute would not cause severe hardship to be inflicted on a substantial number of persons.

Section 7 If the mediator appointed by the Governor is satisfied that the labor dispute cannot be settled within thirty (30) days of his intervention the mediator shall within such time secure from and it shall be the duty of each of the parties to furnish to him a written statement of the best offer of each party for the settlement of the labor dispute. The mediator shall thereupon make a report to the Governor who shall require the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board forthwith to conduct an election among all of the employees in the bargaining unit involved in the labor dispute on the question "Shall the employer's offer be accepted?" Such election shall be by secret ballot. If a majority of those voting on the question shall vote in favor of accepting the offer then such offer shall become effective and if the same involves a dispute relating to wages hours or other conditions of employment that should be adjusted by collective bargaining the effective period shall date from the date of the appointment of the mediator by the Governor and shall continue effective for one year from that date. In default of a majority vote in favor of accepting the offer the vote shall constitute a vote in favor of arbitration.

A full statement of the offer as made by each party shall be furnished simultaneously to each eligible voter at such election and to the employer or his representative.

Section 8 If a majority of those voting at the election provided for in Section 7 of this act shall have voted against the offer as made and if the offer made to the employer is likewise rejected then it shall become the duty of the parties to the labor dispute to submit the labor dispute to an arbitrator or a board of arbitration as may be provided for in any agreement between the parties to the labor dispute or if no such arbitration is provided for the labor dispute continuing the Governor shall promptly appoint a Board of Arbitration composed of three members of the panel constituted in accordance with the provisions of this act to hear and determine such dispute. A new board shall be chosen by the Governor for each separate labor dispute but the same board may hear any number of issues or grievances which are involved in any one dispute between the public utility employer and its employees. Members of such board of arbitration shall be allowed reasonable compensation for their services and for their expenses in an amount to be fixed by the Governor. Such compensation and expenses including all stenographic and other expenses in connection with such hearings and the making of a complete record thereof shall be shared equally by the parties to the dispute.

Section 9 Each party to the labor dispute shall be entitled to designate one representative to sit with the Board of Arbitration appointed by the Governor but such representatives shall sit in an advisory capacity only and shall have no vote.

Section 10 The Board of Arbitration shall hold hearings and shall have power to administer oaths and compel the attention of witnesses by subpoena and the furnishing by the parties of such information as may be necessary to a determination of the issue or issues in dispute. Both parties to the dispute shall have the opportunity to be present at the hearing by representatives and by counsel and to present such oral and documentary evidence as the Board shall deem relevant to the issue or issues in controversy.

Section 11 It shall be the duty of the arbitrators to make written findings of fact and to render a written decision and order upon the issues presented in the case. In making its findings the Board shall consider only the issues raised by the offers furnished to the mediator as provided in Section 7 of this act and shall not include any matter which is not regularly and customarily included as a matter for collective bargaining in the particular business. The arbitrators shall consider only the evidence submitted by the parties to the dispute. When a valid contract is in effect defining the rights duties and liabilities of the parties with respect to any matter in dispute the Board shall have power only to determine the proper interpretation and application of the contract involved. Where there is no contract between the parties or where there is no contract but the parties have begun negotiations looking to a new contract or amendments of the existing contract and wage rates or other conditions of employment under the proposed new or amended contract are in dispute the Board shall consider all pertinent factors and shall establish rates of pay and conditions of employment comparable to prevalent wage rates paid and conditions of employment maintained for the same or similar work of workers exhibiting like or similar skills under the same or similar working conditions by public utility employers in the same business if any in the same labor market area and if none in an adjoining labor market area within the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and which in addition thereto bear a generally comparable relationship to wages rates paid and conditions of employment maintained by all other employers in the same labor market area.

The Board shall determine in each case from the evidence presented what constitutes in a particular case the same labor market area or an adjoining labor market area.

In establishing wage rates the Board shall take into consideration the over-all compensation presently received by the employees having regard not only to wages for time actually worked but also to wages for time not worked including vacations holidays and other excused time and all benefits received including insurance and pensions and the continuity and stability of employment enjoyed by the employees.

Section 12 The Board of Arbitration shall hand down its findings decision and order (hereinafter referred to as its order) within sixty (60) days after its appointment unless the Governor for good cause shall extend said period not to exceed an additional sixty (60) days. The order of a majority of the Board of Arbitration shall constitute the order of the Board. The Board shall furnish to the Governor and to each of the parties a copy of its order. A certified copy of its order together with the complete record in the case including the testimony shall be filed by the Board in the office of the prothonotary of the court of common pleas of the county wherein the dispute arose or in the office of the prothonotary of the court of common pleas of the county where the public utility employer maintains its principal office.

Unless such order is modified or vacated as provided in Section 13 of this act such order together with such agreements as the parties may themselves have reached shall become binding upon and shall control the relationship between the parties from the date such order is filed with the prothonotary of the court of common pleas and shall continue effective for one year from that date but such order may be changed by mutual consent of the parties. No order of the Board relative to wage and rates of pay shall be retroactive to a date before the date of termination of any contract which may have existed between the parties and if there was no such contract to a date before the date on which the Governor appointed a mediator in the labor dispute.

Section 13 Either party to the labor dispute may within fifteen days from the date such order is filed with the prothonotary of the Court petition the court of common pleas of the county in which the certified copy of the order was filed for review of such order on any of the following grounds that

- (a) The order was procured by corruption fraud or unlawful means
- (b) There was evident partiality or corruption on the part of the arbitrators or any of them
- (c) The arbitrators refused to postpone the hearing upon sufficient cause shown or did not give the parties a reasonable opportunity to be heard or refused to hear evidence pertinent and relevant to the controversy
- (d) The arbitrators exceeded their powers or so imperfectly executed them that a final and definite order upon the subject matter was not made
- (e) There was an evident material miscalculation of figures or an evident mistake in the description of any person thing or property referred to in the order
- (f) The arbitrators had ordered upon a matter not submitted to them unless it was a matter not affecting the merits of the decision
- (g) The order is imperfect in matter of form not affecting the merits of the controversy
- (h) The order is unreasonable in that it is not supported by the evidence

Upon the presentation of any such petition the Court shall issue a rule on the other party to the labor dispute returnable within such time as the court may fix. The Court shall hear the matter on the record as filed with the prothonotary unless the petition alleges ground for a vacation or modification of the order of the arbitrators on which no evidence or insufficient evidence was taken in which case the court may require such additional evidence before it as may be deemed necessary in order to enable it to enter a proper order. The Court may enter such order affirming or modifying or vacating the order of the Board of Arbitration in accordance with the grounds specified in this section as to it appears just and proper. The jurisdiction of the court of common pleas shall be exclusive and its order shall be final except that the same shall be subject to review by the appellate courts of this Commonwealth as hereinafter provided.

Within thirty (30) days after the entry of any final order of the court of common pleas any party to the proceedings aggrieved thereby may appeal therefrom on matters of the law to the Superior Court. Such appeal shall be taken and prosecuted in the same manner and with same effect as is provided in other cases of appeal to the Superior Court and the record so certified shall contain all that was before the court of common pleas.

Within thirty (30) days after the entry of any final order of the Superior Court any party to the proceedings aggrieved thereby may appeal therefrom to the Supreme Court if the jurisdiction of the Superior Court is in issue or if the case involves the construction or application of the Constitution of the United States or the Constitution of Pennsylvania. Such appeals shall be taken and prosecuted in the same manner and with the same effect as is provided in other cases of appeal from the Superior Court to the Supreme Court. All appeals from the action of the Board to the court of common pleas and from it to the Superior Court and from the Superior Court to the Supreme Court shall take precedence over all other matters except older matters of the same character.

The prothonotary of the respective courts shall in each case promptly notify the Governor and the parties to the proceedings of the order entered by the court of common pleas by the Superior Court or by the Supreme Court as the case may be.

The order of any court sustaining or modifying the order appealed from and from which no further appeal is taken shall become binding and shall control the relationship between the parties from the date that the original order of the Board of Arbitration has been filed with the prothonotary of the court of common pleas and shall remain effective for one year from that date unless changed by mutual consent of the parties to the proceedings. If the order of any court vacates the order appealed from and no further appeal is taken then the Governor may either attempt further efforts to mediate the controversy or appoint another board of arbitrator in the event the parties do not first agree to engage in further collective bargaining to settle such labor dispute.

Any such second arbitration board shall consider the evidence taken by the first board and such additional evidence as may be presented by the parties to the labor dispute. The order of any second board of arbitration shall supersede the preceding order and shall be filed in the court and be subject to review as in this act provided.

Section 14 It shall be unlawful for any group of employees acting in concert to call a strike or to go out on strike or to cause any work stoppage or slowdown in violation of the provisions of this act. It shall be unlawful for any employer to lockout his employee in violation of the provisions of this act. It shall be unlawful for any person association or corporation to instigate induce conspire with or encourage any person or persons to engage in any strike lockout slowdown or work stoppage in violation of the provisions of this act. Any violation of the provisions of this act shall constitute a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof the person association or corporation shall be sentenced to pay a fine of not less than five hundred ($500) dollars or more than twenty-five hundred ($2500) dollars or suffer imprisonment for not more than six months or both In the case of violation by associations and corporations the penalty by imprisonment may be imposed upon the representatives or officers thereof responsible for such violation

Section 15 Any person adversely affected by reason of a violation of the provisions of this act may file an action in the court of common pleas of the county in which such violation occurs to restrain and enjoin such violation and to compel the performance of duties imposed by this act Jurisdiction is hereby conferred on the courts of common pleas to hear and determine such actions

Section 16 Nothing in this act shall be construed to require an individual employe to render labor or service without his consent or to make unlawful the quitting of his labor or service or the withdrawal from his place of employment unless done in concert or in agreement with others and in violation of the provisions of this act No court shall have power to issue any process to compel an individual employe to render labor or service or to remain at his place of employment without his consent It is the intent of this act only to forbid employes to leave their employment in concert or to cause a work slowdown or stoppage in concert in violation of the provisions of this act and to forbid an employer to lockout his employes in violation of the provisions of this act

Section 17 All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence,

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 826, as follows:

An Act relating to strikes by public employes prohibiting such strikes providing that such employes by striking terminate their employment providing for reinstatement under certain conditions providing for a grievance procedure and providing for hearings before civil service and tenure authorities and in certain cases before the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board

Section 1 As used in this act

(a) The term "public employe" includes all persons holding a position by appointment or employment in the government of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania or under any of its agencies boards commissions or other branches or in the government of any political subdivision of the Commonwealth or any authority or in the public school system

(b) The word "strike" means the failure to report for duty the wilful absence from one's position the stoppage of work or the abstinence in whole or in part from the full faithful and proper performance of the duties of employment for the purpose of inducing influencing or coercing a change in the conditions or compensation or the rights privileges or obligations of employment Provided however That nothing contained in this act shall be construed to limit impair or affect the right of any public employe to the expression or communication of a view grievance complaint or opinion on any matter related to the conditions or compensation of public employment or the betterment thereof so long as the same is not designed to and does not interfere with the full faithful and proper performance of the duties of employment nor to limit impair or affect the right of any such employe to attend meetings conferences or hearings relating to such matters so long as such attendance is not designed to interfere with the full faithful and proper performance of the duties of employment for the further purpose of equitably carrying out the provisions of this act in order to avoid or minimize any possible controversies by making available full and adequate governmental facilities for the adjustment of grievances the governmental agency involved at the request of the public employes shall set up a panel of three members one to be selected by the employes one by the governmental agency and the two so selected to select a third member the members of the panel shall be compensated at the rate of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) per day together with all necessary traveling expenses the panel shall meet within fifteen (15) days if the grievance can be adjusted through negotiation and informal conferences between the various parties it shall be so adjusted if the conference negotiations do not result in rulings satisfactory to all parties concerned the panel shall afford the public employes and the governmental agency a full hearing after which the panel shall make their findings copy of which shall be sent to the Governor to the General Assembly and to the head of the agency or political subdivision involved upon receipt of the findings of the panel the Governor or the head of the state agency or political subdivision involved may take administrative measures to remedy the complaints if the Governor or the head of the state agency or political subdivision finds that the situation complained of can only be remedied by legislative action the Governor may refer the matter to the legislature for correction or the head of the state agency or political subdivision may refer the matter to the proper law-making body if the members of the panel decide that legal counsel is necessary they may with the approval of the attorney general engage local counsel to advise them on the questions involved

Section 2 No public employe shall strike and no person exercising any authority supervision or direction over any public employes shall have the power to authorize approve or consent to a strike by one or more public employes

Section 3 Notwithstanding any other provision of law any public employe who violates the provisions of this act shall thereby abandon and terminate his appointment or employment and shall no longer hold such job or position or be entitled to any of the rights or emoluments thereof except if appointed reappointed employed or reemployed as hereinafter provided

Section 4 Notwithstanding any other provision of law a person violating the provisions of this act may subsequent to such violation be appointed or reappointed employed or re-employed as a public employe but only upon the following conditions

(a) His compensation shall in no event exceed that received by him immediately prior to the time of such violation

(b) The compensation of such person shall not be increased until after the expiration of three years from such appointment or reappointment employment or re-employment and

(c) Such person shall be on probation for a period of five years following such appointment or reappointment employment or re-employment during which period he shall serve without tenure and at the pleasure of the appointing officer or body

Section 5 Notwithstanding the provisions of any other law any person holding such a position who without the lawful approval of his superior fails to report for duty or otherwise absents himself from his position or abstains in whole or in part from the full faithful and proper performance of his position shall be deemed on strike. Provided That such person upon request shall be entitled to establish that he did not violate the provisions of this act. Such request must be filed in writing within ten days after regular compensation of such employe has ceased. In the case of a public employe who is entitled by law to a hearing upon dismissal or removal such written request shall be filed with the officer or body having power to remove such employe and such officers or body shall within ten days conduct a hearing to determine whether the provisions of this act have been violated by such public employe in the manner provided by law appropriate to a proceeding to dismiss or remove such public employe. In the case of a public employe who is not entitled by law to a hearing upon dismissal or removal the request for a hearing shall be filed with the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board which shall within ten days conduct a hearing to determine whether the provisions of this act have been violated by such public employe in the manner provided for hearings before the board by the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Act. All such proceedings shall be undertaken without unnecessary delay.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

Donlan,	Hare,

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return said bill to the House of Representatives with information that the Senate has passed the same with amendments in which the concurrence of the House is requested.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 952, as follows:

An Act to further amend the act approved the fifth day of December one thousand nine hundred thirty-six (P. L. 1937 page 2897) entitled "An act establishing a system of unemployment compensation to be administered by the Department of Labor and Industry and its existing and newly created agencies with personnel (with certain exceptions) selected on a civil service basis requiring employers to keep records and make reports and certain employers to pay contributions based on payrolls to provide moneys for the payment of compensation to certain unemployed persons providing procedure and administrative details for the determination payment and collection of such contributions and the payment of such compensation providing for cooperation with the Federal Government and its agencies creating certain special funds in the custody of the State Treasurer and prescribing penalties" by further defining employes ineligible to compensation by providing for increases in the duration of benefits by changing the manner in which compromises are to be made and by providing a prison sentence for individuals fraudulently claiming benefits.

Section 1 Section three hundred nine point one of the act approved the fifth day of December one thousand nine hundred thirty-six (P. L. 1937 page 2897) entitled "An act establishing a system of unemployment compensation to be administered by the Department of Labor and Industry and its existing and newly created agencies with personnel (with certain exceptions) selected on a civil service basis requiring employers to keep records and make reports and certain employers to pay contributions based on payrolls to provide moneys for the payment of compensation to certain unemployed persons providing procedure and administrative details for the determination payment and collection of such contributions and the payment of such compensation providing for cooperation with the Federal Government and its agencies creating certain special funds in the custody of the State Treasurer and prescribing penalties" as amended by the act approved the twenty-seventh day of May one thousand nine hundred forty-three (P. L. 717) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 309.1 Compromises where the department is satisfied (1) that the employer is unable to make payment in full of contributions interest and penalties imposed upon him by the law or that it would be inequitable to require the payment in full of delinquent interest and (2) that the employer has acted in good faith the secretary is hereby authorized [with the approval of the attorney general and under rules and regulations adopted therefor] to compromise delinquent interest and penalties due on any contribution and in the case of any employer that has been adjudged a bankrupt or for whom a receiver has been appointed to compromise the principal of any delinquent contribution as well as interest and penalties thereon provided that any compromise of a total delinquent amount in excess of one thousand dollars shall require the approval of the attorney general.

Section 2 Sections four hundred two and four hundred four of said act as amended by the act approved the twenty-ninth day of May one thousand nine hundred forty-five (P. L. 1145) are hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 402 Ineligibility for Compensation An employe shall be ineligible for compensation for any week

(a) In which his unemployment is due to failure without good cause either to apply for suitable work at such time and in such manner as the department may prescribe or to accept suitable work when offered to him by the employment office or by any employer. Provided That such employer simultaneously notifies the employment office of such offer.

(b) In which his unemployment is due to voluntarily leaving work without good cause. Provided That no employe shall be deemed to be ineligible under this [section] subsection where as a condition of continuing in employment such employee would be required to join or remain a member of a company union or to resign from or refrain from joining any bona fide labor organization or to accept wages hours or conditions of employment not desired by a majority of the employees in the establishment or the occupation or would be denied the right of collective bargaining under generally prevailing conditions and that [In] in determining whether or not an employee has left his work voluntarily without good cause the department shall give consideration to the same factors in so far as they are applicable provided with respect to the determination of suitable work under section four (t) and provided further that the provisions of this subsection shall not apply in the event of a stoppage of work which exists because of a labor dispute within the meaning of subsection (d)

(c) with respect to which or a part of which he has received or is seeking unemployment benefits under an unemployment compensation law of any other state or of the United States Provided That if the appropriate agency of such other state or of the United States finally determines that he is not entitled to such unemployment benefits the disqualification shall not apply

[d] In which his unemployment is due to a voluntary suspension of work resulting from an industrial dispute at the factory establishment or other premises at which he is or was last employed Provided That this disqualification shall apply only to any week of unemployment which in whole or in part includes any part of a period beginning with the day on which such suspension occurs and ending with (i) the last day of the fourth calendar week immediately following the calendar week in which such suspension occurs or (ii) the day on which such suspension was terminated whichever is the earlier]

(d) In which his unemployment is due to a stoppage of work which exists because of a labor dispute at the factory establishment or other premises at which he is or was last employed long as the dispute continues provided that this subsection shall not apply if it is shown that (1) he is not participating in or directly interested in the labor dispute which caused the stoppage of work and (2) he does not belong to a grade or class of workers of which immediately before the commencement of the stoppage there were members employed at the premises at which the stoppage occurs any of whom are participating in or directly interested in the dispute provided that if in any case separate branches of work which are commonly conducted as separate businesses in separate premises are conducted in separate departments of the same premises each such department shall for the purpose of this subsection be deemed to be a separate factory establishment or other premises

(e) In which his unemployment is due to his discharge or temporary suspension from work for willful misconduct connected with his work and

(f) Which in whole or in part includes any part of the two-week period which immediately follows each period of employment under Shipping Articles

Section 404 Rate and amount of compensation Compensation shall be paid [with respect] to each eligible employee [whose benefit year begins prior to June first one thousand nine hundred forty-five in accordance with the provisions of this act prior to that date and with respect to each eligible employee whose benefit year begins subsequent to May thirty-first one thousand nine hundred and forty-five] in accordance with the following provisions of this section

(a) The employee's weekly benefit rate shall be that rate which appears in "Part B" and which is on the same horizontal line in "Part A" as the interval which includes his "highest quarterly wage"

(b) The "highest quarterly wages" of an employee shall be the total wages (computed to the nearest dollar) which were paid to such employee in that calendar quarter in which such total wages were highest during the base year

[(c) Each eligible employee who is totally unemployed with respect to any week ending subsequent to the sixth day of June one thousand nine hundred and forty-five and prior to the first day of January one thousand nine hundred and forty-six shall be paid with respect to such week compensation in an amount equal to his weekly benefit rate no payment shall be made for any week ending during such period unless the employee has been totally unemployed with respect to such week and has served one waiting week as required under section four hundred one (e) provided that with respect to such week the employee has been totally unemployed for purposes of this subsection an employee shall be deemed totally unemployed with respect to any week during which he performs no services and with respect to which no remuneration is paid or payable to him or to any week of less than full-time work if the remuneration paid or payable to him with respect to such week does not exceed three dollars ($3.00)]

(d) Each eligible employee who is unemployed with respect to any week [ending the first day of January one thousand nine hundred and forty-six or thereafter] shall be paid with respect to such week compensation in an amount equal to his weekly benefit rate less that part of the remuneration if any paid or payable to him with respect to such week which is in excess of three dollars ($3.00) such compensation if not a multiple of one dollar ($1.00) shall be computed to the next higher multiple of one dollar ($1.00) provided that if at the end of any calendar quarter the balance in the unemployment trust fund to the credit of Pennsylvania is less than one and one-half times the highest amount paid out for compensation loss any refunds during any twelve consecutive months the maximum amount of compensation payable to any employee for a week of unemployment ending during the next calendar quarter shall not be in excess of eighteen dollars ($18)

(e) Any otherwise eligible employee shall be entitled during his benefit year to an amount equal to his weekly benefit rate multiplied by the number which appears at the top of a column under "Part C" to be ascertained by locating on the same horizontal line on which his weekly benefit rate appears the interval which includes the total wage paid to him during his base year provided that if at the end of any calendar quarter the balance in the unemployment trust fund to the credit of Pennsylvania is less than one and one-half times the highest amount paid out for compensation less any refunds during any twelve consecutive months No employee shall be paid compensation with respect to weeks of unemployment ending during the next calendar quarter in an amount which together with any amount previously paid with respect to the same benefit year would be in excess of sixteen times the employee's weekly benefit rate or two hundred and eighty-eight dollars ($288) whichever is the lesser and provided further that no employee shall be paid compensation in excess of twenty times his weekly benefit rate with respect to any benefit year which begins prior to the first day of October one thousand nine hundred forty-seven

(f) For the purposes of this section and of section four hundred one (a) Wages paid with respect to unemployment performed under shipping articles shall be considered as having been paid in the respective calendar quarters in which the services of the employee were being performed

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, due to the lateness of the hour I would like to have inserted in the Journal a speech I was just about to deliver.

EXTENDED REMARKS BY MR. BARR

Mr. BARR. This Thucydides, who was born in 481 B. C., an ancient Greek writer of history and philosophy, said that justice exists only between two equal parties, for the strong man takes what he can and the weak man concedes what he has to, and so it is today.

As it is the duty of Government to see to it that justice is rendered to all classes, so it is the duty of this Legislature to enact only those laws that will bring about justice in our society.

The matter before the Senate this afternoon brings this issue to the foreground, and, as was so ably expressed by Philip Murray in his analysis of the forces of our society, so it is applicable here this afternoon.

The bills before you can be supported only by a premise that the ills of our economy, the ills of our nation, reflect a need—and solely a need—for weakening labor at the bargaining table, for weakening labor at the expense of management, for compelling labor to accept from management without resistance the answer "no."

To make that evaluation you will have to make it in blunt and uncompromising economic terms.

It will be of no avail to hide behind a smoke-screen of reference to jurisdictional strikes, sympathy strikes, secondary boycotts and other literally fringe phenomena.

Between January and June of 1946, of workers involved in all strikes, four-tenths of one per cent were involved in jurisdictional strikes; eighty-three and nine-tenths per cent were involved in strikes in which the issues related to wages, hours and working conditions.

If you are prepared to say that the time has come to weaken unions, then you will have to be prepared to say that the Pennsylvania working men and women have, through their unions or otherwise, achieved more than you are prepared to concede to them as their right with respect to wages, hours and working conditions.

If you are prepared to embark on a program of consciously weakening labor at the bargaining table, then you are prepared to say that the strength of government must be thrown behind those employers who are today prepared to protect their present and future profit levels against any demands for wage increases.

If that is your program, then we are truly embarking upon a new and dangerous era in the history of Pennsylvania government. Not merely will government be preparing to sit by and permit a repetition on a grander scale of the trends which led to the crash in 1929; government will be actually taking an affirmative and active role in compelling the state in the direction of such a catastrophe.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

TUESDAY, June 3, 1947

The House met at 12:00 noon Eastern Standard Time.

The SPEAKER (Franklin H. Lichtenwalter) in the chair.

PRAYER

Rev. Dr. Ebenezer Flack, retired minister of the Kingston Presbyterian Church of Kingston, Luzerne County, guest of his son, the Hon. Harold E. Flack, offered the following prayer:

Eternal and ever-blessed God—

In Thee we live and move and have our being.

Creator, preserver and bountiful benefactor—Thou art failing in meeting the needs of Thy creation.

We thank Thee for Thy goodness; Thy providence is concerned with the affairs and destinies of men and nations.

Thou hast bestowed upon us a goodly heritage in this land of plenty and liberty. Favored as we are, may our hearts be touched with a deep tenderness, pity and sympathy for those who are less favored in these dark and bewildering days of reconstruction following a long and cruel war. May we have burned into our hearts and consciences our responsibilities in this day of world need.

We thank Thee for the great state in which our lot is cast, for its leadership in things that are worth while.

May Thy servant our Governor be endowed with wisdom and understanding as he meets the great responsibilities that are his. Keep him in health, and guide him to right decisions in the administration of his office.

May he and all those entrusted with responsibilities of government—the members of our state and national legislatures, Thy servants now bowed in reverent attitude before Thee, seek divine wisdom day by day so that it may be made clear to them what Thy will is, and may they have courage to stand for those great and fundamental principles of righteousness that today as in the past exalt a nation. May Thy servant the President of our country be specially favored by Thy protecting care.

Amid all the confusions of these difficult days may the leadership of the Son of Righteousness be recognized by all entrusted with government authority in states and nation.

Light, understanding, sympathy, courage and the many good things that Thou art ready to give to those who seek Thy face, may these and all other good qualities and graces be given in rich abundance to Thy servants.

With all our shortcomings Thou art always merciful and forgiving. Give grace to dare and do the right, and give the humble spirit when failure in duty is recorded.

We ask in the Name which is above every Name. Amen.

JAMES H. DUFF.

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. CHUDOFF. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of information.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state his question of information.

Mr. CHUDOFF. Mr. Speaker, I should like to know whether the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Trent, is still a member of this House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. As far as I am informed, the gentleman is not on the rolls of the House.

Mr. CHUDOFF. I want to call the Speaker's attention to page 1761 of the Legislative Journal, in which Mr. Trent is listed as not voting on Senate Bill 148.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. It is purely a typographical error, I have no doubt. The Chair thanks the gentleman from Philadelphia. Perhaps they might have needed him on that roll call; I don't know.

NOT VOTING—2

Layer,
Trout,
The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.
Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,
The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 786, as follows:

An Act to amend the act approved the twenty-ninth day of May one thousand nine hundred thirty-one (P. L. 280) entitled "An act relating to delinquent taxes on seated lands and prescribing interest charges on nonpayment thereof requiring the receivers and collectors of county city borough town township school district and poor district taxes to make a return to the county commissioners of such unpaid taxes and providing for the lien thereof authorizing the county treasurers to collect such taxes and to sell seated lands at public sale for taxes heretofore or hereafter returned as unpaid and authorizing the county commissioners to purchase such lands and resell the same under certain circumstances" allowing counties to retain the excess over the amount of taxes penalties interest and costs due on real property sold by county commissioners at private or public sale

Section 1 The act approved the twenty-ninth day of May one thousand nine hundred thirty-one (P. L. 280) entitled "An act relating to delinquent taxes on seated lands and prescribing interest charges on nonpayment thereof requiring the receivers and collectors of county city borough town township school district and poor district taxes to make a return to the county commissioners of such unpaid taxes and providing for the lien thereof authorizing the county treasurers to collect such taxes and to sell seated lands at public sale for taxes heretofore or hereafter returned as unpaid and authorizing the county commissioners to purchase such lands and resell the same under certain circumstances" is hereby amended by adding after section seventeen thereof a new section to read as follows

Section 17.1 Whenever the county commissioners sell at private or public sale real property which was acquired by them at a County Treasurer's sale for nonpayment of taxes and the price obtained at such county commissioner's sale is in excess of the amount of taxes penalties interest and costs due such excess shall belong to the county and shall be paid into the county treasury

Section 2 This act shall be retroactive so as to apply to any undistributed funds derived from any public or private sale of real property heretofore held by the county commissioners

Section 3 The provisions of this act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

On the question,
Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?
It was agreed to.
On the question,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the sponsor of the bill what is the present method of apportioning the excess of the amount of tax penalties of a sale when a property is sold for taxes, and the amount received is in excess of the amount of taxes?

The SPEAKER. If there is no objection, the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Brunner, will answer the interrogation. Will the gentleman from Montgomery permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BRUNNER. I shall, Mr. Speaker. May I state that the sponsor has asked me to represent him on interrogation in regard to this bill.

To answer the gentleman's question, I do not believe that there is any prescribed procedure at this time. I think that some of the counties apportion it back to the subdivision where the property was located,—the amount of charges against the real estate. It is also my understanding that some of the counties retain the entire amount.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, then under this bill if the amount of taxes totals two thousand dollars, and the property sold for three thousand dollars, the county would keep the one thousand dollars and nothing would go back to the other political subdivisions?

Mr. BRUNNER. That is my understanding, Mr. Speaker.

May I state that I think the gentleman's hypothetical question is a little extreme or far-fetched, but I believe that that is the purport of this bill.

Mr. ANDREWS. I thank the gentleman, Mr. Speaker. This is a thoroughly bad bill.

Mr. O'CONNOR. Mr. Speaker, first of all I want to say that I know the sponsor of this bill introduced it with very good intentions, as I conferred with him about the bill. Now, the practice today, as I have knowledge of it, is not such as you have just heard explained by my learned friend from Montgomery county. Those of us who are familiar with tax sales know that when a property is sold for non-payment of taxes by the county treasurer, if there is no one present at that sale to bid the total amount of taxes, penalties and interest against that property the county must buy. When it is knocked down to the county by the county treasurer, the county does not pay one cent of it. It remains in the county's hands until the county sells it at either private or public sale.

Our Superior Court in a lengthy opinion by the judge who is now the president judge, outlined exactly how the money received from the sale, either private or public of the real estate bought by the County Commissioners, is to be distributed, and it is definitely set forth how it is to be done.

I believe all of you know that the taxes assessed against a piece of property for borough, road or school purposes far exceeds the amount of taxes assessed against the same piece of real estate by the county. I know in my own county the average levy for school purposes is twenty-five mills; the average levy for road purposes is eleven mills, and the levy for county purposes is six mills, making a total millage levied against each piece of real estate of forty-two mills. Out of that forty-two mills of money six mills, or one seventh of the levy, or one seventh of the amount of taxes assessed against the real estate, belongs to the county. The other six seventh rightfully belongs to the other tax levying districts within the county. In our county where the price received by the county commissioner for this real estate is in excess of the total amount due against the property, or does not equal it, that money is divided proportionately among the several tax levying districts, and to change this system now, Mr. Speaker, I think would be grossly unfair.

Section 2 of this act says that it shall be retroactive. In my humble opinion nothing could be more unfair to a great number of the good citizens of this Commonwealth. In the past every member of council in third class cities, every member of a borough council, every township supervisor and every school director over a period of years who have levied taxes, and then have followed the advice of their own solicitor, know that it would be ill advised to go to the expense of filing tax liens against the property just to let it go, and then it would be sold at a Treasurer's sale, when they would receive the money, or wait until the County Commissioners sell it at public or private sale, when they receive the money. If these local officers did that, then they were doing exactly what the law in Pennsylvania requires them to do. The law in Pennsylvania also permits the tax levying districts to buy these properties.

The point I wish to make is this, that it would be impossible for any board of supervisors of any county, any board of public education to have attended a sale through their representatives and bid in these properties and then to have sold them to make a profit, instead of going along with this bill. I honestly believe that every citizen of Pennsylvania who has served in any of these capacities over a period of years would be held up to undue and unjust criticism for doing what was his duty under the law.

Now, I would also call attention to the fact that every solicitor of cities of the third class, and every borough solicitor, every school solicitor and every township solicitor in Pennsylvania for having advised every district to comply with the law, and if you pass this law it will place them in the position where they will be punished and the district will be punished because they did comply with the law, and I hope that this bill will be defeated.

Mr. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. O'Connor.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Cambria permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. O'CONNOR. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman, for the information of the Members of the House, whether it is not a fact that land taken in by the county at a Treasurer's sale is what is known as unimproved land.

Mr. O'CONNOR. It is not, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman say it is generally so.

Mr. O'CONNOR. Not to be facetious, Mr. Speaker, but that depends entirely on the land.

Mr. BRUNNER. May I ask the gentleman this question, is it not a fact that the county has acquired this real estate and it can be sold to an individual with the approval of the court?

Mr. O'CONNOR. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, at the time the petition is presented to the court, the court asks whether there is anyone in the courtroom who is interested in the property and at that time an opportunity is given for people other than the purchaser or the petitioner to make a bid.

Mr. O'CONNOR. That is not the practice that I know of, Mr. Speaker or as I have observed. At the time of the offer or the time the petition is presented to the court by the County Commissioners, setting forth the fact that they have received an offer, the court decrees that notice be given the other tax levying districts which have tax claims against this particular real estate and they are given a chance to object, and in the event there are no objections filed when the date of the hearing comes around the court as a matter of course signs the decree.

Mr. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, may I ask the gentleman whether Cambria County follows that procedure as he just described.

Mr. O'CONNOR. It does, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman know of any other counties which do not follow the procedure?

Mr. O'CONNOR. I don't know all of them but I would not dispute that they did.

Mr. BRUNNER. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, the procedure which I related to the gentleman could obtain in other counties besides Cambria county?

Mr. O'CONNOR. Yes, Mr. Speaker, and I think it is a very good procedure.

Mr. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, is it not also the practice that in counties where an offer is submitted to the County Commissioners that the sale price represents the total amount of indebtedness against the property as a general rule?

Mr. O'CONNOR. Mr. Speaker, if I understand the gentleman's question, if the offer is equal to the amount of taxes due—

Mr. BRUNNER. That is right, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. O'CONNOR. In answer to the gentleman, Mr. Speaker, then I would say that in at least 95 percent of the cases with which I am familiar, that is not true. The offer is much less.

Mr. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, is it my understanding that the gentleman said that in 95 percent of the cases where a property is sold by the County Commissioners the sum realized is less than the total amount of the indebtedness?

Mr. O'CONNOR. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BRUNNER. Then, Mr. Speaker, if my conclusion is correct, the remaining 5 percent of the cases are cases in which the gentleman is arguing with regard to this bill?

Mr. O'CONNOR. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BRUNNER. It is conceivable that the percentage that he is debating at the present time might be less than 5 percent?

Mr. O'CONNOR. Sure, Mr. Speaker, and it could be a great deal more sometimes.

Mr. BRUNNER. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, I think that under the circumstances the membership of this House should vote for this bill. As the gentleman himself has related, in at least 95 percent of the cases where the Commissioners sell real estate the amount is less than the total amount owed against the property. I think in some of the cases the property is sold for the actual amount of indebtedness, and therefore in but a few instances are these tracts sold for more than the amount due. I know that in Montgomery County the county does considerable with regard to this land which it possesses. They have representatives of the County traveling around to inspect the nature of the land, to see how it is being maintained, to see the character of it, and they do not do so at any expense to the purchaser at any subsequent sale. I think under the circumstances that is a representative practice, and I think the bill should pass.

Mr. O'CONNOR. Mr. Speaker, what the gentleman from Montgomery says about the properties owned by the county may be true, but we must not forget the fact that when the properties are owned by the county the county collects the rents from the tenants during the period that it holds the properties, and therefore they receive in most cases sufficient income to take care of the expense incurred. We should also not forget the fact that the taxes assessed by the other tax levying bodies of the counties is at least eighty per cent, and we are going to give the county credit for that. Whether it be five per cent or five hundred per cent, Mr. Speaker, the principle involved here is wrong. The county has no right to receive this increase when we here enact legislation providing that all tax levying bodies must agree to it and all of the tax levying bodies should receive their pro-rata share of the proceeds. Again I ask the Members of the House to vote this bill down.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. O'Connor.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Cambria permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. O'CONNOR. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TURNER. I would like to ask the gentleman from Cambria whether I understand him rightly, that his contention is that under this bill, because of the failure of the other municipalities or municipality to file tax liens, that if this bill goes into effect the municipalities will not receive any share of the amount due under their tax liens.

Mr. O'CONNOR. Mr. Speaker, in reply to the gentleman from Delaware, if I did not know him so well I would think he was questioning my statement. What I said was this, that at the time the solicitor advised the municipality to buy the properties and not to file tax liens because under the law today the county would eventually receive their proceeds anyhow, I did not wish to infer that by the failure to file tax liens they would lose their pro rata share.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I did not clearly understand the gentleman, and therefore I thought it would be better to ask him. As I now understand it, that to which he objects now is that the county would receive the surplus over and above the amount due the other taxing authorities?

Mr. O'CONNOR. Yes, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TURNER. I thank the gentleman, Mr. Speaker.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection,
House Bill No. 800, Printer's No. 761,
was passed over at the request of the SPEAKER.

INTERROGATION

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Brunner.

The SPEAKER. Without objection the gentleman from Cambria desires to interrogate the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Brunner. Will the gentleman from Montgomery permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BRUNNER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, when will the gentleman from Montgomery graciously consent to have his bill (House Bill 800) placed in a position for possible amendment?

Mr. BRUNNER. I would say, Mr. Speaker, in the immediate future.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would say that that is a confusing answer.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman define "immediate" within certain limitations,—within the next day or what?

Mr. BRUNNER. Mr. Speaker, immediate perhaps could be defined as not necessarily tomorrow, but certainly not today.

Mr. ANDREWS. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, I do not want to embarrass him by calling up his bill for the purpose of offering my amendments, but I hope he does not delay too long.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 857, as follows:

An Act establishing a State Institution Retirement System providing for payments upon retirement death disability involuntary retirement from the State Employees' Retirement Fund under the administration of the State Employees' Retirement Board providing for contributions by employees covered by the provisions of this act and the Commonwealth providing for the guarantee by the Commonwealth of certain of said funds exempting annuities allowances returns benefits and rights from taxation and judicial processes and providing penalties The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 The following words and phrases as used in this act shall be construed to have the following meanings

"Accumulated Deductions" the total of the amounts deducted from the salary of a contributor and paid into the fund and standing to his credit in the fund together with the regular interest thereon

"Beneficiary" any person in receipt of a retirement allowance under this act

"Board" the State Employees' Retirement Board of the Department of State

"Contributor" any person who has accumulated deductions in the fund standing to his credit

"Final Salary" the average annual compensation earnable by a contributor before any deductions have been made for the five years of service during which he received his highest salary or in the event a member has not served five years the total retirement compensation earnable divided by the number of years served

"Fund" the State Employees' Retirement Fund

"Member's Annuity" payments for life derived from contributions made by the contributor

"Original Member" a person employed by the Commonwealth prior to January first one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five and who is an employee covered by this act

"New Member" a person who became an employee of the Commonwealth subsequent to December thirty-first one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four

"Prior Service" shall mean service prior to January first one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four

"Regular Interest" interest at the rate of four per centum compounded annually

"Retirement Allowance" the State annuity plus the member's annuity

"State Annuity" payments for life derived from contributions made by the Commonwealth

Section 2 State Institution Retirement System A retirement system is hereby established for the employees of the State penal and correctional institutions and State mental health hospitals and employees of the prison industries working in State penal institutions to be known as the State Institution Retirement System which system shall be administered by the State Employees' Retirement Board of the Department of State

Section 3 Administrative Expenses The expense of the administration of this act exclusive of the payment of retirement allowances and other benefits shall be paid by the Commonwealth by biennial appropriations out of the General Fund made on the basis of estimates submitted by the board

Section 4 Payments Into State Employees' Retirement Fund All appropriations made by the Commonwealth out of the General Fund all contributions by members of the State Institution Retirement System in the amount hereinafter specified and all interest on and increase of the investments and moneys under this act shall be paid into the State Employees' Retirement Fund and shall be credited to the proper accounts in said fund as provided by law applying to said fund. The Commonwealth shall on receiving the certification of the board periodically contribute such sums of money as the actuary shall estimate shall be required to annually meet the obligations incurred or to be incurred and to establish the reserves provided for in this act.

Section 5 Rules and Regulations Actuarial Data Appropriations to Fund The board shall from time to time establish such rules and regulations for the administration of this act as may be deemed necessary. It shall keep such data as shall be necessary for actuarial valuation purposes. The actuary of the board shall periodically make and actuarial investigation into the mortality and service experience of the contributors to and beneficiaries of the fund and shall adopt for the retirement system one or more mortality tables and certify to the board biennially the amount of contributions required to be made by the Commonwealth to the fund to build up and maintain adequate reserves for the payment of the State's share of the retirement allowances and other disbursements provided by this act.

Section 6 Membership Credit for Service Contribution Every employe of the State penal correctional institutions and State mental health hospitals and every employe of the prison industries working in State institutions except those who express a desire to remain as members of the State Employees Retirement System shall be required to become a member of the retirement system established by this act. Any employe who becomes a member of the system established by this act shall be entitled to receive the service and prior service credits which he has in the State Employees Retirement System. Any employe who hereafter becomes an employe of any said institutions shall receive credit for any service which he had in the employ of the Commonwealth prior to January first one thousand nine hundred and forty-eight upon complying with the provisions of this act.

Section 7 Commonwealth Guarantee Biennial Budgets The regular interest charges payable and the creation and maintenance of the necessary reserves for the payment of the State and members' annuities in accordance with this act are hereby made obligations of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The board shall prepare and submit to the budget secretary on or before the first day of November of each even-numbered year an itemized estimate of the amounts necessary to be appropriated from the General Fund to complete the payments of the obligations of the Commonwealth during the fiscal biennium beginning June first of the following year.

Section 8 Service Allowance In computing the length of service of a contributor for retirement purposes full credit shall be given to each contributor for each year of service rendered to the Commonwealth including service rendered prior to January first one thousand nine hundred forty-eight upon complying with the provisions of this act. As soon as practicable the retirement board shall issue to each original member a certificate certifying the aggregate length of his service prior to January first one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four. Such certificate shall be final and conclusive as to his prior service unless thereafter modified by the board upon application of the contributor. The time during which a contributor is absent from service without pay shall not be counted in computing the service of a contributor unless approved by the board.

Section 9 Payments by Contributors All original and new members shall be required to contribute into the fund at the same rate of contribution according to age as is required of State employes contributing at the one one-hundredth rate under the State Employees' Retirement Act. All original employes who were not members of the State Employees Retirement System shall have the option of becoming original members of the retirement system established by this act but shall be required to pay into the fund a sum equal to all back payments which such person would have made had he become a member of the State Employees' Retirement System when the same was established. In like manner any new member may elect to make back payments to the date when he first entered the service of the Commonwealth. All original and new members who were members of the State Employees' Retirement System and who during any period of membership contributed at the one one hundred sixtieth rate shall be entitled to pay into the fund sufficient moneys so that their contributions will have been at the one one-hundredth rate for their entire period of service. Such back payments of original and new members may be spread over a period of years by having the regular payroll deduction of the contributor increased by not less than one-third of the amount thereof which deduction increase shall be credited to such back payments owing and shall be continued until the full amount of such back payments have been completed. Any such deduction increase may be anticipated in part or in full by the contributor at any time and shall be anticipated in full at the time of retirement before a retirement allowance is granted and if not so anticipated then his member's annuity shall be calculated on the total accumulated deductions standing to his credit in the fund and the State annuity shall be reduced by an amount equivalent to the reduction which occurs in the member's annuity due to the amount of back payments not so anticipated.

Every contributor who was a member of the State Employees' Retirement System shall receive full credit under this act for all contributions made into the fund under the State Employees' Retirement System.

Section 10 Contributions by the Commonwealth The Commonwealth shall contribute from the General Fund from time to time sufficient moneys to build up the reserves required to pay to each contributor upon superannuation retirement a State annuity equal to (a) one one-hundredth of his final salary for each year of total service and in addition thereto if an original member of one one-hundredth of his final salary for each year of prior service and (b) an additional State annuity which shall be sufficient in any case of superannuation retirement to make the total retirement allowance of the annuitant equal to fifty percentum of his final salary.

The amounts to be paid by the Commonwealth from the General Fund into the State Employees' Retirement Fund shall be apportioned in the same ratio as the salaries of the employes covered by this act.

Section 11 Payments Upon Death If the board shall find that a contributor died as a direct and proximate result of injuries received in the course of his employment a retirement allowance shall be paid to his widow so long as she remains his widow and if and when such widow dies or remarries then to his children under eighteen (18) years of age while they are under eighteen (18) years of age and if and when there are no children under eighteen (18) years of age then to the member's parent or parents if they are dependent.

Such retirement allowance shall consist of (a) a member's annuity which shall be the actuarial equivalent of the contributor's accumulated deductions standing to his credit and (b) a State annuity equal to 50% of the final salary of the contributor less the amount which is paid to any such widow or children or dependent parent or parents under the Workmen's Compensation Laws of this Commonwealth during the period such compensation is paid or payable.

The provisions of this section shall apply only to those contributors at least one-half of whose total service in the employ of the Commonwealth was in the institutions the employees of which are covered by this act

Section 12 Superannuation Retirement Allowance Any contributor may retire for superannuation by filing with the board a written application for retirement duly attested setting forth on what date he desires to be retired Said application shall make the superannuation retirement allowance effective on the date so specified if such application was filed in the offices of the board or deposited in the United States mail addressed to the board before the date specified in the application and before the death of the contributor Provided however that the date so specified in the application shall not be more than thirty days from the date of filing or depositing the application in the mail

When a contributor retires for superannuation under the provisions of this section he shall be paid a retirement allowance disbursed according to his election as provided in section 15 Such retirement allowance shall consist of (a) a member's annuity which shall be the actuarial equivalent of his accumulated deductions standing to his credit in the Members' Annuity Reserve Account and (b) a State annuity equal one one-hundredth of his final salary for each year of total service and if an original member in addition thereto of one one-hundredth of his final salary for each year of prior service and an additional State annuity which shall be sufficient in any case to make the retirement allowance of the annuitant equal to fifty per centum of his final salary But in no case shall the State annuity exceed fifty per centum of the contributor's final salary

Section 13 Disability Retirement Allowance In cases of permanent disability incurred in service the contributor shall receive a member's annuity of the actuarial equivalent of his accumulated deduction and a State annuity which when added to the member's annuity will provide a retirement allowance equal to one-half of the contributor's final salary In other cases of disability of a contributor who has had at least five years of service a retirement allowance shall be granted the contributor in an amount calculated in accordance with the provisions of the State Employees' Retirement Act relating to disability retirement allowances and subject to the same terms conditions and rights as provided by said act

Section 14 Involuntary Retirement Allowances Should a contributor be discontinued from service not voluntarily after having completed ten years of total service but before reaching superannuation retirement age he shall upon filing of application in the manner herein provided for superannuation retirement be paid as he may elect as follows (a) The full amount of the accumulated deductions standing to his credit or (b) a member's annuity of equivalent actuarial value to his accumulated deductions standing to his credit and in addition a State annuity having a value equal to the present value of a State annuity beginning at superannuation retirement age as provided in this act with respect to State annuities for superannuation retirement The same options shall be available to beneficiaries in case of involuntary retirement as provided herein in the case of superannuation retirement

Section 15 Options on Superannuation Retirement At the time of superannuation retirement any contributor may elect that the retirement allowance be payable in conformance with any one of the following plans

(1) There shall be paid to the beneficiary the actuarial equivalent of the member's and State annuity as a retirement allowance payable throughout his life and upon the beneficiary's death all retirement allowance payments shall cease

(2) If the retirement allowance would be less than ten ($10) dollars per month there shall be paid to the beneficiary the full amount of the accumulated deductions standing to his individual credit in the Member's Annuity Reserve Account

There shall be paid to a beneficiary the actuarial equivalent of the member's and State annuity in a lesser retirement allowance payable throughout life with any one of the following provisions

(a) If the beneficiary die before receiving in payments the present value of his member's annuity and State annuity as it was at the time of his retirement the balance shall be paid to his legal representatives or to such person having an insurable interest in his life as he shall nominate by written designation duly acknowledged and filed with the board

(b) Upon his death his member's annuity and State annuity shall be continued through the life of and paid to such person having an insurable interest in his life as he shall nominate by written designation duly acknowledged and filed with the board

(c) Upon his death one-half of his member's and State annuity shall be continued through the life of and paid to such person having an insurable interest in his life as he shall nominate by written designation duly acknowledged and filed with the board at the time of his retirement

Section 16 Monthly Payments of Retirement Allowances The retirement allowances granted under the provisions of this act shall be paid in equal monthly installments and shall not be increased decreased revoked or repealed unless by an act of Assembly

Section 17 Refunds in Case of Withdrawal or Death Where a contributor resigns from service before becoming entitled to a retirement allowance or where a contributor has died and no application for a retirement allowance shall have been made by a person entitled to claim under the provisions of this act within six months after resignation or death then the amount standing to the credit of the contributor in the Member's Annuity Reserve Account shall be paid to him or to the person nominated by him by written designation duly acknowledged and filed by the contributor with the board or in lieu of such designation such amount shall be paid to his estate

Section 18 Exemption from Taxation and Execution Etc Any money received or to be paid as a member's annuity State annuity or return of deductions or the right to any of these shall be exempt from any State or municipal tax and from levy sale garnishment attachment or any other process whatsoever and shall be unassignable except for a loan not in excess of three hundred ($300) dollars the interest on which shall not exceed six (6%) per centum per annum received by a contributor from a credit union now or hereafter organized or incorporated under the laws of this Commonwealth the membership of which credit union is limited solely to officers and employees of the Commonwealth

Section 19 Nomination of Beneficiary Every contributor shall have the authority to change the person nominated by him as the beneficiary by written designation duly acknowledged and filed with the board up until but not after the time of retirement

Section 20 Fraud Correction of Errors (a) No person shall knowingly make any false statement or shall falsify or permit to be falsified any record or records of the retirement system herein established in any attempt to defraud such system

(b) Should any such change in records fraudulently made or any mistake in records inadvertently made result in any contributor or beneficiary receiving more or less than he would have been entitled to had the records been correct then on the discovery of such error the board shall correct such error and shall adjust the payments which shall be made to the contributor or annuitant in such manner that the actuarial equivalent of the benefit to which he was correctly entitled shall be paid

Any person violating any of the provisions of subsection (a) of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand ($1000) dollar or suffer imprisonment not exceeding one year or both in the discretion of the court

Section 21 Amendments to Law The Legislature shall have the right and the authority to alter strikeout add to or amend or supplement any of the provisions of this act or to repeal the entire act and the board shall have the same right and authority with reference to its regulations excepting that no law or regulation shall deprive a contributor of the money standing to his credit in the Members' Annuity Reserve Account

Section 22 State Employees' Retirement Law to Apply Generally Except as otherwise provided in this act the retirement system established by this act shall be administered in accordance with the laws rules and regulations applying to the State Employees' Retirement System

Section 23 Effective Date This act shall become effective on the first day of January one thousand nine hundred forty-eight

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

An Act to amend section thirty-three and to add section thirty-five point one to the act approved the twenty-fifth day of May one thousand nine hundred forty-five (P. L. 1050) entitled "An act relating to the collection of taxes levied by counties county institution districts cities of the third class boroughs towns townships certain school districts and vocational school districts conferring powers and imposing duties on tax collectors courts and various officers of said political subdivisions and prescribing penalties" by providing that the taxing districts shall pay the premium on bonds insuring tax collectors against losses of money through no fault of their own

Section 1 Section thirty-three of the act approved the twenty-fifth day of May one thousand nine hundred forty-five (P. L. 1050) entitled "An act relating to the collection of taxes levied by counties county institution districts cities of the third class boroughs towns townships certain school districts and vocational school districts conferring powers and imposing duties on tax collectors courts and various officers of said political subdivisions and prescribing penalties" is hereby amended to read as follows

Section 33 Compensation and Expenses of Tax Collector in Cities of the Third Class Shared For the collection of city county institution district and school taxes in a city of the third class the city treasurer as tax collector shall be paid an annual salary which salary where not definitely fixed by this section shall be fixed before the election of the city treasurer jointly by taxing authorities other than the institution district whose taxes are collected under the provisions of this act In the case of newly created cities the said salary where not definitely fixed by this act shall be fixed by said taxing authorities before any tax duplicates are delivered to the city treasurer In fixing the salary of the tax collector the taxing authorities fixing the same shall each be assigned one vote which one vote shall be divided into fractions assigning an equal fraction of one vote to each member of the same taxing authority and a majority of all the fractional votes cast shall govern

In cities of the third class having a population of twenty-five thousand inhabitants and less the annual salary of the tax collector shall not be less than one thousand six hundred dollars nor more than three thousand five hundred dollars

In cities of the third class having a population of more than twenty-five thousand inhabitants and not exceeding fifty thousand the annual salary of the tax collector shall not be less than three thousand five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars

In cities of the third class having a population of more than fifty thousand inhabitants and not exceeding fifty-five thousand inhabitants the annual salary of the tax collector shall be six thousand dollars

In cities of the third class having a population of more than fifty-five thousand inhabitants the annual salary of the tax collector shall not exceed seven thousand five hundred dollars

The tax collector of each city of the third class shall appoint all necessary deputies clerks and assistants whose number and salaries shall be fixed jointly by the taxing districts in the same manner as hereinbefore provided for the fixing of the salary of the tax collector Said deputies clerks and assistants shall give fidelity bond payable to the Commonwealth for the use of the city county institution district and school district conditioned on the faithful accounting and payment over of all tax moneys received by them

Each city of the third class shall provide and furnish for the tax collector at his office as city treasurer suitable office space light heat furniture and janitor service.

The salaries of the tax collector and his deputies clerks and assistants shall be paid monthly or semi-monthly in equal proportions by the city the county and the school district in the same manner as other officers of said city county and school district under such arrangement as to payment as may be agreed upon between said taxing districts

The taxing authorities other than the institution district shall be required to pay in equal proportions the premium on the bonds required to be given by law by the tax collector and his deputies clerks and assistants to the Commonwealth and the premiums on some form of casualty insurance which will safeguard and insure the tax collector against personal loss occasioned by the loss or destruction of tax money after the same has been collected by causes over which he had no control and for which no fault or blame was attached to him

The taxing authorities other than the institution district shall in equal proportions pay the cost of stationery supplies printing notices postage telephone service office equipment and incidental expenses necessarily incurred in the conduct of the tax collector's office these expenses to be determined by a board consisting of one representative from each such taxing authority to be appointed by such taxing authority

Section 2 The said act is further amended by adding section thirty-five point one immediately after section thirty-five to read as follows

Section 35.1 Each taxing district shall pay its pro rata share of the premiums on some form of casualty insurance which will safeguard and insure the tax collector against personal loss occasioned by the loss or destruction of tax money after the same has been collected by causes over which he had no control and for which no fault or blame was attached to him

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 417 TAKEN FROM TABLE

Mr. SORG. Mr. Speaker, I move that House Bill No. 417, Printer's No. 593, entitled:

An Act to further amend the act, approved the eighteenth day of May, one thousand nine hundred eleven (P. L. 309), entitled "An act to establish a public school system in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, together with the provisions by which it shall be administered, and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof; providing revenue to establish and maintain the same, and the method of collecting such revenue; and repealing all laws, general, special or local, or any parts thereof, that are or may be inconsistent therewith" by further providing for the minimum compensation and increments of members of the teaching and supervisory staffs of school districts and vocational school districts, county superintendents, assistant county superintendents and district superintendents; and providing for reimbursement by the Commonwealth; and repealing certain provisions of said act.

On the question,
Will the House agree to the motion?
It was agreed to.
On the question recurring,
Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. SORG. Mr. Speaker, with the consent of the sponsors, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee of Education for amendment.

On the question,
Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I move as an amendment that this House do now resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole for the consideration of amendments to House Bill 417.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would state that there is already before the House a motion to recommit. We would have to dispose of the motion made by the gentleman from Elk, Mr. Sorg, before the motion from the gentleman from Cambria could be entertained by the Chair. There cannot be two motions submitted before the House at the same time.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to call the attention of the Chair to the fact that the point to rule on is whether a motion to recommit is subject to amendment. There are not two motions before the House. There is a motion to recommit and a motion to amend the motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would rule that the motion to amend is not in order, because the motion for recommitment supersedes the motion to amend.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, will the Chair quote that rule?

The SPEAKER. Rule 15 and Rule 54 of the House.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, from our side of the House it is an error in tactics to permit this bill to pass from the possession of the House. When it goes into Committee it is not certain that the will of the House will be expressed. As long as we have possession of this bill we are in a position to negotiate with all the powers that be. When we release control of this bill the friends of the measure probably would not possess the power to discharge the Committee, and we would have no alternative then except to vote on the bill as it emerges from the Committee. So I ask this House to retain possession of this bill and not to recommit. I ask for a roll call on the motion to recommit.

Mr. SORG. Mr. Speaker, I just want to say briefly that in my opinion the House is not losing control of this bill by recommitting it to the Committee on Education from which it came, for the purpose of amendment. The bill can move no further than it is at the present time until it comes back again from this Committee.

I want to give my personal assurance and the assurance also of the sponsors of the measure and the Chairman of the Committee on Education, as it was expressed to me, that this bill will come back into the possession of the House for whatever further amendments may be desired, or for whatever action may be taken upon it in its present form or in whatever form the House will put the bill in.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Elk, Mr. Sorg.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Elk permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SORG. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, can the Majority Leader assure this House that it will have the opportunity to work its will upon House Bill 417 before it is called upon to vote for such a measure as might emerge from the upper chamber?

Mr. SORG. Mr. Speaker, I know of no occasion in the past that this House has not been given the opportunity to exert its will, and I can assure you it will not be prevented in this measure in the future.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I submit that the gentleman has not answered the question. Specifically I am asking the Majority Leader to assure this House that the bill will not be retained in Committee until such time as a bill from the other chamber has made its appearance in this House.

Mr. SORG. I will make that assurance, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ANDREWS. I thank the gentleman, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The correct answer was given by the Chair's counsel.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the sincerity of the answer and I believe that the Majority Leader is in a position to make good on his promise. Nevertheless, I hope that the minority will vote "no" on the motion to recommit.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

So the question was determined in the affirmative and the motion was agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 975, as follows:

An Act to amend clauses (c) and (g) of section three hundred one of the act approved the twenty-first day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine (P. L. 50) entitled "An act defining the liability of an employer to pay damages for occupational disease contracted by an employee arising out of and in the course of employment establishing an elective schedule of compensation providing procedure for the determination of liability and compensation thereunder imposing duties on the Department of Labor and Industry the Workmen's Compensation Board Workmen's Compensation Referees and deans of medical schools creating a medical board to determine controverted medical issues establishing an Occupational Disease Fund in custody of the State Workmen's Insurance Board imposing upon the Commonwealth a part of the compensation payable for certain occupational diseases making an appropriation and prescribing penalties" further regulating compensation for occupational disease and liability therefor

one of the act approved the twenty first day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine (P. L. 566) entitled "An act defining the liability of any employer to pay damages for occupational disease contracted by an employee arising out of and in the course of employment establishing an elective schedule of compensation providing procedure for the determination of liability and compensation thereunder imposing duties on the Department of Labor and Industry the Workmen's Compensation Board Workmen's Compensation Referees and deans of medical schools creating a medical board to determine controverted medical issues establishing and Occupational Disease Fund in custody of the State Workmen's Insurance Board imposing upon the Commonwealth a part of the compensation payable for certain occupational diseases making an appropriation and prescribing penalties" are hereby amended to read as follows

(c) Compensation for the occupational diseases enumerated in this act shall be paid only when such occupational disease is peculiar to the occupation or industry in which the employee was engaged and not common to the general population and [occurring] where the disability actually occurred within one year after the date of his employment in such occupation or industry. Whenever death is mentioned as a cause for compensation under this act it shall mean only death resulting from occupational disease and occurring within three years after the date of his last employment in such occupation or industry

(g) The employer liable for the compensation provided by this article shall be the employer in whose employment the employee was last exposed to the hazard of the occupational disease claimed regardless of the length of time of such last exposure. Provided That when a claimant alleges that disability or death was due to silicosis anthraco-silicosis asbestosis or any other occupational disease which developed to the point of disablement only after an exposure of five or more years the only employer liable shall be the last employer in whose employment the employee was last exposed to the hazard of such occupational disease during a period of six months or more [after the effective date of this act] and within two years before such disability occurred in fact and in such cases an exposure during a period of less than six months after the effective date of this act shall not be deemed an exposure. The notice of disability of death and claim shall be made to the employer who is liable under this subsection and his insurance carrier if any

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. COLE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Lycoming, Mr. Elder.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Lycoming permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. ELDER. Mr. Speaker, I will yield to the Majority Leader, the gentleman from Elk, Mr. Sorg.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Elk permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SORG. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COLE. Mr. Speaker. I would like to ask the Majority Leader whether he can tell me exactly what his bill means.

Mr. SORG. Mr. Speaker, it is my understanding of his bill that it imposes a limitation in time for the bringing of an action for disability resulting from an occupational disease. The background of the bill as it was expressed to me in that the last employer where there is hazard to occupational disease as a result of a condition, for example, of silicosis in the mines, he is the one liable for a disability resulting from such occupational disease. As in all other cases of workmen's compensation, the disability must arise within a specified time in order to be compensable.

Under the present law there is no limitation of time whatever, and it is my belief that it is the result of error in the draftsmanship of the original law which this bill attempts to eliminate.

Mr. COLE. Mr. Speaker, does this bill mean as it reads now then that a man who has contracted silicosis or some other occupational disease, which we know oftentimes takes years to detect—he may have it for many years before it is detected—under this particular law as it reads now, if this bill be passed, would the man who contracts an occupational disease after he left his occupation and went into some other occupation, and two years had passed, would he be denied the right if he contracted silicosis or some other such occupation disease to sue for compensation under this bill?

Mr. SORG. Under the limitation imposed by this bill, Mr. Speaker, it is my impression that he would not have a cause of action.

Mr. COLE. He could not sue either his former employer or his present employer under those facts, is that right, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. SORG. Mr. Speaker, if his present employer works under similar conditions, or if the hazard of occupational disease at the present employer's place of business is the same, then he could bring his action.

Mr. COLE. Mr. Speaker, is it not a fact that this bill is designed exclusively to cover a recent Superior Court decision on occupational disease, to nullify the purpose of that decision?

Mr. SORG. That is not my understanding, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COLE. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, this bill does two things. Under the present Occupational Disease Act compensation for occupational disease shall be paid only when such occupational disease is incurred in the occupation or industry in which the employee was engaged, and not common to the general population, and occurring within one year after the date of his last employment in such occupation or industry. Now, we want to amend this bill to read where the disability actually occurred. Take silicosis for example. A man may be exposed to conditions that bring about silicosis for a good many years, and leave that particular industry not knowing that he has contracted the disease. He goes into another industry and goes to work. Sometime later or in the course of years, this silicosis will show up, and this act purports to say it is a fact that the disease was contracted and incurred, but it wants to make it apply where it actually shows up.

In another section it says "within two years before such disability occurs in fact". It is my contention that this act is drawn up primarily to nullify the provisions of the Superior Court's decision rendered in October of 1946 in the case of Andrew J. Anderson, Deceased v. Schroeder Monumental Works, and in order to get it into the record, I would like to read a few extracts from this statement:

Andrew J. Anderson filed a petition under the Pennsylvania Occupational Disease Act of June 21, 1939, P. L. 566, 77 P. S. 1201, claiming compensation for total disability resulting from silicosis contracted while in defendant's employ. Anderson was employed by Schroeder Monumental Works as a granite cutter from April 23, 1936 to December 24, 1942. His next work was for the Hunter Manufacturing Company boring tetryl powder out of shells, from January 4, 1943 to January 16, 1944, when he became totally and permanently disabled. He died November 7, 1944 pending the action of the Board. The widow thereafter filed a petition claiming compensation for her husband's death due to silicosis. The Board found upon sufficient evidence "that death was caused solely by silicosis, definitely distinguished from a contributory or accelerating cause: Sec. 301, (e). The record does show that the decedent inhaled tetryl powder while in the employ of the Hunter Manufacturing Co. but the medical testimony conclusively proves that the inhalation of the tetryl powder was not the cause of decedent's silicosis. The tetryl powder was a contributory cause of total disability and it hastened the progress of the decedent's death, but there is no evidence that it was the cause of death."

An award was made under each petition and affirmed by the learned court below. These appeals were taken by the Coal Operators Casualty Company, the carrier for Schroeder Monumental Works, under policies expiring July 13, 1943. The appellant raises four questions, which we will discuss, each of which is resolved against it.

1. It denies liability for the reason that the total disability benefits as distinguished from death benefits, are barred because they did not occur within one year after the date of decedent's last exposure, to wit, December 24, 1942. Section 301 (c) of the 1939 Act supra, 77 P. S. 1401, provides:

"(c) Compensation for the occupational diseases enumerated in this act shall be paid only when such occupational disease is peculiar to the occupation or industry in which the employee was engaged * * * and occurring within one year after the date of his last employment in such occupation or industry."

As the learned court below aptly states: "A careful reading of the statute shows that the criterion is the date when the disease occurred and not the date when total disability began. In view of the medical testimony it is clear that decedent had contracted the disease within the one year's period of limitation as required by the statute."

Decedent was ill and complained of a dry cough in June of 1943. X-rays taken January 12, 1944 disclosed he was suffering from silicosis in the third stage with accompanying tuberculosis. Claimant's medical testimony showed that silicosis is a progressive disease and must necessarily have existed for some time before reaching the third or final stage. The evidence fully supports the findings of the Board that the silicosis was contracted in the employment of Schroeder Monumental Works or within a year thereafter.

2. Appellant's next contention is that silicosis was not the sole cause of death, and that inhalation of tetryl powder during decedent's employment with the Hunter Mfg. Co. played a prominent part in causing the disability and death. Dr. Bond, claimant's medical witness, did testify that inhalation of tetryl powder by the decedent while in the employ of the Hunter Mfg. Co. "irritated" the silicosis, "advanced it" and "flared the condition up", "progressed it more rapidly, more fulminating", but this witness expressed the opinion that the decedent would have died of silicosis in any event, that the inhalation of tetryl powder simply hastened his death. Under Section 301 (e) of the Act of 1939, 77 P. S. 1401, supra, if silicosis is merely contributory to death or a concurrent accelerating cause, recovery is barred, Stauffer v. Hubley Manufacturing Co., 151 Pa. Superior Ct. 322, 30 Atl. 2d 370. In Treaster v. North American Refractories Company et al, 156 Pa. Superior Ct. 567, 572, 573, 41 Atl. 2d 53 we stated that "where the silicosis is itself the active agency which terminates the life, there is compliance with the statute, notwithstanding the victim displayed disorders unconnected with the occupational disease which might in themselves have produced death had they been allowed to traverse their expected course. In the latter event, the disease or weakness is a passive factor without effect in depriving the silicosis of its character as the sole producing cause of death."

The evidence here shows, as it did in Roschak et ux v. Vulcan Iron Works, 157 Pa. Superior Ct. 227, 231, 42 Atl. 2d 280, that decedent's total disability and death were caused primarily and solely by silicosis within the meaning of our statute.

3. The appellant has not persuaded us that the inhalation of tetryl powder by decedent while in the employ of Hunter Mfg. Co. constituted an accident making the disability and death compensable under the Workmen's Compensation Act rather than under the Occupational Disease Act, and there is no finding to that effect. Certainly we cannot declare as a matter of law that such an event was an accident. Appellant is not relieved of liability on this ground.

4. We come now to the appellant's last position. It claims that it is not liable under its policy for either disability or death because disability from silicosis did not occur until January 16, 1944, or six months after its policy with decedent's employer expired, as death did not take place until sixteen months after its policy with Schroeder expired. The theory is agains relied upon that the date of disability rather than of the exposure or occurrence of the disease is the pivotal factor in determining the liability of appellant. The appellant's policies in force from July 13, 1939 to July 13, 1943 contained the following provision under its Standard Pennsylvania Occupational Disease endorsement:

"2. The insuring Company hereby agrees to assume the whole liability of this Insured Employer under the Pennsylvania Occupational Disease Act of 1939 and all laws amendatory thereof which may be or become effective while this policy is in force, without any exception, qualification or limitation."

Section 301 (g) of the 1939 Act supra, 77 P. S. 1401, makes the following provisions:

"(g) The employer liable for the compensation provided by this article shall be the employer in whose employment the employe was last exposed to the hazard of the occupational disease claimed, regardless of the length of time of such last exposure: Provided, * * * the only employer liable shall be the last employer in whose employment the employe was last exposed to the hazard of such occupational disease during a period of six months or more after the effective date of this Act * * *"

As above observed, it is the exposure that gives rise to the ultimate liability, but no compensation is payable until the disability becomes total: Agostin v. Pittsburgh Steel Foundry Corporation, 157 Pa. Superior Ct. 322, 43 Atl. 2d 604, affirmed 354 Pa. 543, 47 Atl. 2d 680. There is sound reason for the extension of the time that protection is afforded for an occupational disease resulting from exposure to unhealthful conditions over a long period, as disability often does not manifest itself until after the employment has ceased: McIntyre v. Lavino & Co. et al, 344 Pa. 163, 167. Mr. Justice Stern speaking for the Court in that case said at page 169: "Surely it was not intended that, if an occupational disease arising in the course of the employment culminated in a disability which manifested itself after the employment had ceased, the disability could not be the subject of compensation, for otherwise, after an employee had been exposed to the hazard for years and the seeds of occupational disease had been sown in his body, his employer could discharge him and thus avoid compensation liability for a resulting disability which might reveal itself shortly, or even immediately, thereafter." To uphold appellant's contention we would leave the claimant without any remedy in many cases. We are confident that no such result was contemplated by the Act which must be liberally interpreted as remedial legislation.

Now, Mr. Speaker, this particular case happened three years after the employee left his former employment and entered into another business, but the court held that the former company and the insurance company that carried their insurance were liable for compensation under this case. If this act is passed it limits that to two years, and therefore a man who has gone back and contracted an occupational disease two years after leaving his former employment could neither sue his former employer or his present employer, and therefore could not collect any compensation and a great injustice would have been done to him. So I say to you that this bill is very unfair and I ask the Members of the House to defeat it.

Mr. CAPANO. Mr. Speaker, this bill under Section C limits the period of time to file compensation resulting from occupational disease to one year. That particular section applies in all cases of occupational diseases with the exception of silicosis, anthraco-silicosis and asbestosis. That is treated under Section G, and when the act was first written probably no time limitation was placed upon anthraco-silicosis, silicosis and asbestosis, because it was known at that time from advices received by the authors of that act that those particular diseases took a considerable time to develop and that a man may have it and it may gradually develop over a period of years and not make itself felt to the extent of disability until some time after he has left the work.

Now, if we are to pass this amendment it is a definite step backward in the occupational disease act. It will definitely deny compensation in most cases of silicosis, anthraco-silicosis and asbestosis. In other words most of the claims will be defeated by this very amendment, and the intention of the amendment is not really to improve the act but to limit the liability of the employers and definitely take out of the act Section G, which consists of those particular deaths.

Mr. SORG. Mr. Speaker, there is one clause in the present act that we feel leads to the conclusion as to what was meant by the framers of the original law, and that is the clause that imposes a limitation of liability for death. If the one who had that disease, according to the framers of the original law, should die as a result of that disease three years and one day after he left his employment, he would not be entitled to compensation. It does not occur to me that where there is such a limitation that the framers of the act intended to leave it twenty, thirty or any number of years, which is far less consistent.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, in recent days there has been a disposition upon the part of the House to liberalize the attitude so far as legislation is concerned towards silicosis. Evidently someone somewhere regrets the fact that there has been a tendency to liberalize the statutes in that relation. So this bill represents a definite retreat from the standards that have slowly evolved during previous sessions—a regrettable retreat.

Mr. CAPANO. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman from Elk, Mr. Sorg, if you will take notice, that very section, Section G, has in it that a man must be exposed to the disease a period of five years or more. This was written into the act principally because it was known, as I stated before, that these diseases, particularly silicosis, anthraco-silicosis, and asbestosis are the types of diseases that take considerable time to develop, and there was no intent at any time to limit those particular cases, because if they did, then there would be no recovery for those diseases.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

Less than the majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the bill falls.

Agreeably to order,

the House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 980, as follows:

An Act to further amend section six hundred three and amend section six hundred twenty-two of the act, approved the seventeenth day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-one (P. L. 789), entitled as amended "An act relating to insurance; establishing an insurance department; and amending, revising, and consolidating the law relating to the licensing, qualification, regulation, examination, suspension, and dissolution of insurance companies, Lloyds associations, reciprocal and inter-insurance exchanges, and certain societies and orders, the examination and regulation of fire insurance rating bureaus, and the licensing and regulation of insurance agents and brokers; the service of legal process upon foreign insurance companies, associations or exchanges; providing penalties, and repealing existing laws," further regulating the licensing of insurance agents and brokers.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. STIMMEL. Mr. Speaker, there are two sides to every story, it has been said. I believe in the length of time that this bill has been on the calendar the Membership of this House has been approached by persuasive arguments on both sides. Today, however, I would like to discuss a third side, that of the man who is affected most, the public.

House Bill 980 is intended to protect the public from the coercive powers of credit money in the financing of personal property purchased on the deferred payment plan on which insurance protection is required. In addition, this Bill in effect enables the purchaser to obtain protection with an accredited insurance agent of his own choosing.

Experience has shown that the primary concern of the vendor in consummating a sale of personal property has been to provide protection for the finance company without regard to the man paying the bill. In the financing of automobiles and other personal property the term of insurance is usually for the length of the financing agreement, after which the purchaser is frequently left unprotected. This practice has in many instances resulted in loss to the public simply because the selling of insurance was just an adjunct to the primary business of the vendor.

Duplicate coverages, improper advice as to policy conditions, omission of essential coverage, lack of service to the policyholder and incomplete protection are often the result of the unqualified or part-time agent's attempt to provide insurance protection when the selling of insurance is not his chosen career or principal business, and I submit to you that no real public service is afforded, no need is satisfied and no good accomplished that cannot be better done by the qualified full time insurance counselor whose interest must necessarily be in the man who is his client. For these reasons I respectfully ask the members of this house to vote for this Bill.

Mr. WATERHOUSE. Mr. Speaker, I hesitate to rise in opposition to this bill, due to the fact that I am an automobile dealer, but I have also been a licensed insurance man for twenty years. I believe that this bill will be very harmful to insurance men inasmuch as it is entirely a restrictive measure. The bill tends to eliminate any part time men who happen to be engaged in the automobile business. It does not tend to eliminate that man who is in the real estate business nor any type of that kind. In other words, if you sell a house you can put insurance on it and you can sell the insurance; but if you sell an automobile and a man, for example, buys it for fifteen hundred dollars and owes you a balance of one thousand dollars, you cannot include with that the insurance which would protect the balance that you might be interested in, and consequently have guaranteed if you receive any commission on the sale of this insurance.

Where I believe this might work to the detriment of the public would be in this way: your might sell a car with a balance, and it might be on a Saturday afternoon or Saturday night or any evening, and you would not be able to contact the insurance man, and the purchaser takes the car out and cracks it up so to speak, he would not only be the loser but you would be too. The way it is handled now, the minute he signs the lease he is automatically protected.

I might say in checking my years of experience in the automobile business since 1933, I have had nine such cases, that is cars were wrecked before the lease had even been purchased by the finance company. So there would have been nine people who might possibly have not been protected. So, I believe it is the intent of all insurance men to give the public good service and good protection, and under this bill I do not think they are doing a thing for them, and I think they are only doing something against the public but still not doing anything for themselves. I certainly am opposed to it, and at this time I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Brown, if I may. In past sessions it has been common knowledge among the Members that Mr. Brown is very well versed on the constitutionality of bills, and I say this with all due respect to the other attorneys in the House, many of whom are also well versed on the subject, but I would like to ask the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Brown, if he believes that this bill which says that if a man sells more than 10 per cent of his total insurance volume on business or cars or property, that he has had dealings with, that he can no longer be an insurance agent, but if it is less than 10 per cent he can. Does the gentleman in his opinion believe that this bill would be constitutional?

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I am indeed grateful to the gentleman from Erie, Mr. Waterhouse. I am not so sure that I have any peculiar knowledge in the field to which he refers. If I were permitted to give an opinion I would not want that to be taken as an indication of how I would vote on this bill because I have talked over it for weeks with the sponsor of the bill and with those who are vitally interested, and whatever I might say I hope would be taken as a matter of law and not with any basis of trying to influence any of the Members in their vote on this bill.

The problem of law presented by House Bill 980 is a very interesting one. It is an interesting one because it is a matter with which this legislature has to deal on many occasions.

To answer the question, I think we should first go to the basis of the fundamental law, and that is the XIV Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, section 1, which provides that "no person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law." It is one of the crowning achievements of our constitutional provisions that property does not only mean those tangible things which we can see and which we can move about, but property includes intangible things. The Supreme Court of the United States has designated that intangibles would be included under the term of "property" as defined under Section 1 of the XIV Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and incidentally I would call to the attention of the Members of the House that so far as I have been able to understand and to learn after reading the Constitution of the United States, we find that only in this particular section and in Article 5 of the Constitution which also provides that no person shall be deprived of his life, liberty or property without due process of law and so you have that provision riveted into our fundamental law. Outside of the Article of the United States Constitution and in the XIV Amendment, I know of no other place in the Constitution where the language is repeated, "no person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law."

Now, what is property? Does that include only tangibles? It includes intangibles. It would have been futile as far as the Supreme Court had decided if it only included those things that we could see and move about, and so in terms of property it would include the right to work.

I don't know if I can quote the language verbatim or not, but the language is something like this, that the right of a man to engage in the common occupation of the community is a property right, and that property right cannot be taken away from him without due process of law.

The right to write insurance is a property right, and has been held so in many of our Courts. We recognized it here in Pennsylvania as a property right.

House Bill 980 raises a question as to whether or not this Legislature can take away that right or can limit that right without due process of law. Not so long ago I went back to the authorities and went back to that learned opinion by the late Mr. Justice Holmes. I think it is a gem in our Constitutional law and I think it is something that all of us can read if we wish to know something about this question of police power, because here we have a clash between those guarantees of the Fifth Article and the XIV Amendment to the Constitution of the United States and the police powers of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

The police power is that sovereign right which resides within the sovereign state. By the utilization of this power this Legislature can limit, can regulate those things which are guaranteed under this article of the Constitution and the XIV amendment of the Constitution of the United States. However, the courts held that the Legislature cannot abridge that right. They can limit that right provided that limitation is in the interest of the public health, the public morals or public safety or the general welfare.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, the second question arises, is this limitation one that can be embraced in public health or public morals or public safety or the general welfare? If it is, then this Commonwealth, acting through this Legislature in the utilization of its police power which resides within it, can so regulate and so limit that guarantee of our fundamental law, provided, number three, that the regulation is not arbitrary. If the regulation is arbitrary, if it is capricious, it must fall, though it is done within the exercise of the police power.

I am unable to answer the question as to whether or not the premiums are ten and a quarter the insurance agent is allowed to pursue his ordinary occupation—if it falls to nine and three quarters the license is taken away from him. To me it raises a serious question, and it would be my opinion that the Supreme Court would say that such regulation would be arbitrary and has no basis of reason, that it was just a something that could be picked out of the sun. You could set it at eleven per cent or you could set it at nine per cent. Wherein does reasonableness lie? If that regulation is within the police power, it will stand; if it is not it will fall.

In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of acquainting perhaps some who are not lawyers and refreshing the minds of the members of the bar who are here, I would like to read the record that I consider the gem of all legal opinions, by that late eminent Mr. Justice Holmes. If you will take the language of his opinion, while it has nothing of course to do with the case before the Legislature, the substance is this, and it can be applied in all its contents, and I should like to read that into the record.

Mr. Speaker, I do not have my notes at the microphone. Would you permit me to continue my remarks by reading this gem of all legal opinions, which can be applied not only to this case but can be applied to other matters that will come before this House dealing with the police power.

This is the famous case of Otis versus Parker, reported in 187 U. S., page 606, decided in 1903.

Mr. Justice Holmes, speaking for the court in this case, held:

"The issue here was whether a section in the California Constitution providing that contracts for the sale of mining stock on margin or for future delivery should be unenforceable as violating the fourteenth amendment."

You have the same question here, that of police power, the same question with which we are dealing here. So Mr. Justice Holmes laid down these fundamental principles, and I quote from that decision:

"It is true no doubt that neither a State Legislature or a State Constitution can interfere with private business or transactions, and that the mere fact that an enactment purports to be for the further protection of the public safety or morals is not conclusive upon the court."

Later on in the opinion in this same decision, Mr. Justice Holmes says, and I quote again:

"If the state thinks an admitted evil cannot be prevented except by prohibiting a calling or transaction not in itself necessarily objectionable, the courts cannot interfere unless in looking at the substance of the matter they can see that it 'is a clear unmistakable infringement of the rights secured by the fundamental law'."

I think, Mr. Speaker, if we would take this chart laid down by this distinguished jurist, perhaps the greatest jurist of all times, we can see that if we use the police powers of the Commonwealth we should do so advisedly, so that under the exercise of the police powers we do not infringe upon the fundamental law of the land.

Mr. WATERHOUSE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Brown. I believe that after hearing his reply there should be little doubt in any of the minds of the members, regardless of whether they are insurance men, legal men or automobile men, that certainly this bill is not in the interest of any one of the four points that must deal with the public in order to be constitutional.

I am not an attorney but I have a little of what is commonly called horse sense, and to me it just doesn't make horse sense. I thank the Members for their attention and courtesy.

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. Speaker, one can readily see that House Bill 980 has been introduced for the express purpose of prohibiting automobile dealers, and only automobile dealers, from engaging in the insurance business as agents or brokers. I think I am correct in stating that its effect is aimed primarily at the Motors Insurance Corporation, a subsidiary of the General Motors Company, thereby affecting two thousand or more dealers of General Motors cars and products throughout our Commonwealth, who, over a course of many years have given to the citizens of Pennsylvania, the purchasers of this company's products, an insurance service which was outstanding and of a distinct benefit to all its thousands of policy holders.

House Bill 980 prohibits an insurance agent from soliciting, negotiating or effecting insurance covering personal property sold by himself, his employer, his employe, relative or business associate, except as an incidental and minor part of his business and defines the term "incidental" and "minor part" as meaning ten per cent, as stated on pages 3 and 4 of this bill. It is purely and simply discriminatory and class legislation.

The bill shows that it was written for the express purpose of preventing automobile dealers, irrespective of their ability to qualify, from engaging in the insurance business.

In so doing it would deny them the right to engage in a lawful enterprise, a right granted them under both State and Federal constitutions. Under the guise of regulatory legislation, the existence for which can only rest on public benefit, it seeks to stifle and throttle free competition. Not only is it lacking in public benefits, but by limiting and closing certain avenues through which insurance may be purchased it would actually operate to the public detriment.

Mr. Speaker, one can readily see that the bill was drafted and introduced by the Agents' Association in order to create and perpetuate an artificial economic fence around the insurance business for their special benefit. It is an effort upon the part of an organized minority to use the power of license in attempting to obtain control of a business which its members do not now enjoy. One can readily note that the language in the bill would aid and strengthen the so-called bank agents' plan. I am under the impression that the Insurance Commission and the entire Insurance Department would not approve of the motives of this particular bill. The bill is certainly unnecessary and will not work out for the public interest, and with all due respect to the sponsor, the gentleman from Lehigh, Mr. Stimmel, I make the following motion.

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Insurance for more serious study, and I ask for a division on the motion.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. STIMMEL. Mr. Speaker, I violently oppose the motion of the gentleman from Schuylkill, Mr. Watkins. With apologies to the gentleman from Westmoreland County, Mr. Lovett, "let's be fair". This bill has been on the calendar since May 12th. I believe this House has had adequate time to give it its earnest perusal.

I understand that I am not permitted to discuss the merits of the bill on this motion, but I believe that I have expressed the reasons why this House is now entitled to vote on this bill. We have discussed it. It certainly is a controversial bill and I think we should now vote on it. I think we have had adequate time to discuss it and make up our minds.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

A division having been asked for, 95 Members having voted in the affirmative and 57 in the negative, the question was determined in the affirmative, and the motion was agreed to.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. STIMMEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Lehigh will state it.

Mr. STIMMEL. Mr. Speaker, I ask if it would be parliamentarily correct to ask for a roll call after the division.

The SPEAKER. Not after the decision has been made.

Mr. STIMMEL. I thank you, Mr. Speaker.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The SPEAKER. The Chair has a very important announcement to make to the Members of the House. The Members are informed to come prepared to stay the entire week of June 9th, commencing next Monday. The Chair will repeat the announcement. Members are to come prepared next week to remain throughout the entire week.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1156, as follows:

An Act making an appropriation to the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission for the purchase of cases preserving and exhibiting the original William Penn Charter and other historical documents

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 The sum of twenty thousand dollars ($20,000) or so much thereof as may be necessary is hereby specifically appropriated to the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission for the purpose of purchasing proper cases for the original William Penn Charter Frames of Government Indian Deed and other historical documents pertaining to the founding of Pennsylvania in order to permanently preserve and to exhibit said priceless historical documents

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1337, as follows:

An Act to further amend sections one and three and to add section four to the act approved the seventh day of May one thousand nine hundred twenty-seven (P. L. 859) entitled "A supplement to the act approved the twentieth day of June one thousand nine hundred and nineteen (P. L. 521) entitled 'An act providing for the imposition and collection of certain taxes upon the transfer of property passing from a decedent who was a resident of this Commonwealth at the time of his death and of property within this Commonwealth of a decedent who was a nonresident of the Commonwealth at the time of his death and making it unlawful for any corporation of this Commonwealth or national banking association located therein to transfer the stock of such corporation or banking association standing in the name of any such decedent until the tax on the transfer thereof has been paid and providing penalties and citing certain acts to be repealed imposing additional taxes equal to Federal credits" further providing for determination of estates subject to the Pennsylvania Estate Tax the computation thereof and the collection of interest upon the same not paid when due and providing for crediting any tax paid on account of the Pennsylvania Estate Tax to an additional transfer inheritance tax assessed against the estate.

Section 1 Sections one and three of the act approved the seventh day of May one thousand nine hundred twenty-seven (P. L. 859) entitled "A supplement to the act approved the twentieth day of June one thousand nine hundred and nineteen (P. L. 521) entitled 'An act providing for the imposition and collection of certain taxes upon the transfer of property passing from a decedent who was a resident of this Commonwealth at the time of his death and of property within this Commonwealth of a decedent who was a nonresident of the Commonwealth at the time of his death and making it unlawful for any corporation of this Commonwealth or national banking association located therein to transfer the stock of such corporation or banking association standing in the name of any such decedent until the tax on the transfer thereof has been paid and providing penalties and citing certain acts to be repealed imposing additional taxes equal to Federal credits as last amended by the act approved the fourth day of June one thousand nine hundred forty-three (P. L. 859) are hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 1 Be it enacted etc That in order that the Commonwealth may receive the full benefit of section three hundred and one (b) of the Federal Revenue Act of one thousand nine hundred and twenty-six or any other legislation of a similar kind or enacted for a like purpose which grants a credit on the Federal estate tax for estate succession and transfer inheritance taxes paid to the State government an estate tax to be known as the Pennsylvania Estate Tax is hereby imposed upon the estate of every person who at the time of his death is a resident of the Commonwealth and one every estate the situs of which is in Pennsylvania of any person who at the time of his death is a resident of a foreign country provided such estate is in the class of estates which under the laws of the United States is subject to a Federal estate tax Such estate shall be in addition to any tax imposed as a result of the death of such [resident] person under the provisions of the transfer inheritance tax law of this Commonwealth approved the twentieth day of June one thousand nine hundred and nineteen (P. L. 521) to which this act is a supplement The said Pennsylvania Estate Tax upon the estate of every decedent as aforesaid shall be computed as follows The aggregate transfer inheritance taxes due under the act to which this act is a supplement shall first be determined Provided That the amount of such aggregate taxes due shall be reduced by the amount of any discount allowed under the act to which this is a supplement If such amount there shall be added the amount of any estate inheritance legacy or succession taxes actually paid to any other State or territory or the District of Columbia or in possession of the United States in respect to any property owned by such decedent subject to such taxes as a payment or in connection with his estate The sum resulting from such addition shall then be deducted from an amount equal to the amount of the maximum credit allowable to the estate of the decedent by the Federal Estate Tax Law of the laws for estate inheritance legacy or succession taxes paid to any State or territory or the District of Columbia or in possession of the United States The remainder if any shall constitute and be the Pennsylvania Estate Tax to be collected on the estate of the decedent The tax imposed by this act shall be collected in accordance with the provisions of the act to which this act is a supplement

Every executor administrator or person in actual or constructive possession of the property of an estate subject to the tax imposed by this act shall within thirty days after the filing of his her or its return with the Federal Government for Federal estate tax purposes file a copy of such Federal return with the register of wills of the proper county and shall within thirty days after the receipt by him her or it of any communication from the Federal Government making any final change in the said return or confirming increasing or diminishing the tax thereby shown to be due file a copy of such communication with the register of wills of the proper county The Commonwealth shall have authority in any estate taxable under this act to act to make a provisional estimate for the payment of taxes to the Commonwealth on account and to make an appraisal of the taxes due by any estate under this act when the amount of the Federal tax has been finally determined

Section 3 Any tax imposed under the provisions of this act shall become due and payable at the expiration of eighteen months from the date of death of the decedent If the tax is not paid when due interest at the rate of six percentum per annum shall be charged and collected from the time the same became payable except that if the basic Federal estate tax has been or is increased by the Collector of Internal Revenue or by any other agency or court of the United States and if as a result the Pennsylvania Estate Tax imposed by section one hereof is increased interest shall be computed on the additional tax from thirty days after the proper parties have received final notice of the increase in the Federal Estate Tax until paid Where real or personal estate withheld by reason of litigation or other unavoidable cause of delay from the parties entitled thereto subject to such additional estate tax has not been productive to the extent of six per centum per annum the proper parties shall not pay a greater amount as interest to the Commonwealth than they have realized or shall realize from such estate during the time the same has been or shall be withheld as aforesaid Provided That proof hereof is furnished the Department of Revenue and is satisfactory to the department

Section 2 Said act is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof a new section to read as follows

Section 4 If after the payment of the Pennsylvania Estate Tax imposed by the act to which this is an amendment here shall be assessed an additional transfer inheritance tax not taken into account in determining the amount of the Pennsylvania Estate Tax previously determined and paid so much of the Pennsylvania Estate Tax as had been previously determined and paid as may be necessary shall be credited against any such additional transfer inheritance tax so assessed

The provisions of this act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

Section 4 This act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Elk, Mr. Sorg.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Elk permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SORG. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, this bill creates a flood control commission that is to make surveys and recommendations as to flood control. There is pending somewhere a measure making specific appropriations for impounding dams. I think that appropriation runs into considerable money. Now, is it proposed to wait until these surveys are made before the money appropriated in the bill for impounding dams is spent, or before the program starts, or will the money for impounding dams be spent before the surveys are completed?

Mr. SORG. It is my understanding Mr. Speaker, that the surveys to be made here will be the subject matter upon which the appropriation will be spent, and that thereafter the expenditure of the funds will await the completion of the surveys.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, is there any possibility or probability that any considerable amount of the appropriation for impounding dams will be spent within the next biennium?

Mr. SORG. I would say very definitely, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, would the Majority Leader give us any indication as to whether the administration proposes to spend one million dollars, five million dollars or twelve million dollars during the next biennium?

Mr. SORG. Mr. Speaker, I cannot give the gentleman an accurate estimate as to the exact amount. It does occur to me, however, that particularly in the northern tier, where many, many floods have occurred in the past several years, the expenditure of the sum of ten million dollars certainly would not seem too much within one biennium.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I was not questioning the amount. I think the project is very desirable. What I wanted was some assurance that the amount will be spent during the next biennium.

Mr. SORG. That is the intention, Mr. Speaker.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection,

Senate Bill No. 478, Printer's No. 244

was passed over at the request of the SPEAKER.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 492, as follows:

An Act to amend Section 2 of the act approved the third day of May one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (P. L. 227) entitled "An act authorizing stock corporations with certain exceptions to make provision for and to issue shares of capital stock of any class or classes or to change shares of authorized or outstanding capital stock of any class into one or more classes with or without nominal or par value and with such designations terms relative rights powers privileges preferences limitations restrictions and qualifications as may be specified regulating such corporations and the liabilities of their directors making other provisions relating to the capital and capital stock of such corporations and repealing all acts or parts of acts inconsistent herewith" by empowering subject to certain conditions the boards of directors of corporations to issue out of the authorized but unissued shares of capital stock the kinds and classes of shares so authorized regulating the creation and issuance of preferred or special stock in series and designating the variations in the relative rights and preferences as between different series and empowering subject to certain conditions the boards of directors of corporations as respects the authorized but unissued shares of preferred or special stock of the corporation to divide the same into series and subject to certain conditions and limitations to fix and determine the relative rights and preferences of any series so established

Section 1 Section 2 of the act approved the third day of May one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (P. L. 227) entitled "An act authorizing stock corporations with certain exceptions to make provision for and to issue shares of capital stock of any class or classes or to change shares of authorized or outstanding capital stock of any class into one or more classes with or without nominal or par value and with such designations terms relative rights powers privileges preferences limitations restrictions and qualifications as may be specified regulating such corporations and the liabilities of their directors making other provisions relating to the capital and capital stock of such corporations and repealing all acts or parts of acts inconsistent herewith" is hereby amended to read as follows

Section 2 (a) Any such corporation heretofore or hereafter created by incorporation reorganization or consolidation having a capital stock consisting of shares either with or without nominal or par value or both may at any time authorize and issue in whole or in part capital stock of any class or kind with or without nominal or par value or change or convert any or all of the shares of its authorized or outstanding capital stock into one or more classes and kinds either with or without nominal or par value with such designations terms relative rights privileges limitations preferences and voting powers or prohibitions restrictions or qualifications of the voting and other rights and powers as may be specified as to the shares of any given class or kind in the same manner and by the same stock vote as may now or may hereafter be prescribed by law for increasing the capital stock of such corporation Provided however That in any case where shares without nominal or par value shall be provided for a stated capital shall be fixed the amount of which shall be set forth in such proceedings which stated capital shall be governed by and be subject to the provisions of this act Such proceedings may as an incident to such change or conversion increase or decrease the capital stock which such corporation is authorized to issue or the aggregate par value of or stated capital applicable to its outstanding shares of stock may alter or adjust the division of its authorized capital stock as between outstanding stock and authorized stock unissued or make any similar adjustment of the capital structure or share structure of such corporation Provided that no such change or alteration in the value of the aggregate par value of the outstanding stock shall be valid in law unless notices to all persons interested shall be given as now required by law where it is proposed to increase or reduce the capital stock of any corporation

(b) As to shares authorized by such stock vote but unissued unless the charter or by-laws otherwise provide the board of directors shall have the power by resolution duly adopted to issue from time to time in whole or in part the kinds or classes of shares so authorized

(c) If the charter so provides the shares of any preferred or special class may be divided into and issued in series If the shares of any such class are to be issued in series then each series shall be so designated as to distinguish the shares thereof from the shares of all other series and classes Any or all of the series of any such class and the variations in the relative rights and preferences as between different series may be fixed and determined by the charter provided that all shares of the same class shall be identical except as to the following relative rights and preferences in respect of any or all of which there may be variations between different series namely the rate of dividend the price at and the terms and conditions on which shares may be redeemed the amounts payable upon shares in event of voluntary or involuntary liquidation sinking fund provisions for the redemption or purchase of shares and the terms and conditions on which shares may be converted in the event the shares of any series are issued with the privilege of conversion Different series of the same class of shares shall not be construed to constitute different classes of shares for the purpose of voting by classes

(d) If the charter shall expressly vest authority in the board of directors then to the extent that the charter shall not have established series and fixed and determined the variations in the relative rights and preferences as between series the board of directors shall have authority by resolution to divide any or all such classes into series and within the limitations set forth in subdivision (c) of this section fix and determine the relative rights and preferences of any series so established Such authority of the board of directors shall be subject to such limitations if any as are stated in the charter and shall always be subject to the limitation that the board of directors shall not create a sinking fund in respect of any series unless provision for a sinking fund at least as beneficial to all issued and outstanding shares of the same class shall either then exist or be at the same time created

(e) Prior to the issue of any shares of a series established by resolution adopted by the board of directors the corporation shall present to the Department of State a statement in duplicate executed under the seal of the corporation signed and verified by two duly authorized officers thereof and setting forth

(1) The name of the corporation

(2) The resolution establishing and designating the series and fixing and determining the relative rights and preferences thereof

(3) The date and the manner of the adoption of such resolution

If the Department of State find that such statement conforms to law and the charter of the corporation and when all fees have been paid as required by law it shall endorse its approval thereon shall file the statement and shall issue to the corporation or its representative a copy of the approved statement Upon the filing of such statement by the Department of State and upon compliance with the requisite provisions of any law regulating the issue of securities by the corporation the resolution establishing and designating the series and fixing and determining the relative rights and preferences thereof shall become effective

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,
Shall the bill pass finally?

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection,

Senate Bill No. 710, Printer's No. 270 was passed over at the request of the SPEAKER.

RESOLUTION No. 58

Mrs. DYE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution No. 58 on page 21 of today's calendar.

The resolution was read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, May 27, 1947.

Whereas Delinquency of juveniles and youth in their early twenties is creating a major problem of crime in this Commonwealth resulting in mounting financial costs to the Commonwealth and great spiritual tragedy and

Whereas Conservation of human resources is a prime concern of the Commonwealth and an adequate preventive program would decrease the terrific loss to the Commonwealth of the productive citizenship of those engaged in crime and

Whereas A survey conducted by the Pennsylvania Federation of Womens Clubs (1945-46) shows serious differences in the preventive protective and corrective services rendered to the children in the several counties of this Commonwealth therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concurs) That the Joint State

Government Commission is hereby directed to list study and appraise the problems relating to juvenile delinquency namely its underlying causes the adequacy of existing governmental and private agencies to prevent juvenile delinquency and measures which will conserve and improve the conditions of youth in the Commonwealth and be it further

Resolved That the Joint State Government Commission shall make a report to the next regular session of the General Assembly embracing the results of its findings and its recommendations for legislation to correct existing conditions and to prepare a bill or bills embodying such recommendations Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

RESOLUTIONS

Mr. DAVISON offered a resolution which was laid over under the Rules.

Mr. WEISS offered a resolution which was laid over under the Rules.

INTERROGATION

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the majority leader, the gentleman from Elk, Mr. Sorg.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Elk permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SORG. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman has the information, I would like to ask him, first, the cash balance in the Commonwealth as of May 31, 1947, second, the appropriation liabilities against that cash balance as of April 30, 1947; third, the amount that the administration expects to spend during the next biennium for construction.

Mr. SORG. Mr. Speaker, in reply to the first question, the cash balance is approximately one hundred and five million dollars. I had the exact figure here but I do not have it now.

Mr. ANDREWS. $894,852.53—

Mr. SORG. Cash balance—does the gentleman make a representation that the cash balance at the end of the biennium is far away from one hundred and five million dollars?

Mr. ANDREWS. My figures would be $105,894,852.53.

Mr. SORG. I would say that is the correct figure. Against that there are appropriation liabilities in an amount which would leave a tentative surplus of $12,-334,328.49, or approximately $93,000,000.00.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the majority leader to recheck his figures. My figures would show appropriation liabilities as of May 31, 1947 of $106,851,-791.00.

Mr. SORG. Mr. Speaker, I have the figures that have been submitted to me. Does the gentleman have reference to the April 30, 1947 figures, or the June 1st figures?

Mr. ANDREWS. The June 1st figures.

Mr. SORG. My figures on that are different, a difference of twelve million dollars.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman recheck his figures and report to the House tomorrow?

Mr. SORG. I will do that, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ANDREWS. I would repeat, Mr. Speaker, that my figures would show at least $106,851,791.73 appropriation liabilities as of May 31, 1947, leaving in the red the amount of $956,000.

Mr. SORG. Mr. Speaker, I am quite sure that we may find on rechecking the figures and on further interrogation by the gentleman, that we may come to a difference in the figure on lapsed appropriations.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I have one further question, the third question.

Mr. SORG. Mr. Speaker, I cannot give the gentleman any assurance as to the exact amount of money that will be actually spent in the coming biennium on improvements, because of the uncertainty of conditions generally. I can say, however, that appropriations in the amount of at least $92,000,000 for the one purpose alone of repairing, improving and expanding needed welfare institutional requirements will be made.

Mr. ANDREWS. I thank the gentleman. Mr. Speaker, I simply desire to call to the attention of the Members of the House the fact that if there are appropriations and allocations totalling $90,000,000 the probabilities, the possibilities are that spending only approximately $50,000,000 during the next biennium, the fact that $40,000,000 will be hoarded up against contingencies might have some reference so far as the pressing financial needs of the Commonwealth are concerned, particularly with reference to the major needs such as House Bill 417.

SENATE MESSAGES

SENATE

WEDNESDAY, June 4, 1947

The Senate met at 2:00 o'clock, p. m., Eastern Standard Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Daniel B. Strickler) in the Chair.

PRAYER

In the absence of the Chaplain, prayer was delivered by the gentleman from Berks, Doctor RUTH.

Almighty and most merciful God, our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee today for this beautiful day. We can truly say, what is so rare as a day in June, and we pray that the spirit of this day may come into our hearts and lives, that it bring us into greater tranquility and peace with Thee and with the world.

Use us to do Thy will here today so that the greatest good may come to those whom we represent. Bless our state in all its efforts and progress and in building up a safe refuge for those who are to live after us, that we may have the same spirit that the founders of our great state had, that this may always be a place where people of all races, creeds and colors are welcome to work and live together, to build the great kingdom of our God here upon earth.

We ask it in Thy Holy Name. Amen!

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. HOLLAND asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, yesterday, while this Senate was passing punitive legislation against labor a man of vision in the city of New York, a man who is close to the problems of the people, spoke out against this type of legislation; the man who governs the largest city in the United States issued the following proclamation:

PROCLAMATION

Whereas, a free labor movement is one of the surest guarantees of a free nation; and

Whereas, the American labor movement has demonstrated an inspiring loyalty to our democratic form of government in time of peace and in time of war; and

Whereas, our free trade unions have made incomparable contributions to the advancement of democracy in our nation; and

Whereas, our free trade union movement is presently imperilled by legislation now before the Congress of the United States; and

Whereas, the legislation, known as the Taft-Hartley bill, would emasculate the Clayton Act, the Norris-La Guardia Act and the Wagner Act, laws which extirpated grave injustices against the workingmen of our nation;

Now, Therefore, I, William O'Dwyer, Mayor of the City of New York, designate the fourth day of June, Nineteen Hundred and Forty-seven as a day of protest to our national authorities in Washington, D. C., against the enactment of this legislation which would be detrimental to the national welfare and our democratic system.

And I further call upon all citizens of this city who oppose such restrictive measures to join with organized labor in making known to our national authorities that the surest road to industrial peace is through friendly cooperation and understanding between management and labor.

In Witness Whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the City of New York to be affixed this 29th day of May, 1947.

(Signed) WILLIAM O'DWYER

By: (Signed) William J. Donohue
Executive Secretary to the Mayor

What a contrast, Mr. President, to what we did in this Senate yesterday. I believe it was very ably expressed by two labor men who walked into this Senate Chamber this morning, when one turned to the other and said, "How do you feel?" and the other said, "Well, I feel I'm going into a funeral home, because labor was buried in the Senate yesterday."

HOUSE RESOLUTION REPORTED FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. RUTH from the Committee on Forests and Waters, Game and Fish, to which was referred on May 20, 1947, the following resolution from the House of Representatives reported the same without amendment as follows, viz:

DEPARTMENT, FORESTS AND WATERS TO CONTINUE TO MAINTAIN "HOPEWELL" AS A PARK

In the House of Representatives, February 18, 1947

"Hopewell" an area in Berks and Chester Counties of 5400 acres (of which 500 acres are woodland) formerly under the jurisdiction of the Federal Government is now subject to the control and supervision of the Department of Forests and Waters since it was granted to the Commonwealth under the provisions of the act approved the 22nd day of May 1945 (P. L. 834)

This beautiful park and recreational area has been partially developed. Further development is quite feasible at any time by the construction of headquarters buildings, cabins, public bathing beaches, playgrounds and certain electrical sewerage and safety equipment, the breaking of trails and the maintenance thereof.

There are now a dozen or more State Parks. There is no such park in the southeastern part of the State within a fifty mile radius of "Hopewell". There is a population of five million. These people, hundreds of thousands of whom have visited the area in the last five years together with sportsmen who hope to see a game preserve in part of the area and service clubs and desire that "Hopewell" be made a State Park since most of them have no opportunity to visit our other State Parks, therefore be it Resolved (if the Senate concurs) That the Department of Forests and Waters continue to maintain "Hopewell" as a park and recreational area and that the Department of Forests and Waters improve and develop "Hopewell" if as and when moneys available for such purpose permit.

The PRESIDENT. The resolution will be laid on the table.

BILL ON CONCURRENCE IN HOUSE AMENDMENTS

Agreeably to order,

The Senate resumed the consideration of Senate Bill No. 575, as follows:

An Act concerning the ascertainment of principal and income and the apportionment of receipts and expenses among tenants and remaindermen

Section 1 Definition of Terms "Principal" as used in this act means any realty or personality which has been so set aside or limited by the owner thereof or a person thereto legally empowered that it and any substitutions for it are to remain in trust perpetually or are eventually to be conveyed delivered or paid to a person while the return therefrom or use thereof or any part of such return or use is in the meantime to be taken or received by or held for accumulation for the same or another person

"Tenant" as used in this act means the person to whom income is presently or currently payable or for whom it is accumulated or who is entitled to the beneficial use of the principal presently and for a time prior to its distribution

"Remainderman" as used in this act means the person ultimately entitled to the principal whether named or designated by the terms of the transaction by which the principal was established or determined by operation of law

"Trustee" as used in this act includes the original trustee of any trust to which the principal may be subject and also any succeeding or added trustee

Section 2 Application of the Act Powers of Settlor This act shall govern the ascertainment of income and principal and the apportionment of receipts and expenses between tenants and remaindermen in all cases where a principal has been established with or unless otherwise stated hereinafter without the interposition of a trust provided that the person establishing the principal may himself direct the manner of ascertainment of income and principal and the apportionment of receipts and expenses or grant discretion to the trustee or other person to do so and such provision and direction where not otherwise contrary to law shall control notwithstanding this act

(1) All receipts of money or other property paid or delivered as rent of realty or hire of personalty or dividends on corporate shares payable other than in shares of the corporation itself of the same kind and rank as the shares on which such dividend is paid or interest on money loaned or interest on or the rental or use value of property wrongfully withheld or tortiously damaged or otherwise in return for the use of principal shall be deemed income unless otherwise expressly provided in this act

(2) All receipts of money or other property paid or delivered as the consideration for the sale or other transfer not a leasing or letting of property forming a part of the principal or as a repayment of loans or in liquidation of the assets of a corporation or as the proceeds of property taken in eminent domain proceedings where separate awards to tenant and remainderman are not made or as proceeds of insurance upon property forming a part of the principal except where such insurance has been issued for the benefit of either tenant or remainderman alone or otherwise as a refund or replacement or change in form of principal shall be deemed principal unless otherwise expressly provided in this act Any profit or loss resulting from any change in form of principal shall enure to or fall upon principal unless otherwise expressly provided in this act

(3) All income after payment of expenses properly chargeable to it shall be paid and delivered to the tenant or retained by him if already in his possession or held for accumulation where legally so directed by the terms of the transaction by which the principal was established while the principal shall be held for ultimate distribution as determined by the terms of the transaction by which it was established or by law

(4) Nothing in this Section 3 shall apply to property in the nature of wasting assets such as timber minerals coal stone oil gas or other natural resources or to property subject to depletion such as leaseholds patents copyrights and royalty rights but this Section 3 shall apply to the shares of corporations which own such property

Section 4 Apportionment of Income Whenever a tenant shall have the right to income from periodic payments which shall include rent interest on loans and annuities

but shall not include dividends on corporate shares and such right shall cease and determine by death or in any other manner at a time other than the date when such periodic payments should be paid he or his personal representative shall be entitled to that portion of any such income next payable which amounts to the same percentage thereof as the time elapsed from the last due date of such periodic payments to and including the day of the determination of his right is of the total period during which such income would normally accrue The remaining income shall be paid to the person next entitled to income by the terms of the transaction by which the principal was established But no action shall be brought by the trustee or tenant to recover such apportioned income or any portion thereof until after the day on which it would have become due to the tenant but for the determination of the right of the tenant entitled thereto The provisions of this section shall apply whether an ultimate remainderman is specifically named or not Likewise when the right of the first tenant accrues at a time other than a payment date of such periodic payments he shall only receive that portion of such income which amounts to the same percentage thereof as the time during which he has been so entitled is of the total period during which such income would normally accrue and the balance shall be a part of the principal

(1) All dividends on shares of a corporation forming a part of the principal which are payable in the shares of the corporation itself of the same kind and rank as the shares on which such dividend is paid shall be deemed principal Subject to the provisions of this section all dividends payable otherwise than in such shares of the corporation itself including ordinary and extraordinary dividends and dividends payable in shares or other securities or obligations of corporations other than the declaring corporation shall be deemed income Where the trustee shall have the option of receiving a dividend either in cash or in the shares of the declaring corporation it shall be considered as a cash dividend and deemed income irrespective of the choice made by the trustee

(2) All rights to subscribe to the shares or other securities or obligations of a corporation accruing on account of the ownership of shares or other securities in such corporation and the proceeds of any sale of such rights shall be deemed principal All rights to subscribe to the shares or other securities or obligations of a corporation accruing on account of the ownership of shares or other securities in another corporation and the proceeds of any sale of such rights shall be deemed income

(3) Where the assets of a corporation are liquidated wholly or partially amounts paid upon corporate shares as cash dividends declared before such liquidation began or as arrears of cumulative preferred or guaranteed dividends shall be deemed income all other amounts paid upon corporate shares on disbursement of the corporate assets to the stockholders shall be deemed principal All disbursements of corporate assets to the stockholders whenever made which are designated by the corporation as a return of capital or division of corporate property shall be deemed principal Any profit or loss resulting from the sale or liquidation of corporate shares shall enure to or fall upon principal

(4) Where a corporation is a party to a merger consolidation or reorganization or otherwise acquires the assets of another corporation or where the capital structure of a corporation is changed either with or without merger or consolidation and the securities of the surviving succeeding reorganized or acquiring corporation with or without cash or other properties are issued to the shareholders of the original corporation in like proportion to or in substitution for their shares in the original corporation and prior to the effective date of such merger consolidation or reorganization there were arrearages or cumulative preferred or guaranteed dividends and such arrearages are eliminated in the merger consolidation or reorganization so much of the securities and cash and
